Bush named U.S. envoy to China

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republican National Chairman George Bush has been chosen to become U.S. envoy to China, party sources said today.

Mary Louise Smith of Des Moines, Iowa, currently cochairman of the national committee, will replace Bush and Richard D. Obenshain will become her assistant, it was learned. Obenshain currently is chairman of the Virginia Republican party.

White House officials indicated the announcement would be made shortly concerning these changes.

George Bush, of Texas, would replace David Bruce as the head of the U.S. mission in Peking. Bush, 50, a former congressman and chief U.S. delegate to the United Nations, has headed the GOP since Jan. 19, 1973, when he was chosen by former President Nixon to succeed Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas.

Mrs. Smith, 59, who was brought to the GOP National Committee last Feburary by Bush, would be the first woman to head the Republican party. The wife of a doctor, she has three children.

'Complications' fatal; Army chief of staff's family at his bedside

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Army Chief of Staff Creighton W. Abrams, who led the relief column to Bastogne in the Battle of the Bulge of 1944 and organized the end of U.S. troop involvement in Vietnam, died early today just 11 days short of his 60th birthday.

The Army said Abrams died at 12:35 a.m. EDT with his wife, Julia, and five of their six children at his bedside in Walter Reed Army Hospital. Two of their sons are active Army officers.

An Army chaplin, Col. John D. Benson, a monsignor in a Roman Catholic church and a close family friend, also was at Abrams' bedside and administered the last rites of the church. Abrams was converted to Catholicism, his wife's faith, in 1970 while serving in Vietnam.

Abrams died of "complications that developed during recovery from the surgical removal of a cancerous lung," the Army said. The lung was removed 12 weeks ago and Abrams had returned to his desk on a part-time basis before being readmitted to Walter Reed three weeks ago when two blood clots were discovered—one in his leg and the other in his remaining lung.

A spokesman described the principal "complication" as the strain placed on Abram's heart, which had to pump much harder to force blood past the clot so it could reach the remaining lung.

Gruff and with a cigar perpetually clasped in his lips, Abrams always looked the role of the crusty old general. But his greatest passion was classical music.

Abrams was the 26th Army chief of staff since the post was created in 1903. He was the first to die in office. His death came exactly ten years after he was promoted to four star rank —a long time to serve in so high a rank.

Abrams will be buried at Arlington National Cemetery which adjoins Ft. Myer, where he lived. Funeral arrangements were to be announced later in the day.

During Abram's hospitalization, the Army vice chief of staff, Gen. Frederick C. Weyand, subbed for his ailing boss on the Joint Chiefs of Staff and in command of Army forces.

GEN. CREIGHTON ABRAMS

Weyand, exactly two years younger than Abrams, immediately took over as acting chief of staff until President Ford names a successor. Weyand was believed to have a good chance of being named to succeed Abrams.

In June, as Abrams was recovering from his lung operation, Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger called the general "one of our authentic national heroes." He lamented that the pinnacle of Abrams career came in the Vietnam war, a war Americans would prefer to forget.

"In different times and in circumstances of a different conflict than Southeast Asia, I think it would be recognized universally by the American public and he would be universally acclaimed as one of America's greatest soldiers and heroes," Schlesinger said.

When he died, Abrams still had two more years to serve of his four-year term as chief of staff.

Firm recalling 42,500 trucks, school buses

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp. today said it has begun recalling 42,000 medium-duty trucks and 500 school buses because of possible defects that could result in a full or partial loss of braking power.

GM said the Chevrolet and GMC medium-duty trucks were built in the first six months of the year. There have been no accidents or injuries as a result of the problem which was discovered during a routine assembly line inspection.

A GM spokesman said the possibility exists that one or more of the hydraulic brake hoses may have been manufactured with an end fitting which was not properly attached to the hose. This could result in hose separation and the loss of brake fluid.

On vehicles equipped with dual braking systems, only a partial loss would be suffered. However, failure of the hose in a single braking system could result in complete loss of brake fluid and braking action.

Pilot held at knifepoint

Hijacker surrenders, ends 4-hour airport drama

BOSTON (UPI) — A young man today held an Eastern Airlines captain at knifepoint for almost four hours at Logan International Airport and demanded $10,000 ransom "for the poor people of Roxbury" before surrendering.

The hijacker was seized at the plane by law enforcement officials who immediately frisked him, handcuffed him and took him away.

Officials said the captain, a much decorated Navy veteran of World War II, was not injured.

There were no passengers or other crew members aboard the DC9 shuttle from New York.

A Federal Aviation Administration spokesman said the money was placed on the runway in sight of the hijacker as he demanded, but it was not certain if he picked it up.

The hijacker, using the plane's two-way radio, was in radio communication with the airport tower.

Officials said the plane requested and received permission to take-off. The captured captain, L.E. Whittaker, asked that another pilot be put aboard the plane.

A spokesman for Eastern said the man permitted the other 95 passengers to leave along with four crew members first officer J. L. Kincaid and flight attendants C. M. Drew, F. G. Daniels, and Y. T. Furniss.

He said the man remained aboard the plane, flight No. 1160, with Captain Whittaker. The plane had left New York's LaGuardia Airport at 7 a.m. and arrived at Logan at 7:40 a.m.

"Apparently he didn't make his presence known until the passengers were starting to leave the plane. He ordered the plane to be emptied. We understand the man is a young black male with a razor or knife," the spokesman said.

A State Police cruiser at first parked about 100 yards behind the plane. It later backed off about 200 or 300 yards.

The airport was closed to all incoming and outgoing traffic. A large section of Eastern Airlines terminal was evacuated.

A Massachusetts Port Authority spokesman said it was "an apparent hijacking."

Air heroes run out of gas on way to airport

FARNBOROUGH, England (UPI) — The two American fliers who jetted across the Atlantic in a record one hour and 56 minutes, slowing only to refuel in mid-air, ran out of gas driving to the Farnborough Air Show Tuesday.

Maj. Jim Sullivan and Maj. Noel Widdifield, and their wives found themselves with an empty tank about a mile from the airfield.

A passing motorist, Peggy Ward of Farnborough, gave them a lift.

On the flight to Farnborough Sunday, Sullivan and Widdifield averaged 1,817 miles an hour in the SR71 Blackbird and hit a top speed of more than 2,000 miles an hour.

Mansfield to seek return of wage-price controls

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said today he will make a strong "pitch" for reinstituting wage and price controls at the economic summit meeting later this month.

Mansfield also warned the administration not to wait too long before deciding on some course of action to deal with inflation and a recessionary economy.

"I don't think the times will allow that waiting," the Montana Democrat told reporters. "We just can't wait too long before some action is taken because inflation and unemployment are increasing ... and show no signs of being alleviated up to this time. I would hope that everything would not be delayed until the summit."

Mansfield said he thought President Ford would "hold himself flexible" on the question of wage and price controls and "meet the changing circumstances with reconsideration" of them should the need arise. Ford has said he opposes a return to controls.

Mansfield said the controls should be a "major consideration" of the President and added "I will make a pitch for wage and price controls even if labor and management are opposed.

The White House economic summit meeting of congressional, administration and economic leaders is scheduled for Sept. 27 and 28.

Investor pessimism spreads as stock prices drop again

NEW YORK (UPI) — Inflationary fears on Wall Street today sent prices sharply lower on the New York Stock Exchange in moderate trading.

In the first hour, the Dow Jones industrial average tumbled more than 16 points as investor pessimism spread over the lack of concrete measures to fight the price spiral.

Before the market opened, the Senate Democratic Leader, Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., urged Congress to give President Ford all the tools he needs to fight inflation because the current economic situation has "all the earmarks of the 1930's."

Fueling Wall Street worries, Roy Ash, director of the Office of Management and Budget, Tuesday said it will be at least two years before inflation simmers down to "reasonable rates." This grim prophecy deflated an early session continuation of Friday's rally and set the stage for a loss of 15.25 points in the Dow at the close of Tuesday's session.

First National City Bank's announcement it plans to raise interest charges on consumer installment loans —including auto loans —also dampened investors' spirits. Soaring interest rates, which reflect rampant inflation, have been a major market depressant in recent months.

Losses ranged to more than three points in some issues, as the decline carried most of the list lower.

City clerk uses his head, saves payroll

MESSINA, Sicily (UPI) — When two men held him up at gunpoint in the street, city clerk Pasquale Raccolta handed over his briefcase. The robbers grabbed it and fled.

Raccolta told police not to worry. All the briefcase contained was trash. He was carrying $6,800 in payroll cash, too, but he kept the money rolled-up in newspaper under his left arm.

Record cold threatens Midwest crops

By United Press International

Record low temperatures were set across the northern Midwest Tuesday, nipping crops already slowed in maturing by this summer's drought, but agriculture officials said it was too early to assess crop damage.

Temperatures plunged to 26 degrees in parts of Minnesota, 27 at North Plattt, Neb., and to freezing or below in northwest Iowa.

"It has hurt some," said Iowa Agriculture Secretary Robert Lounsberry, "but whether it's going to be widespead damage, it's hard to tell yet."

Both Lounsberry and Minnesota agricultural officials said soybeans appeared to suffer more than corn from the sudden frost and freeze.

Minnesota officials said feed crops and vegetables were damaged in much of the state, but the degree of damage would depend on the length of the cold and its severity.

Although high temperatures reached only in the 50s as far south as Nashville, Tenn., Tuesday, the National Weather Service was optimistic a warming trend would start today.

Warm air moved northward along the Atlantic Seaboard late Tuesday, setting off rainstorms and showers as it met with a cold air mass across the Appalachians.

Severe thunderstorms in the New York area caused scattered power outages and forced motorists on suburban highways to abandon their cars as flood waters rose to five and six feet in some low spots.

A parkway police spokesman said officers using a rowboat, a 20-foot whaling boat and a "big rescue truck" plucked at least 50 persons from the roofs of cars near Hawthorne, N.Y.

The National Weather service said 2.94 inches of rain fell on New York City from late afternoon through 1 a.m. Nearly an inch came down from 7 to 7:15 p.m.

Two houses in Passaic, N.J., were struck by lightning, caught fire and burned up.

Record low temperatures for so early in the season were set Tuesday in the upper and middle Mississippi Valley and on the northern Plains, and new low marks for the date were established in the upper Great Lakes region.

The United States Agriculture Department had warned earlier that crops had been slowed by heat and lack of moisture this summer, and an early fall could reduce crop yields.

Record lows included 27 at North Platte, 31 at Sioux Falls, S.D., 32 at Minneapolis, Minn., 34 at Omaha, Neb., 41 at Dubuque, Iowa, 45 at Kansas City and St. Louis, Mo., 47 at Tulsa, Okla., and 55 at Midland, Tex.

On deferring federal pay raises

GOP leader urges public support of Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Assistant Senate Republican leader Robert P. Griffin said today the public should support President Ford's attempt to defer raises for 3.5 million federal workers by contacting congressmen to counter lobbying by government employe unions.

"Everyone who supports President Ford in that effort to do something about that pay raise for federal workers ought to be contacting their congressman because the union officials who represent federal workers are already lobbying very hard and are putting a lot of pressure on," Griffin said. "That will be a real test for Congress to see whether they're going to support the President in the fight against inflation."

Griffin's comments followed a promise by Sen. Gale W. McGee, D-Wyo., chairman of the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee, to seek a Senate vote overturning Ford's weekend decision to defer the pay raise from Oct. 1 to Jan. 1. The action, which affects white collar and military workers, would save the government $700 million.

Griffin, who was interviewed on the CBS Morning News, predicted a tight congressional fight over the pay raise deferral.

"I think it's going to be very close, frankly," Griffin said.

"I know it's asking federal workers to sacrifice to delay a pay raise. But I think everybody's got to sacrifice, not just the housewife who goes to the grocery store, if we're going to really lick inflation."

LOOTERS LEAVE STORE

Youngsters prepare to leap from a store window in Newark, N.J., after helping themselves to food during disturbances over Labor Day weekend. The disturbances were the first major outbreak of civil disorder in Newark in seven years. The trouble, which left numerous stores in shambles, started when police tried to break up illegal dice games in a park where a Spanish festival was under way.

Used lumber controversy sparks council reaction

If lumber from a condemned building is going to be used for a new structure in Montclair, it will have to be graded and approved by a qualified agent.

City Council took this stand Tuesday night in delaying final action on a builder's appeal to a city-ordered halt to the construction of the building.

Eugene Kight protested "red-tagging" of the 10-by 21-foot structure by the city Department of Community Development which stops any additional construction on the building at 5533 Vernon St.

The city staff stopped construction when it was discovered that Kight was using ungraded wood taken from a condemned house on Holt Boulevard The Holt Boulevard house, also owned by Kight, has been condemned and declared unfit for human habitation.

Charles Regalia of the city staff stated, "It is the position and opinion of the city community development department that this particular section in the building code (governing grading of wood) is necessary in order to meet requirements for the health, safety and welfare of the public."

Kight claimed procrastination and repeated changes in standards by the city department from July 1973 when the building permit was issued to the inspections by city staff in February.

Councilman Tom McClure commented that grading this used lumber was not within the "realm of reality." He also accused Kight of being "grievously at fault for not calling for a building inspector" and the "creator of your own problems." Some of the responsibility for this mistake must be assumed by the city staff on the matter of communication and follow-through, he added.

Tom Mauk, assistant city administrator, said that city building officials could not give a qualified grading on the wood, that this must be done by a qualified grader, according to the building code.

Regalia added, "It would be a disservice to the city if we were to grade this lumber with unqualified officials. This does not adhere to the code. We are talking about the integrity of the code."

Harold Staw of Claremont suggested contacting a Los Angeles firm specializing in the sale of used lumber for information on obtaining a grader. Eugene Demchuk, city attorney, agreed with the suggestions of Regalia and Staw.

McClure then moved that the city staff select pieces of the wood and contact the Los Angeles firm for a grader. "If it doesn't meet standard grades, then the whole thing comes down," he noted.

The motion passed 5-0.

Cigarette is blamed in $1,700 house fire

Pomona firemen believe a cigarette left in a couch started a fire that caused $1,700 damage early this morning to the residence of Carol North, 672 E. 10th St.

The fire destroyed the couch and carpeting and burned the floor in the livingroom of the house. Smoke damage was heavy throughout the structure, firemen said.

Gems taken in $1,546 burglary

Ronald Bindenagel of 1710 Albright St., Upland, Monday told police that burglars had broken into his home through a kitchen window and made off with jewelry, silver and several shotguns with a total value of $1,546.

Bindenagel said he returned to his home about 3 p.m. Monday to discover the burglary.

Innocent plea entered in egg ranch shooting

Ayala, 1274 W. Second St., Pomona, was arraigned before Judge Francis J. Garvey who scheduled a pretrial hearing Oct. 9.

Ayala was accused of assault with a deadly weapon and robbery in connection with the holdup of the Quaas Egg Ranch at 3331 Pomona Blvd., in which Bernard Volkas, 57, was shot in the chest. The victim testified later at Ayala's preliminary hearing in Pomona Municiapl Court. Ayala was arrested several days after the incident.

Accepts $256,000 U.S. grant for jobless fund

Pomona City Council Tuesday night authorized an agreement with Los Angeles County to accept $256,000 in federal funds for the creation of public service jobs for the city's under-employed and unemployed.

Funds would be made available under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) with the county acting as prime agent and Pomona acting in the capacity of employing agency.

City officials said a portion of the funds would be shared with the Pomona Unified School District, Cal Poly and the Valley Association of Cities.

On other matters, the council awarded two public works contracts to the Virgin Roof Co. of Ontario.

the reroofing of the Westmont Park

The other contract, for $5,350, is for Community Building. The firm was low bidder on both projects.

Pelota Park paving to cost city $34,916

The J & R Sprinkler Co. of Van Nuys was awarded a $34,916 contract by the City Council Tuesday night to pave the parking lot at Pelota Park in La Verne, but not before some accusations by a disgruntled unsuccessful bidder.

Robert Perkins of La Verne, who had offered to do the job for about $2,800 more, charged that there was "some hanky-panky going on, and I'd like to know what it is."

He said he had a copy of a telegram sent to the city by J & R, asking that the Perkins bid be rejected because it had been improperly prepared.

Acting City Atty. Terry Brutocao ruled that though Perkins' bid was not on a standard bid form, it was acceptable.

Perkins suggested that there might be a close tie between J & R and Ray Kaldenbach, director of the Parks and Recreation Department.

But Kaldenbach denied the accusation, contending that he had never even heard of the Van Nuys company until the Pelota project came up.

J & R beat out A. R. Gray, the next lowest bidder, by less than $50. Six paving contractors had sought the job.

Heated radiator scalds man, 19

A young Upland man was scalded in Claremont Tuesday evening when steam and boiling water gushed from the radiator of an overheated automobile.

Jimmy L. McGuire, 19, of 1334 W. Foothill Blvd., was released after treatment at Pomona Valley Community Hospital. Authorities said his face was blistered.

Incorporated doctors get income tax breaks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Half the nation's office-based doctors are earning more than $42,700 a year, even after business expenses are deducted, according to a congressional study.

But for the growing number of incorporate doctors, the median income —half above, half below —was $62,500 in 1972, according to the report on physicians' fees and incomes prepared by the Congressional Research Service of the Library of Congress. It was released Tuesday.

Incorporating their practices gives the doctors certain tax breaks. In recent years the number of incorporated doctors had quadrupled, perhaps as a consequence of Internal Revenue Service rulings which allowed the tax breaks, said the report.

For some specialty groups, incomes may be even higher. One study cited in the report showed that 15 per cent of physician radiologists and pathologists had incomes from hospitals in excess of $89,000 in 1972.

In comparison with the $42,700 income for office doctors, the 1972 family income was $11,116. Chemists averaged $18,581, engineers $18,268 and lawyers $23,448, the report said. The 1973 doctor income also was estimated at $42,700.

Physicians' fees, which even during mandatory economic controls were increasing at an annual rate of 4.1 per cent, have increased 50 per cent faster than the overall Consumer Price Index since controls were lifted last April 30. Latest government figures show the annual rate of increase for May through July was 19.1 per cent.

2 women hurt in 2-car crash

Two Cucamonga women were injured Tuesday morning when two cars collided in the intersection of Mission Boulevard and Archibald Avenue in Ontario.

Joyce Blenda Harts, 22, and Rose Harts, 20, both of 8334 Turner Ave., Cucamonga, were treated at Ontario Community Hospital and later released.

Police said a car driven by Gene Arlen Brasel, 41, of 758 W. J St., Ontario, eastbound on Mission Boulevard crashed into the second car driven by Joyce Harts. The impact pushed one of the vehicles into a small ditch off Mission Boulevard. Brasel was not injured.

Maddox a loser; 2 other comeback hopefuls win

United Press International

Workhorse George Busbee trampled showhorse Lester Maddox in Georgia, but two other former governors won comeback primaries in North Dakota and Nevada Tuesday.

Maddox' loss of the Democratic nomination for governor was seen as another victory for "New South" politics over the region's traditional mix of cornpone and white supremacy.

But the victories of former Govs. William Guy in North Dakota and Paul Laxalt in Nevada in Senate primaries seemed to discount any demand for "new faces" by voters in 1974.

As for the surge of women in politics this year, one of two seeking statewide office made it over the primary hurdle.

Shirley Crumpler was leading for the Republican nomination for governor in Nevada, but Maya Miller failed in the state's Democratic senatorial primary.

Maddox, a fried chicken merchant who vaulted to the governorship in 1966 after making headlines for his fiery opposition to desegregating his clientele, had been warming the lieutenant governor's seat since 1970.

Maddox led a large field of candidates in the Aug. 13 primary —winning 35 per cent of the vote to 22 for Busbee.

But Busbee, Democratic leader in the Georgia House, crushed the Maddox comeback by casting himself as a reliable "workhorse" who could do a better job than a flamboyant "showhorse."

Busbee's victory seemed to end the political career of the volatile Maddox, who liked to give away pick handles as a symbol of his opposition to racial integration and who amused himself by riding a bicycle backwards at public appearances.

Maddox had softened his hard line on racial matters in recent years, but at the end of the runoff campaign he claimed Busbee was an ally of Julian Bond, the black Georgia legislator who in 1967 was denied a seat in the House because of antiwar statements.

Actually, Busbee had voted to deny Bond his seat, which was restored by court action.

There was additional irony. Busbee, as House majority leader, played a key role in the selection of Maddox as governor by the legislature when the 1966 general election failed to produce a majority winner.

Busbee's Republican opponent in November will be either Ronnie Thompson, the law-and-order mayor of Macon, or Harold Dye, a political newcomer who gave him a hot race.

There also was a political oddity in North Dakota, where Guy won the Democratic senatorial nomination in a primary contest with Robert McCarney.

McCarney, then a Republican, lost to Guy in the 1968 governorship election and switched parties in 1971. Guy now must run against Republican Sen. Milton Young, who has held his seat since 1945 and was unopposed for renomination.

The third former governor, Laxalt, was an easy victor in his quest for Nevada's GOP senatorial nomination for the seat now held by retiring Democratic Sen. Alan Bible, who has held the seat for 20 years.

Nevada voters tend to keep their two senators and congressman in Washington for long terms so seniority will make up for their few votes.

Laxalt, who dropped out of politics after reviving the Republican state party and serving one term in the state house, beat James Talbert and Sam Cavnar.

The Democratic Senate candidate in Nevada will be Lt. Gov. Harry Reid, who defeated Ms. Miller and tax consultant Dan Miller.

Democratic Gov. Mike O'Callaghan had no trouble winning renomination over five challengers in his bid for a second term.

He will be heavily favored to beat Mrs. Crumpler, the operator of a tax and real estate service, who was leading for the GOP nomination in a contest with three men.

Opposition from NATO nations looms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford intends to nominate White House Chief of Staff Alexander M. Haig Jr. as commander of allied forces in Europe, sources said today.

Administration officials said it would be "logical" for Haig, a four star general with a wide backround in foreign affairs, to replace Gen. Andrew Goodpaster as the European allied commander.

In Brussels, Dutch government sources said the U.S. State Department told the Netherlands and other allied nations last Friday that Ford intends to nominate Haig as Supreme Allied Commander in Europe and commander of the 300,000 U.S. troops based in Europe.

Donald Rumsfeld, the U.S. ambassador to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) unexpectedly arrived at the White House shortly after 10:30 a.m. EDT, raising speculation that an announcement would be made shortly.

The sources said Dutch Foreign Minister Max van der Stoel opposes the appointment because of Haig's long association with former President Nixon, and has begun sounding out his European allies on the possibility of joint opposition to it.

The nomination must be ratified by the other 14 North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations —usually an automatic procedure.

Sources elsewhere indicated thtt Republican National Chairman George Bush was in line for a high-level position at the White House, possibly chief of staff.

J. F. terHorst, White House press secretary, has said repeatedly that President Ford asked Haig "to stay aboard for the duration." The duration, terHorst said, "is indefinite."

The post of supreme allied commander was a "strong possibility" for Haig, officials said. But they noted that every member of NATO must approve the appointment first and it must be unanimous.

It could not be determined at this stage whether Haig's name had been submitted to each NATO member for consent. The position has always been held by an American military officer, starting with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

TerHorst would neither confirm nor deny that such an appointment is in the works for Haig.

Before Nixon appointed him White House chief of staff after the forced resignation of H.R. Halderman, Haig had served briefly as the Army's vice chief of staff. He also was deputy to Henry Kissinerg on the National Security Council before Kissinger became secretary of state. Haig retired reluctantly from the Army in August, 1973, officials said, adding that "his commander and chief (Nixon) had ordered him to do so and he had no alternative."

Dean goes to jail; silent about Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John W. Dean III went to jail Tuesday but wouldn't say whether he believes Richard M. Nixon should go too.

"I have no comment on that," he said.

Walking his last 30 yards in freedom surrounded by federal marshals who eased the way through a throng of clamoring reporters, Dean surrendered to begin a one-to-four year prison term for his role in the Watergate cover-up.

Eyes shaded by dark glasses, head bowed, the 35-year-old Dean, whose testimony broke open the Watergate scandal which eventually swept Nixon from office, entered the U.S. courthouse and was whisked away a few minutes later to an undisclosed site near the capital to begin his sentence.

He was to be kept close to Washington —possibly at Ft. Holabird in Baltimore —until the conclusion of the cover-up trial of six former White House colleagues, at which he will be a star prosecution witness.

Former White House or Nixon campaign aides Jonn N. Mitchell, H.R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman, Gordon C. Strachan, Robert C. Mardian and Kenneth W. Parkinson are to go on trial Sept. 30.

When his witness duties are over, the balance of Dean's term probably will be served at a minimum-security federal prison at Lompoc, Calif.

He surrendered alone and empty-handed, unlike other Watergate figures who brought wives, lawyers and suitcases with them when they turned themselves in to go to prison.

Appeals court rules Finch should get doctor's license

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Despite the possibility of further court action by a state agency, convicted murderer Dr. R. Bernard Finch is optimistic he can now practice medicine.

The Missouri Court of Appeals ruled Tuesday Finch, who spent 12 years in a California prison for killing his wife, should be granted a license to practice medicine.

For three years, the 58-year-old Finch has battled with the Missouri Board of Registration for the Healing Arts to get a license.

During that time, he has served as an X-ray technician in the small town of El Dorado Springs, Mo. The town of 3,300 about 100 miles south of Kansas City adopted Finch after his parole because the residents needed a doctor.

"The reality of the decision hasn't really hit any of us here yet," an elated Finch said when contacted at Cedar County Memorial Hospital. "We're so used to fighting and hoping for the future that it's hard to realize the fight's over and the future may be here."

Tht state board allowed Finch to take the licensing examination under a court order, but the agency refused him a license after he passed the test.

Board officials said Tuesday they would attempt to challenge the appeals court ruling, although it was doubtful such an appeal would succeed.

The decision cannot be appealed to the Missouri Supreme Court, and the board can only ask for a rehearing or for special permission to appeal. The appeals court can deny such requests.

"I don't know if we'll file for a rehearing before the appeals court or if we will try to go to the state supreme court," Board Chairman John Haley said. "But we'll definitely appeal it."

Finch was a prosperous surgeon in 1959 when his wife, Barbara Jean, 33, was shot on the back lawn of their West Covina, Calif., home. Finch was charged along with a receptionist in his hospital, Carole Tregoff, then 24, with planning and committing the murder.

After two sensational trials ended in hung juries, the two were convicted and sentenced to life in prison. Finch's legal defense cost him his entire estate.

But Finch became a model inmate while in prison, and he was paroled in October, 1971. At that time he promised to dedicate his life to medicine.

Massacre report probe by U.N. asked

By United Press International

Turkish Cypriot leaders asked the United Nations today to investigate reports of a new massacre on Cyprus. Greek Cypriot officials accused the Turks of trying to cover up their own atrocities, but agreed to the inquiry.

A Turkish Cypriot spokesman said Greek Cypriot national guardsmen gunned down up to 49 men in a village along the island's southern coast.

"We have asked the United Nations to investigate, but Greek Cypriot police will not allow them near the site," the spokesman said.

A Greek Cypriot spokesman charged the Turks with a "desperate effort to divert the attention of world opinion from the suffering and evils brought about by their invasion of Cyprus."

The spokesman said, however, the Greek Cypriots are "willing to provide any facility to the United Nations for an on-the-spot investigation, in the presence of representatives from both sides."

Turkish troops in Maratha, a village on the war-torn island's eastern coast, buried 91 Turkish Cypriot massacre victims Tuesday in a common grave, using a bulldozer to cover the bodies with stony earth.

Turkish troops moved the bodies from the local garbage dump to a pit gouged into the stony earth of the village cemetery. An army bulldozer then covered the common grave with soil and pushed a huge stone into place to mark the spot.

Officials mystified by noxious gas in downtown L.A.; 28 ill

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Fire officials today puzzled over an unidentified noxious gas that filled two floors of a downtown clothing store Tuesday, sending 28 persons to the hospital.

Eight of the victims overcome by fumes were found unconscious, and others were dizzy and nauseated when firemen responded to the alarm at the Harris and Frank clothing store.

Most victims were taken to three hospitals for treatment and examination, but none was reported in serious condition and all were released within hours.

"We still don't know what kind of gas it was or where it came from," said a spokesman for the fire department.

Three firemen who were not wearing gas masks were among those overcome by the fumes.

A fire spokesman said the clothing store would be open for business today, but investigators would search the second and third floors for clues to the gas.

Doctors treating the victims also will be running tests to determine what type of gas it was, the spokesman said.

"One possibility is carbon monoxide," the spokesman said.

He said machines were running jackhammers outside the building and that "carbon monoxide could have escaped into the air conditioning system."

Mayor Daley back; may seek 6th term

CHICAGO (UPI) — A little thinner and a little grayer, Mayor Richard J. Daley returned to his office for the first time in four months Monday and announced in a voice softer than his usual rasp that he may seek a sixth term.

The 72-year-old mayor also said he would try to land the Democratic and Republican national conventions for Chicago in 1976.

Daley has been recuperating from arterial surgery performed last June to prevent a recurrence of a mild stroke he suffered in May. The mayor said he has lost 25 to 30 pounds and is "feeling fine."

He took his familiar stance before reporters and television cameras and took on all comers.

"Hiya gentlemen," he said as he strode confidently to the rostrum. "It's great to be back."

His usually raspy voice had taken on a new softness as a result of the surgery performed on his neck, but he appeared quite fit. His answers were as rapid-fire as the questions.

The mayor said his surgery had been successful, but he would seek to assess his strength before committing himself to a campaign for the 1975 mayoral race.

He said his doctors were leaving the decision entirely up to him.

"The state of my health is very good, but the mayor's job is an arduous job. I'll try it and let you know a little later," Daley said when asked if he would seek another term.

Several Democrats have announced plans to seek the Democratic mayoral nomination, but political observers feel that the mayor, barring any major medical problems, can have the job for the asking.

Honors picket line

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Carroll O'Connor, television's Archie Bunker of the "All in the Family" series, refused to report to work for the third week Tuesday by observing a picket line in a CBS-TV labor dispute..

O'Connor, who resolved his own contract problems with the producers earlier this summer, has been honoring a picket line of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers which went up Aug. 21.

Earlier this summer, O'Connor missed the first two shows of the new season in a contract and salary dispute with Tandem Productions, makers of the series.

Keels have baby

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Singer-actor Howard Keel and his wife, Judy, were parents today of an 8-pound, 8-ounce girl named Leslie.

Keel, 54, who starred in "Showboat," "Annie Get Your Gun" and "Kiss Me Kate," was appearing in the musical "I Do, I Do," in Seattle, Wash. He flew to Los Angeles for the birth at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital Sunday night.

Lennon rebuffed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former Beatle John Lennon Tuesday lost another round in his fight to stay in the U.S.

Federal Judge Richard Owen barred the singer until at least Oct. 11 from taking sworn statements from Immigration authorities concerning the possible involvement of former Attorney General John Mitchell in the deportation proceedings.

Lennon says he was ordered deported to his native England by Mitchell in March, 1972, because of what he said were rumors that Lennon was to lead an anti-war rally at the Republican National Convention.

Japan-Canada meet

OTTAWA (UPI) — Japanese Prime Minister Takuei Tanaka will meet officially twice and informally several times with Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau during his Sept. 23-26 official visit to Canada, it was announced Tuesday.

The prime minister's office said Tanaka would arrive in Ottawa Sept. 23 following a brief rest to Bermuda. He will travel to Toronto Sept. 25 and move on to Vancouver, and will leave Canada Sept. 26.

Financing, declining enrollment, collective bargaining

Pressing problems in California education

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Long-term solutions must be found for the pressing problems of school financing, collective bargaining and declining enrollments to protect the future well-being of California's public school system, the state's top educator said today.

But state Superintendent of Public Instruction Wilson Riles also said "it is clear that we can meet these pressing problems" because of California's past record of "educational achievement."

"We must act as rapidly as possible to provide relief to our school districts," Riles warned in a report on the "State of Education" in California.

The superintendent called for legislation to enable school districts to cope with "runaway inflation" in order to "meet risirg costs without increasing taxes."

He termed as a "temporary relief measure" legislation before Governor Ronald Reagan that would increase state aid to schools to meet operational costs driven up by inflation. He said legislation should include a "realistic inflation index which will more accurately relate to economic trends."

Riles also said legislation must be created that will be in "full compliance" with the requirements set forth in the historic Serrano opinion of 1971 by the state Supreme Court.

The ruling, which was used in a 1974 Superior Court decision, decreed that no substantial disparities can exist in educational expenditures between school districts based on the assessed valuation of real property.

"Whatever method we use to meet the requirements of Serrano, it must not be a method that equalizes poverty," Riles said. "We must improve the support of education, not make all districts equally poor."

Riles termed the issue of collective bargaining is "potentially the most explosive problem" facing education in the state.

He said his office would "do whatever is in our power to help keep schools open and functioning" and pleaded with teachers and administrators not to "abdicate our responsibility" to meet the needs of California education.

The superintendent said declining enrollments "are not going to be resolved with simple solutions." He said school districts are facing problems of reduced staff needs, increased pupil costs, and adjusted transportation services and educational program offerings.

"We can use this period as a time to consolidate, to plan for the future, or we can panic and make unwise decisions which will hamper us for decades," Riles said. "We intend to choose the first course of action."

Riles pointed to successful programs for early childhood education, handicapped and bilingual education, development centers and year round schooling. As a measure of the success, Riles said many districts had reversed or halted a downward trend in achievement levels.

Tough row to hoe, especially on the back

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Attorneys for farm workers told the state Supreme Court today that use of the short-handled hoe produced "30 to 35-year-old farm workers with 70-year-old backs."

Maurice Jourdane, of California Rural Legal Assistance, told the court that 11 doctors had testified that using the hoe with a 10 to 14-inch handle in a stooped position caused permanent disability. He asked the court to prohibit this use.

Asher Rubin told the high court that no "real alternative" existed for the use of the hoe on such crops as lettuce and sugar beets.

An attorney for grower Bud Angle, Ind., said that the question was a health problem rather than an issue to be brought to the court under the "unsafe tool" provisions of the Division of Industrial Safety.

The Industrial Safety Board held hearings in San Francisco, Salinas and El Centro after the use of the short-handled hoe was challenged in the fall of 1972 and concluded that the tool itself was not inherently dangerous. This interpretation was challenged by farm workers and the CRLA and taken to the Supreme Court.

The hoe is used extensively by migrant farm workers, and they must bend over close to the ground to use it. Its foes say some field bosses like the hoe because it helps them spot workers who are not working.

Its defenders say the hoe is more accurate and faster than a long-handled hoe for thinning and weeding crops.

Crash train speeding; 2 in crew held

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia (UPI) — The prosecutor's office lodged charges of negligence today against the two engineers of an express train bound for Germany which crashed at high speed Friday as it approached the main railroad station in Zagreb.

The official death toll stood today at 122 but officials said this could go higher as the search for bodies continued. More than 150 people were injured.

The engineers, Nikola Knezevic, 41, and Stjepan Varga, 40, could be sentenced to up to 20 years in prison if convicted.

Blood tests showed the two men had not been drinking, police sources said.

The prosecutor's office said investigation showed the express, mainly carrying Yugoslav migrant workers and their families back to Germany from vacation, was moving at more than 55 miles an hour when it crashed. The speed limit for that stretch of track is 30 miles an hour.

The office said the train went through a mandatory stop signal. A check of the diesel engine's brakes showed them to be in working order. The drivers had blamed brake failure for the crash.

Man drowns at Green Valley

SAN BERNARDINO (UPI) — A 30-year-old Hungtington Beach man drowned in Green Valley Lake in the San Bernardino hills early Monday after a canoe he was in capsized.

Authorities identified the victim as Harold M. Hunt.

A companion, Walt Eklund, tried to save Hunt, authorities said, but was unable to get the man out of the lake. Eklund swam to shore and called for help.

She knows how it feels to be scared, jobless

Former prison inmate finds jobs for parolees

By DOUGLAS STANGLIN

DALLAS (UPI) — Jan walked out of the Texas State Penitentiary in 1969. She was 30 years old, frightened and jobless.

"When I first came home, I went from one job interview to another. As soon as I filled out the part about prior felony convictions, I never heard about the job again.

"I know how it feels —I washed dogs for a dollar a day," she said.

Jan, who prefers to keep her last name anonymous, set up the Ex Employment Agency in August, lining up employers who will offer a job to convicts on parole.

"I will get them a job to come home to," she said. "I have everything from cooking sandwiches, to working heavy duty equipment, air conditioning repair, working in a factory —every single kind of job."

Jan, a large woman who wears rhinestone studded glasses, filled three jobs in the first week. She now has 43 companies on her list who say they will hire an ex-con.

For Jan, who served a year in prison for passing worthless checks, the biggest problem keeping her business together is money. The agency operates strictly on a voluntary basis because Jan doesn't have the funds to apply for a state license. The agency depends on donations but has not been able to get the financial help needed.

"This has made me a little bit angry," she said. "People have been hollering to do something for the ex-con, rehabilitate the convict. They're supposed to come out of Huntsville (state prison) rehabilitated, but it doesn't stop there."

Jan, who has a 10-year-old daughter, said she offers many ex-convicts their first chance to put down roots.

"When they come in, if they don't have a dime, I take money out of contributions that have been sent in, and give them gas money, bus fare money or cigarette money. I don't care what the cancer society says, I'd rather give them cigarette money than have then steal a package."

She said the former inmates usually are apprehensive about job hunting.

"They're nervous and scared, afraid they're going to be asked if they've been in trouble, but they know when they walk in the door here, that I know they've been in trouble, and that the employers know it and take them anyway.

"The Ex Employment Agency is their hope, when they walk in the door they have hope, and a little bit of confidence."

Jan said for many prospective parolees, having a job waiting on the outside is the only way they can get out of prison.

"Nine out of 10 don't make it unless they have a job."

He's buying railroads; 'not dying'

JOLIET, Ill. (UPI) — Craig Burroughs is not another magnate like Cornelius Vanderbilt, but his firm is buying short railroads because he thinks the trains are in for a golden age.

At a time when most railroad companies are complaining about too much trackage and not enough profit, Burroughs' Trans Action Associates has bought two branch lines and is negotiating for others.

"I don't mind being called an idealist," said Burroughs, 32.

"This is a very misunderstood field of endeavor. People have their stereotype opinion of the railroads. When they could no longer ride faster trains, they thought railroads were dying.

"I think the golden age for railroads is ahead of us."

Burroughs is not squaring off for a fight over customers with the nation's major railroads. But he is buying branch lines in rural areas that have been abandoned or neglected.

The firm three years ago bought the Louisiana Midland Railroad Corp., which spans the 76 miles from Vidalia to Packton, La.

Burroughs said the firm's business has doubled and one pulpwood shipping firm has even eliminated using trucks and completely relies on the railroad.

The secret?

"Shipper satisfaction, pure and simple," he said.

"We've increased the frequency of service and changed the schedules to fit the needs of our customers."

He said the railroad is flexible enough to alter its schedule or run a special train to accommodate a shipper faced with the need to speed up an emergency shipment.

"We've become time competitive," he said, adding that the firm also offers prices lower or competitive with other railroads or trucking firms.

Trans Action recently purchased a 28-mile railroad branch in southeastern Iowa, but the firm is still repairing the tracks. It also is negotiating for a 74-mile line in Illinois.

Burroughs admits initial repair costs of the old, often long-abandoned lines as well as the firm's inability to buy fuel and supplies in bulk cut into profits.

However, he says, "It is definitely not a daydream," he said. "There is a need for preserving valuable transportation services to areas that otherwise would not have them."

Teller passes robber's test, another flunks

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (UPI) — A teller passed a robber's "test" and saved her bank some money. A second teller failed and her bank lost $900.

Police said a holdup man entered a Wells Fargo branch bank and gave the teller a note which read: "Robbery." The teller dumped a wad of $20 bills in a cubby hole and told him: "No way."

He replied, "I'm just a security agent and we go around testing tellers." He added: "You have just won $100 for bravery. What is your name? Write it down."

The teller complied, and the robber walked away.

The note trick worked in a nearby United California Bank. The teller gave him $900 and he fled.

Oppressed minority group

Child abuse: blame on family, government

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A report presented to the American Psychological Association convention blames both the family and government structures for child abuse in America.

"Children constitute the most oppressed minority group in this country," Dr. Peter DeCourcy said Monday. "It is a minority group whose members are regularly humiliated, beaten, mutiliated, killed or sexually abused and who have little effective legal or police protection.

"Numerous studies have shown that less than 60 per cent of the cases of serious child abuse are not reported. This is not an isolated problem but rather one that cuts across all socio-economic levels in our society, across all education and intellectual levels, across all races, and across all religious faiths.

"On the basis of current evidence, about the only generalization that can be made about parents who batter their children is that they themselves are usually abused during childhood," Decourcy said.

"Many parents do not fully understand the intellectual limitations of an infant and child. They do not understand that in many cases a child simply does not understand what is expected of him. Too often their only resources in controlling their child is corporal punishment, which frequently reaches an abusive level.

"In many ways we do not think of children as people with the rights and privileges of adults," he told the convention. "Physical punishment and psychological harassment are considered acceptable methods of controlling a child.

"Children are often punished by their parents in a variety of unusual and ingenious ways that would not be tolerated in the most backward adult prison, and the parents are not subjected to social censure or legal interference unless extreme neglect and abuse can be shown.

"It is as if the children were objects, bits of property belonging to their parents, to be used in any way the parent sees fit."

DeCourcy called for reform in the juvenile courts and welfare departments which admonish the parents without solving the problem.

"All too frequently welfare departments are thoroughly committed to the notion that their ultimate goal, in dealing with an abused child, is the reunion of the family," he said.

Miss America contestants more outspoken these days

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — It has been three years since the staid, half-century old Miss America Pageant —which still chaperones its girls and opposes the two-piece bathing suit —abolished its "gag rule" on contestants.

The pageant in 1971 dropped the rule prohibiting contestants from discussing controversial issues with reporters after realizing that it was "five to ten years behind the time," said Albert A. Marks, Jr., a 60-year-old stockbroker who directs the nation's most famous beauty contest.

A number of this year's contestants, such as Juli Ann Berg, Miss Oregon, already have made statements that would have drawn a protective circle of hushing hostesses only a few years ago. Miss Berg, 21, of Eugene, has gone on record as supporting Richard Nixon's resignation and "planned parenthood."

"Premarital sex is another question. It's not my place to condemn. It's up to the individual to decide whether it is morally right or wrong," said Miss Berg, a student at the University of Oregon.

Cheryl Johnson, 20, Miss Wyoming, told an interviewer before she arrived at the pageant that nude male magazines such as Viva have "some pretty nice articles," although "I'm not too hung up on looking at the bodies."

In previous years, the pageant's attempt to shake off its old-fashioned image with open interviews have resulted in banner headlines —and embarrassment back home —for a number of contestants who apparently didn't realize their opinions would be quoted in newspapers from coast to coast.

In 1972, Miss Vermont, Kathy Herbert, was quoted as saying she was "really" a no-bra, blue jean girl who had demonstrated against the war. Later she was jeered during a boardwalk parade. She complained the judges might have held the statements against her.

Last year, the Manchester, N.H., Union Leader in a front page editorial withdrew its support from Michell Cote, 22, who had told a newsman she supported gay liberation and male contraceptives. She said later her statements had been taken out of context.

This year, many of the 50 beauties hoping to be crowned Miss America 1975 in the finals Saturday night are wary of reporters. Carol Diane Bounds, 21, of Gulfport, Miss., said her "only fear is of the national media" and promised she would "always be on my toes" during the pageant.

"People are always looking for dirt," said Lucianne Buchanan, 21, Miss California. She also said she thought the required chaperones would guard against contestants making embarrassing statements. Miss Buchanan is a resident of Claremont.

But Miss Berg, whose mother was the first Miss Oregon in 1947, said she viewed the pageant as a vehicle for expressing her opinions. She said winning would mean the "chance to express myself to people who would listen."

Miss Johnson, the only black in the pageant, said contestants should exercise restraint, "use a little tact" and avoid controversy. She had a very firm opinion, however, when asked if the nation was ready for a black Miss America:

"They don't want to admit it but they're ready. They weren't ready for the depression, but it happened. They weren't ready for the war, but it happened. If they're not ready, they better get themselves ready," she said.

Nobel winner accused of writing theft

OSLO (UPI) — Nobel Prize-winning author Mikhail Sholokov stole most of his bestknown work, "And Quiet Flows The Don," from a writer who died during the Russian revolution, according to exiled writer Alexander Solzhenitsyn.

A report in the Aftenposten newspaper said Sholokov edited a nearly finished manuscript of the book which was written by Fyodor Kryukov, a prominent Cossack political leader and writer.

The dispatch written by the newspaper's Moscow correspondent Nils Moreten Udgaard said Solzhenitsyn reports on the alleged plagiarism in a book to be published soon in Paris.

The book contains a 195-page analysis of "And Quiet Flows the Don," 53 of them written by an unidentified Soviet literary researcher who is now dead.

According to Aftenposten, Solzhenitsyn writes that he cannot reveal the identity of the deceased researcher until a later date. He refers to him only as "D".

The Swedish Academy of Arts and Science awarded Sholokhov the 1965 Nobel Prize for literature for "the artisitc power and honesty with which he has painted a picture of an era in the histo-ry of the Russian people."

Solzhenitsyn won the Nobel Prize in 1970. He was expelled from the Soviet Union last February because of his works critical of the government and now lives in Switzerland.

Solzhenitsyn, according to the article, claims that "D" was in continuous contact with him during his work on the analysis.

"'D' died among strangers and there is no guarantee that the last of his papers have not been lost," Solzhenitsyn says, according to Aftenposten.

Scientists tap quasars for quake prediction

PASADENA (UPI) — What may be the first step toward eventually predicting earthquakes is being undertaken by scientists and engineers at Pasadena's Jet Propulsion Labratory.

Using the combined knowledge of spacecraft navigation, radio astronomy and geophysical research, scientists, aided by geophysicists from the California Institute of Technology, are developing a system to monitor earth faults.

The project, part of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration program, is called ARIES (Astronomical Radio Interferometric Earth Surveying).

Using two antennas, one at a NASA-JPL space communications station at Goldstone near Barstow, the other at JPL's Pasadena facility, scientists will listen to radio signals from quasars, quasi-stars outside our galaxy which emit energy.

The antennas, which are 125 miles apart, intersect the San Andreas fault, the source of California's severest earthquakes. Scientists will measure the difference in the arrival times of identical quasar signals at the antennas.

Using instruments originally designed for space exploration, scientists over the past few years have been able to split time measurements down to nearly one-tenth of a billionth of a second (0.0000000001 second).

The team leader for the ARIES project, Pete MacDoran, said movements in any of three dimensions will be measured. Fault motion causes the strain which ultimately releases itself in the form of an earthquake.

The antenna in Pasadena is portable, and scientists plan to move it to a different area each year. Future monitoring locations will include: Table Mountain near Wrightwood, located directly over the San Andreas Fault; the University of California at Riverside; Angel Peak in southern Nevada; and Ft. Tejon, the site of an 1857 earthquake of eight magnitude, the largest quake known to have occurred in Southern California.

MacDoran said the project will not provide an instant solution to the centuries-old phenomenon of earthquakes.

"The problem will not be solved quickly or easily. But in a period of five to 10 years we can find out where the earth is distorting and predict where the rock will give," MacDoran said.

Besides its geophysical value, earthquake prediction capability will be of considerable value to public administrators MacDoran said. Given nine or 12 months warning of a quake, officials could lower water levels in dams, take children out of unsafe schools and hold double sessions in safe schools, and get fire-fighting equipment out of fire stations.

First memorial slated for Khruschev, dead 3 years

MOSCOW (UPI) — The late Premier Nikita Khrushchev is getting his first memorial —an imposing tombstone with a bronze bust by a sculptor he once reviled.

The eight-foot-high monument is being erected in Moscow's Novodevichy Cemetery a week and a half before the third anniversary of Khrushchev's Sept. 11, 1971, death at the age of 77.

Khrushchev once criticized the abstract creations of the 48-year-old sculptor, Ernst Neizvestny, saying, "A donkey with his tail could do better work." The two men, however, were later reconciled.

The Khrushchev family commissioned Neizvestny, one of the Soviet Union's best-known sculptors, to do the bust when the government approved plans last spring for the monument.

Over the weekend, workmen installed a metal base with the monument's raised bronze inscription: "Nikita Sergeyevich Khrushchev 1894-1971."

Neizvestny, supervising the erection of the memorial, told newsmen it would take most of today to install the marble and granite monument supporting a bronze bust of Khrushchev.

JEANE LEVENTHAL

Girl, 18, aims for space to begin career

HOUSTON (UPI) — At 18, Jeanne Leventhal wants to finish college this year and go to medical school. In another six years, she wants to fly in space as a scientist.

"I don't want to be the first female astronaut. That's a goal without backing," said the senior at University of California at Berkeley. "It doesn't bother me whether I'm female or male. I'm just gong to be the best."

The 5-foot-5, biochemistry major decided the best way to conduct aerospace experiments is for her to fly on the future space shuttle missions and do the tests in earth orbit. She's determined to reach that goal as every other one she's set.

"Right now, getting accepted to med school is the big thing," said the Berkeley native. "After that on to six months or a year of aerospace training at one of the Air Force bases."

Jeanne graduated from high school at age 15 and was selected as one of the 25 students who prepared experiments for the three Skylab flights last year. She was attending the Skylab Life Sciences Symposium at the Johnson Space Center and keeping contacts in the space agency.

Her experiment in astrophysics was X-rays from Jupiter and she said she would get her results in a few weeks from NASA.

"I wanted to go into astrophysics in high school," she said. "But when I went to college, I had to sit down and say, 'Hey, do you really want to spend the rest of your life in astrophysics?' I decided I wanted to continue learning in that field, but that medicine offered more involvement with people."

She plans to attend medical school at Columbia, Harvard, Yale or Rochester, then take specialized training. The shuttle project in the 1980s is perfectly timed.

"By the time I get through medical school and aerospace training, shuttle should be ready to fly," she said.

Although no woman has yet been seriously considered for the astronaut corps, it's considered certain that women will fly aboard the reusable shuttle craft for scientific work in orbit.

"I don't think it's a crazy thing to want to go up and do your own experiments. Jacques Costeau and polar scientists go where their research takes them," she said. "If you do it yourself you take full responsibility or blame for the results."

Jeanne's bubbling enthusiasm spills over in chuckles when she discusses her personal future.

"Marriage is out until med school is over," she contends. "When I meet someone I want to marry, I will. I haven't met anyone who's really knocked me out yet.

"Destiny takes care of itself. Marriage is something that happens naturally. When I do consider marriage, I'll probably go to the library, research everything they have about it and decide if it's for me."

Two out of three

Grover Cleveland received the greatest number of popular votes in the presidential elections of 1884, 1888 and 1892 but was only elected to that office twice. In 1888, though he had a plurality of over 100,000 votes, he lost to Benjamin Harrison 233 to 168 in the electoral college.

Snow Camp's historical drama a hit

SNOW CAMP, N.C. (UPI) — Allen's Store is the only landmark visible from the paved but unmarked country road that rolls through this little Quaker community in the Appalachian foothills.

You can gas up, buy a loaf of bread, a can of vienna sausage, a soft drink (but no beer) or even get snow tires —unless, of course, you happened to sneeze and passed through without seeing the place at all.

Men folks gather at Allen's Store and talk politics, or just sit and wait for the sun to go down.

But this year, the locals would have been proud if you had dropped in to see "Sword of Peace," Snow Camp's fledgling historical drama on the Revolutionary War.

The drama began its inaugural season on the Fourth of July, and it ended this weekend.

Like drama in many American communities, it was an artistic success. Unlike many, the Snow Camp outdoor drama's first season was also a financial success.

Based on the conflicts of conscience facing the peaceful Quaker settlers during the turbulent days of the Revolutionary War, the drama was more than five years in the planning.

"We had every kind of supper you can imagine," said James Wilson, a tractor salesman, recounting the fund-raising efforts that eventually netted the Snow Camp Historical Drama Society $35,000, enough to open the season.

Wilson and other local men worked by flashlight at night, clearing a rocky, tree-covered hillside for an 850-seat amphitheater, which was built by high school carpentry students.

"We didn't know what we were doing," Wilson said. "We did everything backward, but somehow it came out right, and that's what makes it unique and beautiful."

Wilson, a teetotaler, was recruited to play a role as a hilarious drunk by director Sandy Moffett, a University of North Carolina graduate now teaching at Grinnell College in Iowa.

The show ran three nights a week. A crew of semi-professionals, mostly from Grinnell, worked with the predominantly local supporting cast. Most of them stayed at Holt House, a roomy wood-frame, farmhouse dormitory.

The production had its share of problems. The toilets wouldn't work at first. An airline shipping accident delayed a shipment of spotlights until after the dress rehearsal.

Bacteria-contaminated water wiped out portions of the Holt House cast for several days running.

And, early in the summer, community opinion threatened to turn against the drama when a non-local cast member smoked marijuana with a small group of local youths.

Wilson soothed the fears of both sides, especially parents upset at outside influences, when the incident became an issue.

The script, written by University of North Carolina professor William Hardy, is based on the life of Simon Dixon, the area's first settler.

Dixon came from Lancaster, Pa., in 1749 and built a mill on Cane Creek, which runs across the road from the amphitheater.

The dilemma that confronted Dixon as a Quaker caught in the currents of revolution provides the drama of the story, subtitled, "Men of peace —a time of war."

Wilson is already looking past the drama, planning other historical projects with an eye on 1976, the bicentennial year.

He hopes the society can restore two houses, one over 200 years old and the other over 100 years old, and a cabin that are all located on the society's grounds.

"We just believe in Snow Camp," he said. "And we believe in the history here."

Legal age lowered after 182 years

French youth now considered adults at 18; parents frustrated

By ROSETTE HARGROVE
Newspaper Enterprise Assoc.

PARIS — (NEA) — It is now official. French youths 18 years of age are now considered as responsible members of the community with the right to vote.

In 1792, the jurists who drew up the Napolenic Code, which has been vigorously enforced ever since, set the age of majority at 21. After 182 years, the government lowered the legal age to 18 in July, 1974.

For most French parents, the new situation is not only revolutionary but fraught with many problems. It means that henceforth, an 18-year old can leave the family home without parental authorization to lead the kind of life he or she dreams of. Before this "liberation," parents could call on the police to compel a truant teenager to return.

Even more revolutionary for the French, for whom the formal marriage contract is still a must, these youngsters can marry without parental consent.

They can also obtain passports to go into business, make wills, borrow money and choose careers all on their own. Until the new law, it was not unusual for youngsters to be turned back at the frontiers because they did not possess their parents' written consent to travel abroad.

Perhaps more ominous in the estimation of some parents is the fact that it allows teen-agers to make their own decisions regarding their studies. No longer will parental authorization be necessary to pursue a course they prefer their offspring to study, nor will parents be expected to sign weekly reports or "chits" excusing absence from school or university.

All this is now law. But what young people will soon have to come to terms with is economics. Most will realize that they will still have to live at home or at lest depend financially on their parents.

They will aslo learn that what is known in France as "protection of minors" is now applicable only up to the age of 18. There is only one exception and that covers the sale of drugs where protection will still extend to the age of 21.

Again, at 18 a young man can change his nationality. And, from now on he is considered fully responsible in the case of any accident or damage to third parties. He must face the payment for such, previously he legal responsibility of his parents.

Prof. Robert Debre, considered one of the greatest French pediatricians, at the age of 92 heads a family which includes 11 grandchildren and seven great grandchildren. He is surrounded by youngsters and is well aware of their problems. He believes the new law too precipitate.

From a medicare point of view, he stated in a recent interview, the age of 21 was perfectly logical. This age usually marks the end of adolescence when growing stops. According to Professor Debre, it is an error to declare adulthood upon anybody whose development has not reached maximum level. It had nothing to do with intelligence but rather developing the equilibrium necessary for an adult existerce, according to Debre.

Sociologists and psychologists point out another drawback. No longer are 18-year-olds barred from entering gambling casions. They can bet on the races. Also, there is nothing against hiring a boy or girl of 18 in any capacity or in any type of business.

While it is evident that French youth is anxious to enjoy its newfound liberty, many of its elders favor instructional courses on the responsibilities of fulltime citizens.

Greek forms socialist movement

ATHENS (UPI) — Political leader Andreas Papandreou Tuesday announced the formation of the Panhellenic Socialist Movement but said elections could not be held until the government purged the state machinery and the army and punished those responsible for the seven-year-long dictatorship.

Speaking at a news conference where he announced formation of his new party, the 57-year-old former Berkeley, Calif., professor said "elections today while the state machinery is filled with junta elements will not have any meaning."

"The government should cleanse the state machinery and the army of the junta elements and punish those who committed crimes and those responsible for the Cyprus disaster," he said. "Without such cleansing there can be no genuine elections, with which to produce a genuine democratic government," Papandreou said.

The government, through deputy premier George Mavros, said the punishment of those responsible for the dictatorship of the past seven years belongs to an elected government.

Papandreou, son of the late premier George Papandreou and minister of economic coordination in his father's cabinet, left Greece in 1968 following the military takeover.

A longtime opponent of NATO, Papandreou called for Greece's withdrawal from the political branch of the North Atlantic alliance, from the European Economic Community and "all political and economic alliances which undermine our nation's independence."

Papandreou said Greece's association with the Common Market had only provided cheap Greek labor to European countries.

"During the years of association with the EEC, our villages wilted and our labor was exported and we became the blacks of the Mediterranean," he said.

Papandreou also denounced the United States and NATO for turning Greece into what he said was "an advance nuclear outpost of the Pentagon in order to serve the interests of the great monopolies."

Some state employes to get back pay

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Some state employes will get one-time-only bonus pay checks on October 15 to offset the pay increase partially withheld by the Federal Cost of Living Council during the last fiscal year.

State Controller Houston I. Flournoy said Tuesday the checks will go to employes who work during the month of September and who were on the payroll between July 1, 1973 and April 30, 1974.

"This will comply with legislation signed by the governor last Friday to give this onetime raise for the month of September 1974 to offset the pay increase partially withheld by the Federal Cost of Living Council during the 1974-74 fiscal year," Flournoy said.

Flournoy emphasized the onetime payment will be supplemental pay for the month of September and will be issued in a separate pay check in order to reflect any circumstances occurring during September which might affect an individual's pay status.

"This new legislation applies only to those whose pay was reduced by the Cost of Living Council ruling and who are still employed in September," Flournoy said.

He said it makes no provision for those who left state employment before September.

Flournoy said if an employe is otherwise eligible but works less than a full month during September, the supplemental pay will be reduced proportionately.

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Melissa Woodworth, who is 8 years old and blind, thought she had caught a whale.

Her catch on a weekend fishing excursion in Muskegon, Mich., was a 28-pound, 14-ounce king salmon.

Melissa's catch overshadowed the earlier triumph of her 5-year-old brother, Scott, who hauled in an 18-pounder.

When Scott began to brag, Melissa announced, "That's not a king, that's a queen. I'm going to catch the king."

A few minutes later she did "I thought it was a whale," the little girl said. "I heard it splash out there and it felt so heavy. I just yelled out loud for Daddy."

Melissa lost her sight a year ago when she had a brain tumor removed. Her father, William Woodworth, said, "She may be handicapped in some ways, but she's the best fisherman in our family."

"Melissa has that special touch of the blind person. She knows when a fish bites and she knows how to hook them," Woodworth said.

Argentine leftists, rightists in bloodbath

By MARTIN McREYNOLDS

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — More than a year ago, a popularly elected civilian government took power in Argentina, ending seven years of harsh military rule.

President Hector Campora, a stand-in for exiled leader Juan D. Peron, granted amnesty to political prisoners and hundreds of persons walked out of jails.

Thousands of young leftists looked forward to life under a "people's government" responsive to their ideas.

Most of the guerrilla groups that had waged an armed campaign against the military made peace with the new government.

The honeymoon was short.

At least three separate guerrilla outfits are currently active in the country. The most energetic, the People's Revolutionary Army has branched out from urban tactics to a classic rural guerrilla campaign including surprise attacks on well fortified army bases.

A new interior minister, Alberto Rocamora, felt called upon this week to deny the government was planning to impose a state of siege.

"The moment (for that) has not yet arrived," he said.

The late Peron, who returned to the presidency with an overwhelming election victory in September, was forced to choose between two of the principal groups supporting him —the traditional labor movement and the restless young leftists.

He chose to back the conservative, middle-aged labor leaders and tried to push the Marxist-oriented youth out of his movement. The movement was still divided when Peron died July 1.

Rebuffed in their attempts to follow —or lead —Peron toward a Socialist Argentina, the leftists also found themselves increasingly hunted down by well armed rightists bent on wiping them out with guns and bombs.

The result has been a ceaseless round of violent attacks between leftist and rightists, many of whom still declare fervent loyalty to Peron's ideals.

Under Peron's widow, President Maria Estela Peron, the government has continued to support the right wing of Peronism.

On Aug. 22, the government denied permission for the leftist Peronist Youth to hold a rally commemorating the second anniversary of the "Trelew Massacre" —the killing of 16 captured guerrillas at a naval base in 1972.

"Why can't they hold their rally?" asked a middle-aged shopkeeper.

"Those guerrillas were killed by the military and this government is supposed to be against all that.

With the rally banned, Buenos Aires was treated to a series of disorders and bomb blasts —the latest action of many that are hard to explain in a country where the government was elected amid popular rejoicing less than a year ago.

County getting 'cold feet' on proposed swim pool?

By JON MORRIS
P-B Staff Writer

Walnut school officials are beginning to wonder if the county has acquired "cold feet" and is unwilling to take a "dip" in the pool — proposed at Walnut High School.

School authorities indicated at the school board meeting Tuesday night that the county may be dragging its feet on approval of a joint powers agreement for construction of the Walnut High swimming pool.

"County supervisors tabled the item at a meeting last month," said George Hartnett, assistant superintendent for fiscal and facilities management. "We found out later they instructed the chief administrative officer to provide them with more information on the matter."

"But we understand the item has been tabled several times," he added.

T. James Hannan, board president, said the recent resignation of Arthur Will, the CAO, may have been a factor in delaying action on the pool.

Hartnett said the pool construction agreement has been placed on the Sept. 10 Borad of Supervisors' agenda.

Board member Richard B. Vind said he would attend the meeting, and attempt to counter any "opposition" to the agreement if it arises.

The proposed contract calls for the school district to pay 50 per cent of construction costs, or $100,000, with the county kicking in $50,000 and the City of Walnut $50,000.

In other business, Hannan voiced concern that two secretarial positions were being upgraded, costing money not already budgeted for this fical year.

Carol Hennessy, secretary to Ray McMullen, assistant superintendent for personnel, has resigned—and her position is now being upgraded. Doris Lias, who is remaining this year as personnel commission secretary, also will have her position upgraded.

Hannan said the promotions should have been included in the budget adopted only a month ago.

Trustees also:

—Approved "Mutual release" in connection with purchase of a site from the Diamond Bar Development Co. for construction of a new intermediate school.

—Rejected a claim for damages by Penny Jean Wunderlich, a student at Walnut High who was injured when her hair was caught in a buffing machine at the school last May. Amount of the claim was not immediately available.

—Received a report indicating food prices in school cafeterias will go up this year on items ranging from salad to sandwiches to donuts and potato chips. Milk prices will drop slightly, but the container will be smaller.

Marineland safe stolen

PALOS VERDES ESTATES (UPI) — A floor safe—weighing 1,000 pounds and containing nearly $12,000—was discovered missing Monday from a gift shop at Marineland on the Palos Verdes Peninsula.

Sheriff's deputies said the safe, which measured 36 by 15 by 12 inches, was stolen from the rear office of a gift shop sometimes between closing time Sunday night and opening Monday morning.

The safe held the weekend's receipts.

Officers said there was no sign of a forced entry to the shop.

Two housing tracts given okay

Acting on recommendations from the city's Planning Commission, the Upland City Council Tuesday evening approved tentative maps for two proposed housing tracts.

The first tract, to be constructed by Lewis Homes of California, consists of 16 lots west of Euclid Avenue and south of 19th Street. The second tract, consisting of 12 lots, will be constructed by Matreyek Homes, Inc., between 21st and 22nd streets and east of San Antonio Avenue.

In other business conducted Tuesday evening, the Upland council authorized Lee Travers, acting city manager, to consult a private landscape architect concerning the grounds of the almost-finished new city hall building on Euclid.

Councilman Harold Bailin complained that the structure has a flat "warehouse" appearance and needs the softening effect of greenery. Travers said he would get an estimate from a landscape architect for the cost of landscaping the new city edifice.

"The building is essentially finished," Travers noted.

Completion of the city hall has been delayed by a carpenters' strike.

Another problem discussed by Upland councilmen Tuesday was the impasse between the Theta Cable television company and local contractors. Contractors are complaining that Theta Cable is not paying its share of installation costs for the underground television cables in new housing tracts.

Theta Cable has the franchise for cable television reception in Upland, but the company claims that it cannot afford to pay for installation costs of cable facilities in all new homes because only a fraction—a smaller fraction than expected—of the new home owners sign up for cable television.

Councilman Bailin urged that the city should not become involved in a legal dispute between contractors and cable television representatives, but City Attorney Donald Maroney argued that the city already is involved by virture of the regulations it has established for contractors. Contractors must now provide cable television capabilities for new homes in Upland.

Diet control explained by psychologist

An Upland psychologist claims a person does not have to go on a special diet to lose or gain weight.

He contends that most people's eating problems are psychological and therefore can be controlled psychologically.

While not denying that the number of calories in a person's intake governs the loss or gain of weight, Dr. Howard Schuman, director of the Schuman Psychological Center, insists that overeating usually is a symptom for other problems.

"The whole emphasis is helping people to control their diets without feeling deprived," Dr. Schuman explained. "No one likes to go through life constantly resisting temptations."

Thus the emphasis is on handling temptations rather than abundance of food.

To demonstrate the effectiveness of his theories, Dr. Schuman has started a class on diet control.

He will show how to control such things as time and place for eating, and how to postpone temptation until it is no longer there. He also will demonstrate through psychological tests the role that weight, food and eating have in a person's life.

Won't forget peek in van; five corpses

OCEANSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — The highway patrol ordered a van that sat unattended beside busy Interstate 5 for more than 14 hours hauled to a garage Tuesday, where an employee decided to see what it contained.

He found five human corpses.

Several hours later, Phil Beckwith, 20, San Diego, appeared to claim the truck and cargo. Beckwith is a driver for the Telephase Society, a low-cost cremation society.

He was hauling the dead to a crematorium in Orange, Calif., he said, when a tire went flat and it took some time to get it fixed.

Valley agencies that help when you're down and out

A month ago the transmission went out of my 1964 Ford, which I had equipped with a rebuilt engine two years ago.

It is in a garage and I am being charged $406.95. I can't pay it because I have no job. I also have no food.

My rent will be due the 30th of this month.

I'm a PBX switchboard operator when I am working but as you know a job doesn't come to you. Without a car, what can a person do?

I have a little girl who is staying with my sister so she can eat. I have no bank account of any kind.

If there someone who will help me, just until I get a job? Then I will pay it back.—J. S., Chino.

We got in touch with you immediately and learned that friends had supplied you with food for a week.

If you should find yourself without food again, you can get emergency help through the Salvation Army, which has a representative in your city.

Other valley agencies offering the same kind of assistance are Catholic Social Services and South Hills Neighborhood Service Center in Pomona.

Many churches offer emergency help regardless of your religious affiliation or the lack of it.

In connection with your transmission bill, we told you that it is often possible to arrange with a business for periodic payments when things get tough.

You said you had already tried that and it was pointed out to you that you had no income at all from which to make payments.

Although you shrink from the idea, we believe you should apply for welfare for yourself and your child until you can get a job. You told us you do not qualify for unemployment insurance.

Please answer as soon as possible as the clain has to be in by Oct. 31. — Mrs. J. V., Chino.

A Longs Drugs pharmacist in Pomona identified Tedral as a drug used in the treatment of asthma, as you did.

He said, however, it is not an antibiotic and all of the drugs listed in the notice are.

Cash refunds on the listed drugs are a result of a settlement obtained in the U. S. District Court by the attorneys general of California, Hawaii, Kansas, Oregon, Utah and Washington.

The claimed average overcharge was 29 cents on each dollar spent on the drugs.

Tri-city ire

Mental health post still in doubt

The Tri-City Mental Health Authority governing board Tuesday heard residents express concern that the hiring of Steven E. Toth as human resources coordinator would hurt programs for minorities and the poor.

The board, made up of members of the participating cities of Pomona, Claremont and La Verne, unanimously called for a meeting between representatives of the Concerned Citizens for Mental Health and Dr. O. R. Richardson, Tri-City director.

Board members also asked that a report be submitted at the next Tri-City meeting.

Thirty residents attended the meeting, held in Pomona City Council chambers, including Toth. Toth did not speak at the meeting but his selection for the job was defended by Dr. Richardson as "well justified."

Guadalupe Perez, chairman of Concerned Citizens, questioned why the oral interview board which met with Toth did not include community representation; said he found the "actions and programs of Toth "unacceptable" and urged his resignation.

Perez expressed concern about an article published in a weekly newspaper which quoted Toth as saying he saw his job "not as protector of minorities and-or the poor."

Four residents in addition to Perez spoke before the board.

Dr. Richardson said 90 applicants had qualified for the job with Toth placing third on the eligibility list, explaining that the first had been disqualified because of a physical problem and that the second chose instead to accept a position at UCLA.

Claremont Councilwoman Claire McDonald, one of three persons on the interview board, questioned how a case could be brought against Toth based on a newspaper article and without giving him time to put his programs into operation.

"Tri-City is trying very hard to deal with minorities and the poor," she said. "You haven't gone further than the article."

Although Tri-City includes the three cities, hiring is done through the City of Pomona personnel office.

At one time, Pomona in its hiring practices required that interview boards include members of the community but this was changed to make community representation permissible rather than mandatory.

Richardson said Toth's approach has been one of "organization and direction" and that existing programs had been changed by him "not to the detriment of the program but to the benefit."

Man gets prison sentences on 2 murder charges

Ronny Willis Michael, 27-year-old man convicted of killing his former wife and her male companion in Pomona Feb. 12, was sentenced to consecutive prison terms Tuesday in Pomona Superior Court.

Michael was convicted of two counts of second-degree murder Aug. 13 after a lengthy jury trial.

The victims were his former wife, Connie, 28, and Wayne Douglas Beach, 28, in whose home at 1612 S. White Ave. the killings took place. Five children slept through the shotgunning of Beach and the bludgeoning of Mrs. Michael.

The next day Michael called police and told them he had discovered the bodies when he went to Beach's house to pick up his children for a visit. Later he admitted the killings while taking a voluntary lie detector test at the sheriff's department.

Tuesday, Michael's attorney, Deputy Public Defender Clark Shacklett, asked Judge Glenn M. Pfau for a new trial or to reduce the convictions to voluntary manslaughter.

Shacklett sought to have the statements Michael made during the lie test set aside because of his emotional condition and because he was under the influence of a prescribed drug. Prosecutor Robert F. Kuhnert replied that such an action would be "an insult to the facts and an insult to justice." The motions were denied.

Michael, a Covina maintenance man, took his sentencing calmly. He faces consecutive prison terms of from five years to life plus additional five-year terms because he was armed with a deadly weapon during the commission of the murders.

Mountain Springs Estates is leaving the county fire protection district

Home owners in fashionable Mountain Springs Estates who have relied on the county for their fire protection for the past 15 years or more apparently have decided to end that service.

Residents of that La Verne Heights neighborhood have notified the Los Angeles Fire Protection District that they intend to secede by Dec. 31, and join La Verne which plans to build a fire station near them.

A petition bearing all but four of the Mountain Springs Home owners who belong to the district, was filed Tuesday night with the La Verne City Council, so that it can be forwarded for further action to the Board of Supervisors.

William Black, spokesman for the group, said the secession was being requested with the understanding that he city will furnish interim service for the community through an agreement with the fire protection district until July 1, and then provide adequate fire protection by establishing a fully manned fire station.

Councilman Harrison Sanborn cautioned Black that the city might only be able to provide partial service until next August or September, even though the $150,000 fire station may be completed before then.

"Some of the men may not be fully trained," he explained. "For a couple of months you may have to settle for a small pumper instead of a large one. We may have to provide the additional protection from the downtown station."

But Black said he felt confident that by July 1 not only would the station be built, but the necessary crew would be trained.

His contention was based primarily on the fact that earlier in the evening the council had approved a contract with architectural firm of Cashion-Horie for the construction of the fire station.

Councilmen also agreed to use a portion of the general fund reserves to hire the necessary crew to man the station. Sanborn said the reserves would be able to stand the expense because they now constituted about 20 per cent of the entire city budget.

"It's true, the money is there for the first year," Mayor Mike Morales agreed. "What we'll have to do is find some money for future years."

Councilman Frank Johnson wondered whether it would not be advisable, "with everybody talking about a possible upcoming depression," to put off construction of the station for six months or longer. He said with tough times ahead construction costs might come down.

But the other councilmen felt prices and costs would continue to rise.

Fire Chief Robert Lapp said he hoped that the new fire station, to be built with revenue sharing funds, would be in at least partial operation by next March or April.

Until them, the city will pay the county fire protection district a monthly fee of about $2,750 for use of a county station on North Wheeler Avenue for the protection of La Verne Heights against fires.

Black said that since the city was using tax funds to build the station, Mountain Springs Estates would be doubly taxed by staying in the fire protection district.

Storm drain acreage fee ordinance okayed

The Chino City Council approved the second reading of an ordinance establishing a storm drain acreage fee Tuesday night, but temporarily excluded the Chino School District from the assessment.

Al Searfoss, assistant superintendant for business for the school district, appealed to the council to exclude the school district from the $500 per acre fee.

He told the council that the fee would amount ot $62,500 on the district's three current building programs at Chino High School, Don Lugo High School and Magnolia School. The fee would be the equivalent of a 6-cent tax rate increase if the district was forced to pay the assessment he said.

Searfoss asked the council if the state would be held liable for the fee at the California Institution for Men, or if the county would be liable for the fee for its share of the civic center development.

John Gerardi, director of public works, who earlier had stated that the school district should be liable for the fee, admitted that the state and county could not be assessed directly.

He continued, however, to explain that both the state and county had contributed heavily to past storm drain projects and would be doing so in the future.

Mayor Bob McLeod agreed with Gerardi that the school district should be assessed, but not the full fee.

The council voted to exclude the school district from the ordinance pending the formulation of a compromise that will relieve the district from a portion of the assessment.

In other action, the council approved an increase of $54,925 in the city's portion of the Fire Department budget. The increase was necessitated by increases in the city's assessed vaulation and an accompanying decrease in the assessed valuation of unincorporated areas of the Fire District.

The council also approved two contracts totaling about $19,000 for the purchase of five new city vehicles.

Mayor Bob McLeod presented the Mayor's Monthly Home Improvement Award. Selected for the month of August were Mr. and Mrs. Salvador Enriquez.

Groundbreaking scheduled for new state office

Groundbreaking ceremonies for a new building housing the Covina-Foothills District office of the State Board of Equalization are scheduled for Friday at 11 a.m. at Second and Italia avenues in Covina.

The Covina-Foothills office has 49 employes and serves all cities in Los Angeles County east of Arcadia. The office handles over 18,000 seller's permits.

The new 7,040-square-foot office, with 33 parking spaces, will be leased by the state for 15 years. The building is to be built by Globex Developers, Inc.

Participants in groundbreaking ceremonies will include Covina Mayor Louis Brutocao, contractor Carley Smith and the board's chairman, George R. Reilly.

Rotarians will hear talk on youth seminar

Stella Montes, a 1974 Bonita High School graduate, will discuss "A Perspective from Japan" before the La Verne Rotary Club Thursday noon at Castaway Restaurant.

Fifth city supports project for juveniles

La Verne has become the fifth and final city in the valley to pledge support to the Pomona Valley Juvenile Support Project.

The city passed a resolution Tuesday night joining Pomona, Claremont, San Dimas and Walnut in subsidizing the program for the next two years.

The cities will pay five per cent of the annual costs and the state will match that amount. The federal government will finance 90 per cent of the project during the next two years.

The program is aimed at rehabilitating juvenile offenders, particularly first timers, by assigning them to community-based organizations where they will learn some skills on the job.

Cultural center steering board plans first meet

The first general meeting of the steering board for the proposed Chino cultural center will be held tonight at 7:30 in the board room of the Chino School District administration building.

The meeting is open to representatives of all city youth and civic organizations and interested residents.

Members of the steering board are Chino school board President Eva Weiszbrod, City Councilwoman Eileen Carter, Harold Helms of the Chino High School Band Boosters, Carolyn Owens of the Chino Recreation Commission, Leta Tomlinson of the Women's Club, Ruth Foster of the Parent Council and Ed Boersma of the Chamber of Commerce.

Special subcommittees to study community desires, functional needs, site location and finances are expected to be formed at the meeting.

Drug refund claims exceeding $500,000

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Attorney General Evelle Younger reports there have been more than half a million claims in a campaign to refund $20 million in overcharges for prescription drugs.

School smog alert program lauded

The Claremont school board Tuesday night was complimented for its proposed revised smog policy.

Robert E. Fields, director of the San Gabriel-Pomona Valley Regional Council, Lung Association of Los Angeles County, told the board that the policy is "very comprehensive. The district should be complimented for its plan as compared to what other school districts in the valley have done."

Fields asked if the Claremont plan could be introduced as a model at a conference planned for this fall for persons in education.

He noted that the Claremont plan is specifically aimed at first and second stage episodes.

R. S. Kirkendall, district superintendent, said that the proposed standards on predicting and calling episodes are the same as those adopted by the Air Pollution Control District.

He explained that regulations are consistent with the California State Air Resources Board's report, and the county regulations based on that report.

Kirkendall said that as new county standards become effective, the district would have to modify the policy.

He said that district principals and teachers have reviewed the policy, which also is shared with the city, so that both agencies may have compatible rules.

According to the proposed policy, during a Stage 1 smog episode, strenuous physical activities for all students would be discontinued.

A principal would postpone, cancel, or relocate an athletic event if a Stage 1 smog episode had been achieved an hour before the start of the event.

A practice session of teams, band, or drill team conducted outdoors would be discontinued or canceled.

A Stage 1 episode would be called if a photo chemical oxidant such as ozone averaged .20 parts per million for an hour, or if carbon monoxide averaged 40 parts per million for an hour.

A Stage 2 episode would be called if the ozone count averaged .40 parts per million for an hour.

During a second stage episode, strenuous physical activities by all students would be discontinued, and all elementary and secondary students would be required to remain inside.

District maintenance, operation and transportation employes would return to their building and remain indoors.

Kirkendall said that the San Antonio League of eight high schools must do something about league members holding practices for athletic teams during smog alerts. He explained that while Claremont High held up on its football practices because of an alert, a neighboring school was practicing.

The board is expected to adopt the revised policy at its next meeting.

Opinion

Airline subsidy is a bad idea

Pan American World Airways, the "flag carrier" of the United States on many international air routes, is appealing for federal subsidies to avoid financial collapse. We sympathize with Pan Am and its employes and stockholders, but we think it would be a bad idea for the American taxpayer to bail out this famous airline, even if it would be a blow to our national pride to see it go under.

If there is any argument to be made at all for federal funds to be used for rescuing Pan Am, it is that the airline owes many of its problems to short-sighted policies of our own government. Rather than start writing checks to cover these mistakes, the government should try to create conditions that make it easier for our international air carriers to survive.

Our government can do nothing about the fact that most of the 57 foreign airlines that compete directly or indirectly with U.S. airlines on international routes are subsidized by their governments. However, there is no excuse for the United States to be making the competitive advantage of foreign airlines even greater.

Why, for instance, should Australia's Qantas Airlines pay a $271 fee to land one of its 747 jumbo jets at San Francisco when Pan Am must pay a $4,200 fee to land at Sydney, Australia? Why is our government-sponsored Export-Import Bank loaning money to foreign airlines at special low interest rates so they can purchase aircraft in the United States, when they are going to use those planes to compete with U.S. airlines that must pay prevailing high commercial interest rates to buy the same kind of planes? Why is the U.S. Postal Service paying foreign carriers more to carry mail than it pays to our own airlines?

Some of these inequities can only be ironed out at the international level. The United States has followed an "open skies" policy giving foreign airlines virtually unlimited access to the U.S. travel market. Some foreign countries openly discourage their citizens from flying on U.S. airlines in order to create patronage for their own national carriers. There should be the same reciprocity in the sphere of air travel that we pursue in our free trade policies.

Pan Am is not the only U.S. airline caught in a squeeze between skyrocketing operating costs and fare and route structures that are often slow to reflect changes in competitive conditions in the travel market. Trans World Airlines, for one, is suffering the same disadvantages as Pan Am in international service but can cushion its losses with its domestic routes and subsidiary operations. If the survival of Pan Am is important to the national interest domestic carriers might consider yielding on their opposition to granting Pan Am some domestic routes, too.

Congress will no doubt be told that Pan Am's appeal for subsidies is a "last resort." It can hardly be viewed as that when changes are possible in our national and international air policy that could put Pan Am and other U.S. carriers on a far more equitable basis of competition in the world travel market.

Hair industry a growing one

Call it a wig, hairpiece, toupee or cranial doily, the Encyclopaedia Britannica defines it as "an artificial head of hair worn as a personal or theatrical cosmetic adornment disguise or symbol of office."

According to Ben Z. Kaplan, editor of the "Wigs and Hairpieces" section of the Britannica, Egyptian mummies of both sexes have been found adorned with wigs. The theatrical wig was first used in Greece and later copied by the Romans. But correcting nature's shortchanging of men did not begin in a big way until the 17th century in the court of Louis XIII. From Versailles, the fashion spread throughout Europe.

England followed suit after the Restoration under Charles II when the wearing of the "perruque" (hence the English perriwig, or wig) became general. In Colonial America, wigs were worn by most men who could afford them as symbols of rank and position.

Wiggery got is real boost in the United States, however, with the birth of the movie industry. Then the advent of television after World War II gave the wig and hairpiece industry a jetlike takeoff.

According to Kaplan, who in 1968 founded Universal Winners, which bills itself as the world's first department store for men's hairpiece needs, more than a million wigs and hairpieces were purchased by American males in 1973, resulting in retail sales of about $125 million.

Like almost every other item, the men's hairpiece has suffered from inflation. The going price for a custom-made hairpiece in 1954 was $150. Today it is $300 up. But they're better made, look more natural, last longer and many now use synthetic hair instead of real hair bought from European peasant women.

THE PUBLIC FORUM

Doing the public a better service

I rarely read the editorial page of newspapers because I like to form my own opinion of news items and do not care to have them influenced or molded by other individuals. Unfortunately, my eyes were drawn to an article by Tom Tiede, "Richard Nixon: Facing the future," which appeared in the Progress-Bulletin on Aug. 14. I was shocked. The venom he expressed was appalling.

First of all, his comments on Spiro Agnew: While Agnew himself has admitted he broke the law, there are those of us who still do not condemn the man. Tiede spoke of Agnew as a name that "curls the lip."

Hitler is a name to many that "curls the lip." I would hardly put Agnew in that category. Only those of us who are completely free of wrongdoing, deception, covering up of deception, are in a position to judge or condemn. The only individual I have ever heard of who was entirely free of evil was Jesus Christ, and he would never have condemned Nixon, Agnew, you, me, or anyone. He would have hoped that a man would learn from his mistakes and go on, a step higher on the ladder to honesty, a more productive life or whatever.

I don't want to debate the subject of Watergate or whether the anguish of Watergate is enough punishment for Richard Nixon for his admitted wrongdoings, but this one thing is true, he has not reached "The End" as Tiede suggests.

I do not condone his unlawful proceedings nor have I always supported him. I certainly am not among those "ever loyal to him for whom they'd kill their grandmothers," but even convicted criminals of heinous crimes are often given second chances. Hasn't Nixon done enough good to warrant that?

While Nixon may never serve in public office again, he will still be living and hopefully progressing above and beyond Watergate. Neither Nixon nor Agnew are entirely evil men and there is still good they can and will do. No man is condemned to his mistakes forever.

Tiede's article was probably thrown away with the trash but some of the statements of Nixon and other great men will live on. It doesn't take much of a man or woman to hate or despise but it does reflect integrity and character to forgive those we feel have wronged us.

While Tiede has chosen a literary career and must as a necessity have a way of communicating thoughts through words, he could do the public a better service by attacking problems that really affect them such as infant molestation, unemployment, inadequate housing, aid to Communist countries (the list is endless) rather than people.—Mrs. Janice Y. Graber, Pomona.

JACK ANDERSON AND LES WHITTEN

Ford starts shaping his cabinet

WASHINGTON — In earnest talks with his friends in and outside government, President Ford is beginning to shape the cabinet he hopes will carry him through until January 1977, and beyond.

White House insiders tell us Ford is now concentrating on replacements for Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Caspar Weinberger and, further along, Defense Secietary James Schlesinger.

Others almost certain to be dislodged in the near future are Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz, Housing and Urban Affairs Secretary James Lynn, and White House budget chief Roy Ash.

To head HEW and Defense, Ford is mulling over the names of Rep. Albert Quie, R-Minn., and Don Rumsfeld, the able ex-head of the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Quie is a hard-headed conservative, who as ranking Republican on the House Education and Labor committee, is consulted by HEW every time the sprawling agency takes on a new program.

But he may not want to give up his safe district for the HEW job which, in the past, has been about as secure as being spouse to Henry the Eighth. And Quie, while respected in Congress, lacks the warmth that many feel is needed for the job, a failing felt acutely at HEW under Weinberger.

Schlesinger, on the other hand, has endeared himself to many of his associates, but has not had a good rapport with Congress. Rumsfeld, it is felt, would close this gap. He is still remembered fondly for the courageous yet tactful lobbying he did to keep the Office of Economic Opportunity alive.

At the Departments of Transportation and Labor, Secretaries Claude Brinegar and Peter Brennan are men "we don't have to worry about for the time being," one White House source said.

There is, however, considerable debate among White House aides over Atty. Gen. William Saxbe, even though Ford, we have learned, has assured Saxbe he can stay. Some White House aides feel his outspoken ways have touched a warm chord in the American people. Others feel he is a poor administrator whose work is being done by Dep. Atty. Gen. Laurence Silberman, and whose mouth has produced nothing but trouble.

GOLDEN YEARS: A few months before he was kicked out by President Nixon as Economic Opportunity chief, Alvin Arnett squelched a favorite Nixon White House boondoggle.

Now the FBI is looking into the "Federation of Experienced Americans," originally set up by former White House aide Charles Colson as a means of helping the 1972 Nixon campaign.

The "Federation" got $2 million in government contracts, many of which were carried out so poorly that the General Accounting Office found the organization "ineffective, deficient and often in violation of its contracts."

One of Arnett's discoveries was that the "Federation's" director, David W. Brody, was using federal grant money for personal expenses. The GAO probe charged that Brody spent $1,325 on a trip to Hawaii with his wife, and $15,000 for life and disability insurance for himself and his family.

The purpose of the "Federation," the GAO found, was to siphon money away from liberal service groups for the elderly and put it into the "Federation," which then used the funds to favor pro-Nixon contractors and to win over elderly fence-sitters.

Arnett cut off all OEO funds for the "Federation" early this year and believes his decision may have been a factor in his firing by Nixon. Now, we have learned that President Ford is considering Arnett for a high White House domestic advisory job.

Brody did not return our calls.

Rhetoric won't halt crime rate

"If you take the view not to take any risks at all, you'd lock everybody up forever." — District of Columbia Superior Court Judge Sylvia Bacon

Less than a week after a juvenile on probation and a criminal free on bond were charged with killing Washington attorney John Black, Atty. Gen. William Saxbe made yet another law-and-order speech.

"The options are very limited as we face the future," Saxbe told a Chicago audience. "If we go on as we are, there is every possibility that crime will inundate us."

I have news for our Attorney General: crime already has. More than five and a half years after Ramsey Clark departed the Justice Department, the rhetoric is different, but little else is — except ever-rising crime statistics. From John Mitchell to Saxbe, the tough law-and-order speeches invariably draw applause from hand-picked, appreciative audiences. But in terms of action, what have we to show?

Consider this item. After he finished delivering his dire warning, what specifically did our present Attorney General propose by way of helping to dam the inundation? A new ten-city $3 million Law Enforcement Assistance Administration grant program to combat criminal recidivism. Period.

Recidivisim. That's a five-syllable word meaning somebody is in the streets who doesn't belong there. Like the pair accused of murdering John Black, a brilliant young national capital lawyer, in front of his apartment house.

One of the accused killers was in the streets because a judge hadn't gotten around to sentencing him on a previous conviction for larceny and assault. The other, a juvenile, was free because Judge Sylvia Bacon believes that unless we want to "Lock everybody up forever," a judge has to take "risks."

The risk Judge Bacon took was to permit the accused juvenile to remain free on probation, despite repeated requests from caseworkers that he be sent back to detention. Following Black's murder, Judge Bacon, after the pro forma condemnation of the entire society we've learned to expect from such permissivists, had this to say. "I don't believe there's anyone in the world who can predict human behavior with absolute certainty. If we were able to do that, these events wouldn't occur."

Brilliant. Read the collected wisdom of Judge Sylvia Bacon and relate it to that inundation Saxbe warned of. For, unfortunately, this kind of thinking, far from being rare, is common to the American judiciary today, at all levels. It represents the floodgates through which the inundation pours.

Yet, neither Saxbe nor his predecessors have ever proposed to attack our criminal recidivist problem at its source: not the number of policemen we have in the streets, but the caliber and philosophy of the judges we have on the bench.

Three million dollars? One more futile pilot program that will wash down the drain as quickly as the rhetoric of an Attorney General's law-and-order speech. Because no amount of money invested in criminal apprehension can protect a society of John Blacks from the consequences of a judicial system rife with fatuous Sylvia Bacons.

Just in jest

Never underestimate the power of women in their fight for equal rights! The latest boxscore now includes some really stupendous gains.

Because of the shortage of doctors, the California Assembly has passed a bill legalizing midwifery.

The California Highway Patrol is now training the State's first female traffic officers.

The Supreme Court has ruled that in addition to a man's right to sue for damages because of injuries he has sustained, his wife can also sue for loss of conjugal fellowship.

And Shirley Temple Black has been appointed Ambassador to Ghana. With all of which I am heartily in accord. However, as a mere male, I do feel it would only be fair if a law was passed making it a felony for a defiant female to hold up a grocery check-out line while she writes a check for a $2.06 purchase.

Once again Americans are being permitted to own gold. Big deal! With the price of gold these days, what difference does it make?

It's a situation which, according to Fred Scrimes, clearly illustrates why folks who are over 65 years of age are said to be living in their Golden Years.—They're frantically trying to get and hang on to something they simply can't afford.

TOM TIEDE

Not anti-pet but pro-people

WASHINGTON — There is a service station operator in New Jersey who says with ignorant pride that his dog eats twice as much food as his family. The animal, a German shepherd kept for security purposes, is so monstrously greedy it consumes several pounds of hamburger, steak, chopped liver, eggs, chicken and meal daily. All told, says the owner, "the dog eats $100 worth of food every damn week."

The example, though singular and excessive, is nonetheless illustrative of the lengths many Americans go to keep pets around the home or business. And these lengths should not be thoroughly examined for their moral deficiencies. Even in the best of times the copious gorging of domestic animals is peculiarly offensive; today, with millions of people going hungry in the world, it is patently disgusting.

The problem is not of small dimensions. According to one pet supply magazine, Americans now own more than 600 million non-farm animals — 23 million birds, 28 million cats, 41 million dogs, 340 million fish, 8 million horses and 125 million pet mice, gerbils, hamsters, snakes, frogs, turtles, and infinitum. One estimate has it the owners spend between $15 and $20 billion on the care and feeding of these creatures, mostly the feeding. Pet food people guess that some $1.5 to 2 billion alone is spent on canned or packaged dog and cat food.

The grub for these beasts, naturally, is not created in laboratories. It quite literally is taken from the mouths of people. An agriculture department official says that at least 10 per cent of all food concentrates produced in the nation are sold to pet food manufacurers. This means that of approximately 203 million tons of feed concentrates grown in America last year, 20 million disappeared into the bellies of mutts, scratchy cats, backyard nags and fish that swim in garishly decorated tanks which resemble rooms in a Mexican bordello.

Measured against growing human want, the situation is only slightly short of insanity. Though world population is growing at a rate of 2.6 per cent a year, food production is off sharply. Last year, according to United Nations reports, the world crop dropped 4 per cent from the previous year, or 42 million tons. The result has been catastrophic: Some 12 million Americans, unable to afford enough food, now are undernourished. Some 14 million humans in the sub-Sahara region of Africa are facing the possibility of a droughts-related starvation. Around the world, according to U.N. studies, as many as 400 million people go to bed hungry every night; "Babies cry, old men wait to die, pregnant women induce abortion rather than bring more children into hunger." Those who witness the misery believe hunger is worse than the scenes of war.

Yet in America the dogs in the streets are stuffed. No doubt they often eat better than their owners. The label on a can of Alpo chicken and liver "dog dinner" is ever so much more impressive than the label on a can of pork and beans; the nutrients alone occupy two full inches of print and include everything from four major vitamins to niacin, choline, calcium, potassium, magnesium, iron and copper. Besides food, then, the pets also deplete the world's mineral resources.

Clearly, priorities must be rethought. And the suggestion is not anti-pet so much as it is pro-people. It may be, as some suggest, that easy access to pets should no longer continue. Even the Humane Society admits that most pet owners are to some degree irresponsible and that this irresponsibility causes enormous social and moral woe. Last year, says the society's Guy Hodge, 17 million stray dogs (many of them abandoned by owners) were impounded in the nation; 13.5 million of them were never reclaimed and had to be fed for a grace period before eventually being killed. The feedings were humane, of course, but judging from the outcome wasteful; that food was sorely needed in Africa.

Limiting pet access, however, is probably not legally possible. Thus the best that can be hoped for at present is common sense attached to the status quo. Pets should be chosen with forethought and fed with table scraps; that's more than many babies receive in this screwy world.

Bicentennial logo stickers available

Now available at the La Verne Chamber of Commerce are sheets of stickers of the logo adopted for La Verne's celebration of the Bicentennial.

It is suggesed by the Bicentennial Committee that residents may want to use the stickers on their stationary inside or out.

The sheets of stickers are being sold at present through the Chamber of Commerce office at 2078 Bonita Ave. Later, members of the Bicentennial Committee will have them on sale at most places of business and through the membership of all of La Verne's clubs and organizations. The stickers are being sold at $1 per sheet of 70 stickers.

Designed by Carol Belcher, a Cal Poly student of La Verne, the logo is expected to appear in different sizes and different manners throughout the Bicentennial. An enlargement will be used in La Verne's exhibit at the Los Angeles County Fair.

All funds earned from the sale of the stickers, and later from the medallions to be struck from the design, will go towards a permanent reminder of some type, not yet decided, to be placed somewhere in La Verne.

The Bicentennial Committee is using this period of celebration to look at the history of La Verne as well as at the 200th birthday of the nation.

8 in valley graduates in nursing

Eight valley young people were among the graduates of the Citrus College vocational nursing program at ceremonies held at Santa Teresita Hospital in Duarte.

They are Theresa Boehlke, Doris Dykeman and Ozelle McNassor, all of Claremont; Ann Marie Cardenas, Joan Isaac, Felipa Jones, Helen Pearns and Rita Snow of Glendora.

Mrs. Edith Southwick, pediatric supervisor at Pomona Valley Community Hospital, was guest speaker at the ceremonies.

Hospitals participating in the program include Glendora Community Hospital, Foothill Presbyterian Hospital, Pomona Valley Community Hospital, Queen of the Valley Hospital, Santa Teresita Hospital and San Dimas Community Hospital.

Parent group schedules 3 speakers

Parents for Progress will conduct a public meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the community building in Kennedy Park in Pomona.

Three speakers are scheduled. They are Joseph F. Payne, director of the School Community Resourcce Involvement Project (SCRIP); Joseph Barfield, director of special projects in the Pomona school district; and Martha Williamson, with Title I projects in the Pomona schools.

Payne will discuss SCRP activities in the Pomona area. Barfield will explain new projects available this fall to Pomona-Diamond Bar parents and children. Mrs. Williamson will talk about Head Start and other programs for Title I children.

Additional information may be obtained by calling Ruth Blacknell, Zora McGuire or Betty Bruchman at 628-2319 or 629-1855.

Community nursery sets orientation

Pomona Community Nursery School at 951 E. Philadelphia St. will hold orientation for parents Thursday at 7 p.m.

The school this fall offers a two-day program for children 2 years and 9 months of age to 3 years and 9 months of age. It meets Tuesdays and Thursdays. The fee is $11 per month.

A three-day program for children 3 years and 9 months to kindergarten age meets Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. The fee is $15 per month.

Additional information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Douglas Myers at 623-7427 or Mrs. Gregory Woodell at 629-7647.

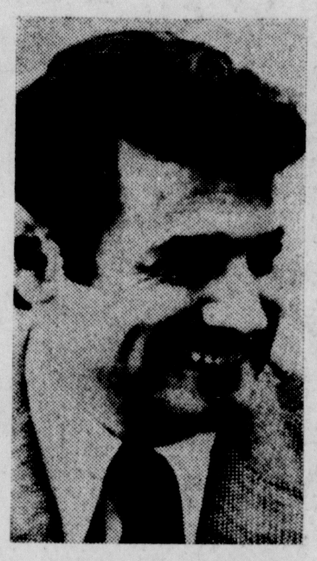
5 school pools staying open

Ontario Recreation Division's five swimming pools will remain open for recreational swimming through Sunday.

The heated neighborhood pools will be open from 1 to 4 p.m. daily. Admission will be 25 cents. After Sunday the pools will be open from 1 to 4 p.m. on Saturdays only through October.

The recreation pools are Bon View, Colony, De Anza, John Galvin and Vineyard.

Secretary of State candidate to speak



BRIAN VAN CAMP

Brian Van Camp, Republican candidate for Secretary of State, will spend Sept. 12 campaigning in the West End of San Bernardino County.

He plans to speak at a Chaffey Community Republican Women Federated luncheon at Red Hill Country Club. In the late afternoon, Van Camp will join Robert Finch, former Lieutenant governor, at a cocktail reception at the Upland residence of Mr. and Mrs. George Whitney.

At 7:30 p.m., he will speak at a dinner to be held at Griswold's Pavilion. The dinner is open to the public. Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Charles Milhiser at 984-8040.

Van Camp was appointed the youngest Commissioner of Corporations in the state's history in August, 1971, at age 31, by Gov. Reagan. Prior to that he was a deputy attorney general for the state, serving as counsel to the late Secretary Frank Jordan.

Casino betting just a gamble

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

I am not now nor ever have been an inveterate gambler, nor do I associate with known gamblers. The last gamble I took was when I stood before an altar 32 years ago and uttered a quavering "I do" on the stephanotis-fragrant air.

It was with no quickening of the pulse, then, that I read that the casinos of la belle France are currently enjoying a boom, drawing 10 per cent more patronage (and winnings) than in previous years. French croupiers raked in a record $165 million last year, proving that 50 million Frenchmen CAN be wrong.

From Deauville and Le Tourquet in the north to Cannes and Juan-les-Pins in the south, the roulette wheels are spinning, the dice clicking, and the cards flipping. And many of the patrons are flipping, as well. Fortunes are won and lost — mostly the latter — at the gaming tables in every resort and spa.

The granddaddy of them all,of course, is the venrable, rococo palace called the Monte Carlo Casino, presided over by Princess Grace Kelly. The legendary playpen of princes and nobility, of high society and the high-flying jet set, the marble-pillared Xanadu of Middle Eastern nabobs and the Beautiful People is the Fabulous Forum of the Riviera.

Shortly before World War II, when I was, hem, quite young, I visited the storied gambling den which I had seen in countless movies. In those more stately times you had to wear a tuxedo and no bets less than 100 francs (then $25) were acceptable. Champagne was free, yum.

To my distress I learn that Monte Carlo now lets in riff-raff in shorts and sport shirts and slot machines — parbleu! — have been installed in the august halls and coordiros. One might as well put slot machines in the Cathedral of Notre Dame! And the casino has also introduced "the American games" (les jeux Americaines) of Black Jack and craps, to add to the more dignified (but presumably less profitable) baccarat and chemin de fer.

Whatever vulgarizations have been wrought in the elegant pleasure palaces of France, I think Southern California could do with a few of them. They would lend a nice continental air to the area, provide amusement for countless fun-seekers, and siphon off sizeable amounts of table stakes which would be taxed to increase California's surplus funds upon which Reagan is nesting in Sacramento. Let's get up a movement to bring over a couple of casinos.

Today, London Bridge; tomorrow, Monte Carlo!

Enzyme frees baby fish from their egg

By Dr. Frank Miller

DEAR DR. MILLER: I read how when Mr. Ostrich, my chicken, hatched from my one-egg incubator, he did it because of an egg tooth. They explained how he used this egg tooth to pick his way through the shell. The eggs I'm watching now belong to Flashy and Flow, my angel fish. What I'm wondering is, how do baby angel fish hatch out of their eggs? Are fish so soft they can just push their way out, or do baby fish need an egg tooth to? — E. K.

Dear E. K.: While fish eggs don't have a hard shell finish, they're still tough. The fish embryos do need some system to break through to the outside world. Egg tooth? No, they manufacture their own membrane-dissolving enzyme which softens their outer capsule sufficiently so they're able to wiggle free on schedule.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Because my brother has had quite a bit of trouble with heartworms in his dog, I wonder if I should be doing something about heartworms for mine? They've never shown any sign of any heartworm trouble that I know of. He's getting some special kind of dog food that stops these heartworms, and I'm wondering if I should go to the bother of giving my dogs the same stuff. It costs a lot and I was wondering if it's really any good for them. — H. F.

Dear H. F.: You didn't mention whether you lived in the same general area as your brother, but if you do then it's not unreasonable to assume that your dogs could have heartworm problems too. There is a new prescription diet dog food on the market (yes, it's expensive) which, when fed as directed, will effectively prevent heartworm infestation. Certainly, in an area where heartworms are a problem in dogs as they are in so many areas of the United States now, feeding this type of food is an excellent means of protecting your dog from these very dangerous parasites. This food is for PREVENTION, not treatment of heartworms, however. Dogs with established heartworm infestation should not receive this specialized food until they have been treated. For this reason then, your veterinarian would undoubtedly want to check your dogs to be sure they were heart-worm-free first, even though they appear symptom-free.

Jury rejection is depressing

By ERMA BOMBECK

In theory, juries are formed out of a cross section of people from every walk of life who must simply be registered voters and have transportation to the courthouse.

This is not entirely true. After two months as a justice-seeker, I have found jurors are chosen from people without prejudice, who are compassionate, do not hold grudges when they are hit over the head with a tire iron against a defendant who allegedly hit someone over the head with a tire iron, can fit the trial in providing it does not conflict with a Tupperware party, can consume and control 23 cups of coffee in a six-hour day, limit their newspaper reading to the comics and who can accept rejection without withdrawal symptoms.

I am the victim of the latter. I don't know if you've thought much about it or not but have you any idea how many defendants do not want a humor columnist on their jury? In eight weeks I was passed by more times than a bakery window with a pregnant fly buzzing around.

The first few times I was "excused" I was a heck of a sport about it . . . laughed, had another cup of coffee and joked, "I don't have to do this for a living. When I overcome my clumsiness, I can steal."

But later, after being rejected time after time, my personality began to change. I shuttled back and forth from decisive and domineering to dependent and weak. Some days I would carry a knitting bag, wear an orthopedic stocking and look maternal and conservative. Other days I would chew gum with my mouth open and say things like, "Lizzie Borden wasn't a bad little girl. She just wanted to go to the orphan's picnic."

When questioned by the court I found I apologized for three children, my address, and was so humble about writing the column that I had a judge believing I wrote it on a brown paper bag en route to Gettysburg.

Later, pure envy set in and I publicly attacked other jurors. It was amazing how compassionate I could be toward a defendant who allegedly set fire to a church and how I knew a prospective juror as a bigot just by looking at him.

Late one afternoon I dragged back to the room for reassignment when a fellow crime-fighter said, "Are you going to write anything funny about jurors in your column?"

So that was it. I had been tried by the press before I had my day in court. Clients were being guarded against the threat of them saying, "Take my wife . . . " and a voice from the jury box giggling, "Please!" Or the prosecutor asking, "Did you in fact take a plane from Minneapolis?" And a juror whispering, "Why? Is one missing?"

I resent deepy the implication that humorists cannot be serious. By rejecting our services we will never get a chance to deliberate in a room so small the mice are hunchback . . . a room so small you have to step outside to change your mind . . . a room so small you have to disconnect the phone to take a shower . . .

L. M. Boyd

Fewer youths drink coffee

Understand the coffee merchants are getting worried. Twenty years ago, two out of three youngsters from 15 to 19 years old drank coffee. Today, only one out of three does so. Should be noted, I suppose, that soda pop sales have jumped in a most spectacular manner meanwhile.

"NOTHING succeeds like success." You've heard that ancient saying. But do you know how it originated? On Oct. 16, 1846, doctors at the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston first used ether to anesthetize a patient before surgery. Doubters had said it wouldn't work. But it did work, as all the world now knows. And a doctor there, whose name escapes, then delivered that nothing-succeeds line.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS

Q. "What's the most common crime among women?"

A. Hot checks. Those little numbers stamped "insufficient funds" outnumber the outright forgeries somewhat. And lawmen say that women over the age of 41 seem to be the most susceptible to that thing called paper-hanging.

Q. "HOW MANY babies will be born in the next 24 hours?"

A. Figure about 350,000. If they all lived in one spot, they'd make a city about the size of Omaha.

Q. "I CHALLENGE the claim of those so-called experts who contend that certain trees cause 10 times as much air pollution as man and maciine combined. What trees?"

A. Pine and sage, say the botanists.

TOOTH

Did I tell you every human tooth has at least 50 miles of canals in it?

SLEEP SPECIALISTS say most people spend no more than 11 minutes at a time in unbroken motionless slumber.

LOUISIANA fishermen catch twice as many fish as Alaska fishermen. In fact, Louisiana fishermen catch more fish by far than the fishermen of any other state.

THAT WORD "hotdog" to describe a sausage cropped up first not in this country, but in Europe in the 13th century, bear in mind.

THOSE SCHOLARS who analyze the womanliness of women contend the most masculine of the ladies generally seem to be the best educated. How do you explain that?

The doctor comments

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D

DEAR DR. LAMB — A friend has recently been put on a strange diet by a doctor of good reputation, and it makes little sense to me. I understand it was given for the purpose of fluid in the body and for a kidney condition. I'd like to try it for the fluid condition but hesitate to do anything so drastic. Nothing but cooked rice and orange juice for every meal for four or five days.

Is it worth the try and has it any benefit for the system? Seems very unbalanced to me, and I try to balance my diet to the best of my knowledge as I cannot take drugs too well without side effects.

Dear Reader — There are many "strange diets" used for special medical problems that should never be used by the public without a doctor's recommendation. The diet you speak of is a variation of the "rice diet." It was popularized by Dr. Walter Kempner at Duke University years ago. In its original form it included only limited amounts of rice and fruit.

The rice diet has two big advantages, it is low in salt and low in protein. You might wonder what advantage there would be to haveing a low protein diet. If you have kidney disease you sometimes have trouble eliminating urea, the ammonia part of amino aicids in the excess protein most people eat. It is also low in calories and can be used as a weight reducing diet. Like other such diets it can make you very weak. You need to take vitamins and minerals if you are on such a diet more than a few days.

The rice diet was used very successfully in many patients with high blood pressure in the days when we had few, if any, effective medicines to offer for this problem. With new medicines it is rarely used. Still it does have its place in medical problems associated with retention of salt, kidney problems, and high blood pressure. The chief value of the diet has been demonstrated to be its extremely low sodium content (low salt).

Since neither rice nor fruit contains any major amount of fat and neither contains any cholesterol, it is truly a low fat, low-cholestrol diet. It is an exhausting diet in many respects. It is certainly not something I could ever advise anyone to take just to manage normal cyclic changes in fluid retention. Absolutely no one should be on this diet unless the doctor has recommended it for a particular problem. However, if I had a patient who could not be managed properly with medicines and a more general diet, I would give it serious consideration.

You have to limit your calories on this diet to lose weight. Calories do count. I always remember one of my patients I had told to eat nothing but rice and fruit in the hopes of controlling his weight and heart disease problems. He did not lose weight. So I asked him, "Alan, what have you been eating?" He replied, "Just what you told me, doc. Just rice and fruit, rice and fruit."

Being of a suspicious nature, I asked him, "what kind of fruit?" "Bananas, doc."

"How many bananas, Alan?"

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of The Progress-Bulletin, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on losing weight, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for the "Losing Weight" booklet.

Florida girl is Miss Teen-ager

ATLANTA (UPI) — The new "Miss National Teenager" is 16-year-old Lisa Lyon of New Port Richey, Fla.

The high school senior competed with 50 other girls ranging in age from 14 to 18 to take the title at Atlanta Civic Center Saturday night.

Karen Keatley, 16, of Beckley, W.Va., was first runner-up to Miss Lyon.

Debbie Klingbenbeck, 14, of Enterprise, Ala., was second runner-up, Robin Timm, 16, of Las Vegas was third runner-up, and Deborah Brown, 17, of Columbia, S.C., was fourth runner-up.

Not as erratic as it appears

By Oswald & James Jacoby

South's one-spade bid was not quite as erratic as it appears at first glance. He didn't like the idea of an immediate jump to three clubs and he did want to make a forcing bid. Later on when North went from three clubs to three spades South decided to bid the spade game anyway. He thought that North would surely hold four spades and in any event South knew that he, South, was a very good dummy player.

Opening lead—3♠

West got off to this best lead — a small trump. The next four tricks were two hearts led and lost by South and two further trumps led by the defense. This left West with the last trump and East with three good hearts but there was no way for East to get on lead.

South simply cashed the two high clubs dropping the queen and jack. Then he took his ace and queen of diamonds and continued clubs. West could ruff any time he wished, but would have to give dummy the rest of the tricks.

We don't approve of South's bidding and don't recommend such calls as a steady diet, but it really worked this time. Furthermore, the more normal contract of five clubs could be beaten by three heart leads with West trumping the third lead with his jack to set up a sure trump trick for East.

President fully aware his mark must satisfy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford lived up to his promise of candor and openness when he permitted his press secretary to casually drop the word that he will "probably" run for the presidency in 1976.

In making his announcement so early in the game, Ford cleared the decks and put any possible challenger on notice that the top spot on the ticket was filled, since most party politicians agree that if Ford wants it, he has it.

Ford also undoubtedly was thinking of the Republican ticket in 1976 when he designated Nelson A. Rockefeller as vice president. Aside from some Republican conservaties the nomination was widely hailed.

In terms of GOP image building, the party could only go up. Watergate wreaked disaster on party candidates during last spring's primaries, and the Democrats were riding the crest for similar victories in the fall elections before Richard Nixon's resignation.

In the present euphoria over the new Ford administration, Republican party leaders are saying it's a whole new ballgame and that some GOP candidates bailed out too soon in the shadow of Watergate.

To demonstrate the priority of pulling his party out of the hole, Ford—in office for less than three weeks—posed for pictures with each and every Republican congressman and Senator who is up for relection in November.

As Vice President, Ford had been on the campaign trail almost constantly for eight months beating the bushes and trying to buck up the party as Washington continued to reverberate with one Watergate bombshell after another.

Tackling almost non-stop the dire predictions of a Democratic landslide and a disastrous defeat for his party, Ford not only gave the party a shot in the arm, but increased his own national exposure and improved his image as a speechmaker.

Now in the position of trying to be "the President of all the People," Ford is going to have to soft pedal his usually strongly partisan role. Consequently, his own aides do not expect him to campaign as vigorously as he would have in the No. 2 spot.

Ford is enjoying the "honeymoon" that is accorded all new Presidents. And he is not about to rock the boat now with strong attacks on the opposition party.

He is also aware that the economy can be a devastating issue against the party in power and he is spotlighting his own active role in seeking a solution to inflation while constantly warning the public not to expect a "miracle."

The specter of a depression, which has haunted Republicans since Herbert Hoover's day, remains with Ford. Continued spiraling inflation over the next year could seriously hamper his own candidacy.

As a consequence, Ford's spokesman has said that he believes his role now is "running the business of government" instead of hitting the campaign trail.

The White House gives Ford a built in advantage as the incumbent with all the powers of the Presidency. But Ford has moved early to announce that the "pplitical" trappings of the office have been moved over to the Republican national committee.

Republicans are still recovering from Nixon's new "American majority" campaign, run from the White House by a special reelection committee outside the party machinery whose only goal was to elect the President.

Ford has made it eminently plain that he likes being President. But beyond his initial popularity is his realization that he also has to make a record in the next two years, and one the majority of voters will applaud.

Gems leave their own fingerprints

LONDON (UPI) — The burglar did not leave his fingerprints —but the jewels did.

And since that makes the job of disposing of them even more difficult than it has been, the discouraged purloiner conceivably might have second thoughts about stealing recorded jewels again.

That's the scenario as scientists see it at the Weizmann Institute Department of Electronics at Rehovot in Israel where a prototype "Gem Fingerprinter" has been developed.

The three inventors —Prof. Ephraim Frei, Prof. Shmuel Shtrickman and Charles Barlsaac —said they discovered the reflections and refractions that are the source of a jewel's beauty also create a pattern as unique as fingerprints.

It is possible to record this pattern and thus identify absolutely any diamond, emerald, sapphire or other stone. To do this, the researchers said, they developed a simple system for making a photographic record of the light pattern derived from the stone's inherent imperfections.

"The invention now makes it possible to present the purchaser of any precious stone with a certificate containing the gem's fingerprint," they said. "Should the stone be later lost or stolen and then recovered and rephotographed, a comparison of this new fingerprint with the original could be used, in court if necessary, as positive proof of ownership.

"The gem fingerprint should prove indispensable for settling the frequent disputes between jewelers and customers who claim the stone returned after setting and cleaning is not the same one they left. It should also prove invaluable to diamond dealers, insurance companies and in police work."

The inventors said the crucial feature of the apparatus — which fits into a small suitcase —is a specially designed mechanism for identically positioning the gem each time it is photographed.

They said they anticipated worldwide registration of gems when the device is popularly released and computer registration which would speed up identification of a gem stolen, say, in New York and recovered in Rio de Janeiro.

Bernice Bede Osol

For Thursday, Sept. 5

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Work or service you need performed that requires special expertise should not be farmed out unless you fully trust the craftsman.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In your haste to get things done mistakes are likely. This could upset you and spoil some fun you're looking forward to.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't gamble on anything that could later reflect poorly on your reputation or status. Follow as conservative a course as possible.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You will be easily dissuaded from what you wish to attain if you listen to suggestions from one who doesn't fully comprehend your purposes.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Poor planning can prove costly at this time. Be sure your every move is thought out in advance, then proceed slowly.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In a situation where you're sharing something with another, it appears each is expecting more from this sharing than is realistic.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be very careful if making an agreement with another. There are certain facts that are being cleverly hidden from your view.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're going to get an urgent request to do something unusual for a friend. Before you get too involved, be sure it's necessary.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) One of your outside interests will expose you to the boring company of two individuals who like to play the big shot role.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't exaggerate about anything of a material nature by pretending you have something you don't. You'll get an embarrassing request for a loan if you do.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) One of your friends will try to get you involved in a situation. You'll find it's a trifle too extravagant for your own good if you heed his pitch.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Continue to be as wary as a Scrooge where money is concerned. Try not to borrow, lend or spend foolishly.

Your Birthday Sept. 5

Opportunities this year will come thick and fast, but they'll be of a fleeting nature. Common sense and follow-through will be required if they are to produce a yield.

5 cents more may be cut from tax hike

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — An additional 5 cents may be cut from a proposed 54-cent increase in the county general fund property tax rate for 1974-75, Harry L. Hufford, acting chief administrative officer, said Tuesday.

Hufford said revised revenue estimates would permit the reduction. Last week, a 3-cent cut was granted from a proposed 57-cent tax increase because of changes in welfare and Medi-Cal cost estimates and the state Board of Equalization's assessments of public utilities.

As now estimated, the 1974-75 county general fund tax rate will be $4.3544 for each $100 assessed valuation. This would be an increase of 49 cents over last year's rate of $3.8652.

Pomona Juniors presented award by Bank of America

The Pomona Junior Woman's Club was given a first place award in the Build a Better Community Contest sponsored jointly by the California Federation of Women's Clubs and the Bank of America.

Mrs. Julie Stewart, club president, received a silver tray and $25 check from H. Gordan Wells, vice president and manager of the Pomona Main Office of Bank of America, Friday morning.

During the year, 224 Junior Clubs completed 6,610 community service projects and were responsible for raising $584,957 for community improvements in the state. The bank presented $4,500 to the clubs.

Residing in Seattle after San Dimas rites

MRS. DENNIS WELCH

Making their home in Seattle, Wash., are newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Bruce Welch.

The bride is the former Grace Fern Moore, daughter of Mrs. Lloyd W. Moore of San Dimas. Parents of the groom are Dr. and Mrs. William A. Welch of Bellevue, Wash.

The couple exchanged vows in a double-ring, evening ceremony at the San Dimas Methodist Church. Officiants were Dr. Welch, father of the groom, Dr. J. Edward Burn and the Rev. Harvey E. Flomberg.

Given in marriage by her brother, Harold L. Moore, the bride wore a gown of silk organza fashioned with a Victorian neckline, Schiffli embroidered long full sleeves and a gathered skirt with a deep hem flounce. Venise lace appliques accented the gown. A matching veil completed the bride's ensemble and she carried a nosegay of white roses, yellow daisies, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Matrons of honor were Mrs. Owen Rogers and Mrs. Alford Neely. Acolytes were Julie and Dee Dee Duncan. Assisting at the guest book was Jennifer Rice and Lyndel Morgan assisted with gifts.

Groomsmen were E. Harper Welch and Craig Groendyke. Ushers were Richard Cheatham, Craig Saari, Kenneth Sherman and Richard Trostle.

The newlyweds greeted guests at the church after the rites. They honeymooned in Chicago.

TODAY'S Women

Scholarship awarded by PEO Sisterhood

Mrs. Ellen Mindell Minnich of Claremont has been awarded a $250 scholarship from PEO Sisterhood to continue her music education.

Mrs. Noel Shutt, president of the sponsoring Chapter CS, PEO Sisterhood, said the organization presents scholarships to outstanding women seeking to continue their education.

Mrs. Minnich is a viola student of Louis Kievman of Pacific Palisades and has participated in the Claremont Music Festival during the past several summers.

She attended Pomona College from 1967 to 1970 and hopes to complete her college education this year. She resided in San Francisco for two years where she was a professional musician with Bay Area orchestras and performed at weddings, churches and concerts.

Now residing in Claremont while her husband, John, is a graduate student, Mrs. Minnich is viola section leader with the Pomona College orchestra and has performed in chamber music concerts at Claremont Colleges.

Carpenters Auxiliary slates sale

The Carpenter Ladies Auxiliary 647, Pomona, has scheduled a rummage sale Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Boys Market parking lot, corner of Holt Avenue and Indian Hill Boulevard.

Members of the public wishing to donate items to the sale may call Mrs. Uuno Hietikko, chairman of the sale committee.

Ask Dr. Brothers

Sees exhibitionist

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: We moved recently to the city and were happy to find there were many advantages for our three children. Unfortunately, I m afraid some of the disadvantages may outweigh the many cultural advantages, however.

Because of our location in the city and because of the limited size of our pocketbook, our children have to travel to school by subway. The boys enjoy the trip and still consider it kind of an adventure, but our 14-year-old daughter hates it. At first, she didn't want to tell me why, but last week, we got to the bottom of the problem. On two occasions she has seen exhibitionists on the trains and this frightened her. The bus is not as direct a route as the subway and we can't afford cabs. I don't know what to tell her or if I should share her fears. —E.N.

Dear E.N.: I suggest you explain to your young daughter that these men are immature, insecure and are afraid themselves. They are afraid they are not male, or that they are in danger of losing their prized masculinity. Most exhibitionists are harmless men who are trying to shock to prove to themselves and to those around them that they exist as males. The best thing for any woman to do is to ignore them; simply try to pretend they are not there. Criminologists say that this will not provoke them to violence, or to any action.

Your daughter might be reassured if she could travel with one of her brothers, or if she could arrange to meet and travel with girls who attend the same school.

There is no guarantee that your daughter will not see the same sort of display on or from a bus, or even from a cab. Education is the best protection for city children, for it is almost impossible to prevent their observing various forms of mental illness and sexual deviation if they areallowed to grow up with the necessary freedom. Teaching children about what they may expect helps to prepare for life and prevents them from feeling panic when it isn't necessary, or perhaps when panic may even place them in danger.

Most exhibitionists are not only not violent, few are child molsters. Dr. Harry L. Kozol, director of the Massachusetts Center for Diagnosis and Treatment of Sexually Dangerous Persons, says that voyeurs, while generally harmless, can't be dismissed as easily as exhibitionists. Sometimes, voyeurs are trying to spy out a certain set-up in preparation and anticipation of later committing a sexual assault. Similarly, some child molesters are dangerous, but two out of three go through a lifetime without using violence. Like the exhibitionist, they lack confidence about their own adult sexuality. The child molester is unconsciously trying to find someone on his own level of sexual maturity.

Your daughter's reluctance to discuss what she witnessed on her journeys to school may indicate that she has deep guilts about her own sexuality. Normally, a daughter would feel somewhat freer to discuss such a situation with her mother. It may be that you have, without knowing it, passed on to her some of your fears and anxieties about sex. It's quite understandable that it would be difficult for a 14-year-old girl to discuss such matters with her father, but if she has this problem with you alone, I urge you to try to look deeper into the reasons for her shyness.

Remember, it is possible to educate children about sex without frightening them or without making them suspicious of all those of the opposite sex. Enlightenment usually frees rather then frightens. It is frequently ignorance about a matter that makes us panic.

March 1 marriage charted

A March 1 wedding is being planned by Miss Catherine Kay McGehee and Thomas John Hill.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. McGehee of Montclair, the bride-elect graduated from Montclair High School in 1973. She is employed at McDonald's in Pomona.

Mr. Hill is the son of the Robert Hills of Ontario. He graduated from Chaffey High School in 1971 and is employed by Pathfinder Equipment Company, San Gabriel.

The United States, with 6 per cent of the world's population, consumes about one-third of the world's energy.

Cookbook has menus for oven

Currently, more than 34 million American women are employed outside the home.

The past few years have produced shortages of many foods and the energy supply is critically low. These are the major reasons that homemakers are turning to oven meals to save time and valuable gas and electricity.

To meet the increasing demand for oven meals and combined menus, Better Homes and Gardens just published its newest cookbook, "Oven Meals," an inexpensive hard back edition.

Today's busy and concerned homemaker can prepare entire meals in the oven with the guidance of the book which has 33 color pictures and 285 recipes. Included along with the 32 nutritious menus for easy meal planning are handy schedules coordinating the times and temperatures for each meal.

An introductory chapter tells how to save time in the kitchen by cooking all the dishes for a meal in the oven; how to save money by using less tender cuts of meat and cooking them longer and more slowly, and how to save energy by filling the oven to capacity.

It also has a chapter on microwave ovens and countertop microwave cookery.

Wood type collector

Worldwide clientel

By STEVEN R. REED

MMCKINNEY, Tex. (UPI) — In a week's time E.H. Henry, a printer who gave up his trade two years ago, is as likely to do business with customers from West Germany or Northern Ireland as he is with one of his Collin County neighbors or a shopper from Dallas.

The slim man from Missouri and his wife of 35 years labor in a dusty building a block off the town square. A sign over the front door gives only Henry's name. There is no flashing neon nor any need for it.

But despite the obscure surroundings Henry's antique wood type collection is the largest and among the most valuable in the United States.

"If what I have stored here burned, then all the money of Howard Hughes couldn't replace it because it just isn't there to replace anymore," Henry said as he surveyed stacks of century-old type trays and one-of-a-kind handcarved pieces of wooden type.

A week earlier Henry, 63, drove to Colorado in search of the type. The week before that he traveled to Kansas and he plans to search in Pennsylvania. He has bought old type in 42 states but more and more there is less and less available for purchase.

"For a while I used to get 10 replies a week to the advertisement I run in trade publications," he said. "Now I'm lucky to average one every two weeks.

"I traveled 50,000 miles a year but it is going to be a lot less now because it (antique wood type) is just not there."

When the wood type is gone —to antique collectors, museums or housewives who just want to make an attractive collage —there won't be any replacements.

"From about 1828 to 1900 it was used extensively," Henry said. "But offset (cold type) replaced it in 95 per cent of the weekly newspapers across the country. There won't be anymore. It can't be reproduced, it's too expensive. It was handrouted (carved)."

Henry finds his wooden type in small town print shops and rural newspapers primarily. Many have closed through the years and unloaded the type inexpensively before it became a popular decorating trend.

He can get a better price from dealers or print shop owners who think of the merchandise in terms of its old use rather than as an "antique" commodity.

"For a time I would leave behind the type trays because I didn't think they were worth carrying home," Henry said. "Now I wish I had them."

"I have approximately 1,200 to 1,500 drawers of wood type and about 9,000 copper coated cuts and 3,000 type trays."

In his travels Henry has acquired priceless cuts he has no plans to sell including an American flag with 33 stars and a political advertisement cut for William McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt.

For the nation's bicentennial celebration Henry has put together three collages, each of which sold immediately. An advertising salesman once bought up several large wooden pieces of type and put together a collage of mostly block letters which a paper manufacturer used to photograph and reproduce on decorative Kleenex boxes.

Henry said his claim of largest stock in the United States was challenged only once by a fellow dealer from Ohio. But when Henry suggested they match stock with the loser giving his collection to the winner, the challenger backed down.

Economist writing India off; can't limit population

NEW DELHI (UPI) — India's goal of becoming an affluent society has been irreparably shattered by its population explosion.

"The Indians are caught on a nightmarish merry-go-round," said one Western economist. "They are not able to limit their population because they have not developed economically. And they will never develop economically because they cannot limit their population."

Although they wince when they say it, many of the country's economists and demographers now say that most of India's children for the next two generations will never live in a snug home, wear a pair of shoes, learn to read, climb out of poverty or face life without fear of hunger.

According to demographers, India's population will increase during 1974 at the rate of 500 per minute, 3,000 per hour, 36,000 per day, 13 million per year —the total population of Australia.

At that rate, the nation's current population of nearly 600 million will reach 1.1 billion by the year 2,000.

"Look at the misery of these 600 million people. Look at the malnutrition, the slums, the unemployment, the ignorance," said a foreign economist. "It makes me shudder to think of life here with one billion people."

The foremost reason, both Indians and foreigners agree, why India has been unable to control its population growth is that babies mean income to the average rural family.

"It is to the economic advantage of the family to have as many children as possible," explained one population expert. "At present the sole chance for upward mobility in India is a large family —all of whom can from an early age contribute to the family income."

"How do you explain to an illiterate farmer that the dozen children he wants to help him in the fields now and provide him with security in his old age are with their very numbers damaging to the nation as a whole" asked one Indian demographer.

"Every new factory, every increase in crop production is canceled out by the even greater number of citizens among whom the benefits must be divided," said a foreign economist. "India will be lucky if she can continue to just keep her head above water."

Economic planners complain they have received little support from politicans, who studiously avoid the subject of family planning for fear of antagonizing constituents still indignant over earlier proposals for compulsory birth control.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi has been quoted as saying she does not "view the population problem with grave anxiety."

While Mrs. Gandhi's ruling Congress party maintains a low profile on family planning, members of the Hindu extremist Jana Sangh party condemn current programs as a plot to increase the Moslem share of the population.

Political pressure was a major factor, population experts charge, in the recent closure of a mass vasectomy clinic which sterilized 3.5 million volunteers in 1973.

"We have written India off as a country which will ever be viable economically," said another Western economist. "One answer is for the wealthier nations to increase their aid year by year to keep India from going under. There is really no alternative, is there"

Big demand

A total of 3,170 billion gallons of water, about eight times the average daily flow of the Mississippi River, is funneled daily through the nation's water pipes, turbines and irrigation systems to meet the demand of homes, factories, farms, and power plants.

Polish Commie leader to pay Ford a visit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House announced Wednesday that Polish Communist party leader Edward Gierek will visit Washington Oct. 8, the highest ranking leader of his country to come to the United States since the end of World War II.

Deputy Press Secretary John Hushen said Gierek, first secretary of the Polish United Workers Party, would be making "an official visit."

Hushen said President Ford and Gierek would "review developments in U.S.-Polish relations" and other matters of mutual concern to their two governments.

Hushen said Gierek, who succeeded Wladyslaw Gomulka in December, 1970, probably would travel outside of Washington, but details were uncertain.

Skewered delight called many names

Shish kebabs, shashliks or kabobs—under any name this intriguing skewered meat entree makes a delightful menu selection for both summer cookouts and indoor dinners. An important feature of kabobs is their versatility. They can star at a galmorous dinner party or take center stage at a casual make-your-own meal. Short skewers make convenient individual servings, while long ones hold enough for a twosome.

Beef, lamb and pork all combine with a variety of vegetables and fruits to make delicious kabobs. Traditionally the cubes of meat to be threaded on skewers are first marinated. This allows for the use of cuts of meat that are more economical than the popular broiling steaks, since marinating has a tenderizing effect.

A good selection is a portion of a beef tip roast. Having no bone and little fat covering, it provides more servings per pound of delicious beef. When cut into cubes, marinated and cooked to rare or medium, the result is juicy meat with that popular beef flavor mingled with the marinade's herbs.

Beef and Plum Kabobs is a tasty new recipe that calls for marinating cubes cut from a beef tip roast in a gourmet mixture of red port wine, rosemary, thyme and garlic. The meat is then threaded on skewers with plum halves and green pepper pieces. A mushroom tips each skewer for the finishing touch before broiling. The beef, flavored with port and herbs, the juicy sweet plums, zingy green pepper and delicate mushrooms harmonize for true eating pleasure.

Slide your Beef and Plum Kabobs off the skewer onto a bed of fluffy buttered rice flecked with minced parsley. Along with this serve fresh green beans and carrots from the garden and a tossed salad of lettuce and tomatoes. For hearty eaters, add crescent rolls to complete the main course. Choose chocolate mousse for a special dessert that doesn't require last minute preparation.

BEEF AND PLUM KABOBS

- 2 to 2½ pounds beef tip roast, cut in 1¼-inch cubes
- ½ cup red port wine
- 1-3rd cup salad oil
- ¼ cup wine vinegar
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon rosemary
- ¼ teaspoon thyme
- 1 clove garlic, crushed
- 9 plums, cut in half and pitted
- 2 medium green peppers, cut in sixths
- 6 large mushrooms

Combine port wine, salad oil, vinegar, salt, rosemary, thyme and garlic in a saucepan and cook slowly 5 minutes, stirring occasionally; cool. Place cubes and marinade in plastic bag or bowl, close securely and refrigerate 6 hours or overnight. Turn cubes at least once while marinating. Drain marinade from beef and pour over plums, green pepper and mushrooms. Thread beef cubes, plum halves and pieces of green pepper alternately on 6 skewers (12- to 15-inch). Add 1 mushroom to end of each skewer. Place kabobs on rack in broiler pan or on grill top over ash-covered coals so surface of meat is 3 to 4 inches from heat. Broil for 18 to 22 minutes, depending on degree of doneness desired (rare or medium), turning and brushing with marinade occasionally. Makes 6 servings.

Vitamins not needed if diet is balanced

Here is an economy tip for these times of inflation: Many families seeking to cut food costs may have overlooked the fact that vitamin pills and supplements also cost more money. The question is, are you sure you need these expensive items for your health?

Many don't consider this at all. For example, a relative of mine dashed into Macy's in New York and flopped a $20 bill onto the counter. He demanded $20 worth of vitamins. The clerk asked what kind. He merely shook his head. "Any kind. I don't want my kids to get any colds this winter," he replied.

His intentions were good but he showed total ignorance of vitamins. Did he consider what kind of food his family was eating? That knowledge would tell whether or not his children needed any of the many synthetic vitamins. He did not know that the bulky but unvaried food they ate would not guarantee them the natural vitamins they needed.

People who eat milk, cheese, eggs, meat, fish, poultry, vegetables, fruits and cereal regularly eat what is called a balanced diet — the best guarantee of getting all the body's needed nutrients.

There is a new book just published which actually discussed vitamins and supplements with intelligence and understanding. Written by Erwin Di Cyan, Ph.D., an experienced drug consultant, the book is well-praised by competent nutrition judges for its common sense appeal. Dr. Di Cyan's attitude on the need for supplemental vitamins in many cases differs to a degree from that of other specialists in this field.

He defines a vitamin as a member of a group of chemicals or certain organic substances which is found in minute amounts in various foodstuffs. He said it is indespensible to normal metabolism and when absent causes certain deficiency diseases which can be life-threatening. Minute amounts of vitamins often reverse the deficiency symptoms.

He describes micro nutrients or trace metals as minute amounts or traces from plants, rocks, the earth's crust or in animals.

"Vitamins in Your Life" $7.95 — Simon & Schuster) asks if we can get enough vitamins from the "good American diet"? The answer is yes and no. There are several reasons, Dr. Di Cyan believes, why we sometimes do not get enough vitamins from our much vaunted American diet.

He lists them: People often dislike foods that are good for them. Certain ethnic groups will not eat some American staples. Commercial processing and storage may reduce vitamin content. People with small incomes often cannot afford to buy recommended nutritious foods. Older people have set ideas of what they like and some are even superstitious. Regional preferences are often strong. These reasons and many more speak for the wisdom of adequate supplementation of vitamins and minerals in the diet.

Knowledge of reasons why the American diet, excellent as it is, does not supply all the required vitamins and trace elements may encourage some of us to force ourselves away from the prejudices and dislikes we indulge in. At least, under the whip of inflation, we might make a try.

Alioto asking jury probe of port finances

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Mayor Joseph L. Alioto announced Wednesday he is asking a grand jury investigation into the financially troubled Port of San Francisco.

"We are dealing in huge amounts of money," the mayor said.

"The public has a right to know that the port management is securing from its tenants the highest possible revenue—obtainable under competitive conditions."

BLACK BOTTOM PECAN PIE

In a large bowl, slightly beat 3 eggs. Add ¾ cup sugar, ½ cup light corn syrup, ½ cup melted margarine and ¼ cup bourbon. Stir in 1 cup chopped pecans, a 6-ounce package semisweet chocolate bits and ¼ cup cornstarch. Pour mixture into an unbaked 9-inch pastry shell. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour. Filling, when done, should be slightly less set in the center of the pie than around edges.

Californians okay Reagan performance

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California Poll reported today that Californians find that Gov. Ronald Reagan did a relatively good job during his two terms as the state's chief executive.

The poll reported that 35 per cent feel he has done a good job as governor, 36 per cent fair, and 24 per cent a poor job.

Reagan's high point of popularity was in February, 1969, when the poll found 42 per cent said Reagan was doing a good job and only 15 per cent listed his performance as poor.

His low point came in August, 1971, when 28 per cent said he was doing a good job and 33 per cent a poor one.

By contrast, former President Richard Nixon and former governor Edmund G. Brown fared worse in the poll.

Nixon's performance was rated as good by 37 per cent and poor by only 16 per cent in November, 1970, but his ratings slipped steadily and by August of 1974, 16 per cent rated his performance as a good one and a whopping 61 per cent as a poor one.

Meat supply may increase by next year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite the grain-killing drought, next year's meat supplies may be higher than they are now, according to government figures, which also indicate higher prices for steak and lower prices for hamburger next year.

Agriculture Department estimates made available to UPI show that there may be enough of an increase in the slaughter of low-grade, grass-fed beef to offset next year's expected declines in pork, poultry and high-grade beef production.

The preliminary estimates, say department economists, indicate that per capita meat availability could reach 240 pounds in 1975 compared to this year's expected 237 pounds. The 1975 estimate would have a slightly higher proportion of red meat to poultry than this year's.

One economist said that prices of next year's meat will depend in large part on the effects of inflation and on how much consumers will be able to afford.

"Overall, beef might not be much different from this year although hamburger will be relatively cheap and high-grade steak will be expensive," he said. "But pork and poultry could cost more."

The estimates indicate that per capita pork, poultry and lamb may be lower next year, but that total beef and veal supplies will be up.

According to Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, the number of cattle has been steadily growing, providing enough old beef cows and young animals fed on grass instead of grain to keep the slaughterhouses full.

The result of the grain shortage would be fewer grain-fattened cattle, more grass-fed cattle turned into hamburger and lower supplies of high-grade steaks.

Rapist captured in stolen car

ATASCADERO (UPI) — A rapist who walked away from a state mental hospital Aug. 13 was captured Thursday in a stolen car near Goldfield, Nev.

Just months before he might have been put on probation, James Morrell, 21, of San Diego, escaped from the facility. Officials said Morrell, who will be returned to the hospital, now faces one to five years at the institution.

Finally. A&W root beer at your grocery store.

For fifty years, the greatest root beer in the whole world has been root beer from A&W drive-in restaurants. Rich, natural-tasting, old-fashioned A&W root beer.

Problem was, when you couldn't drive out, you couldn't get that great A&W drive-in taste.

So we've put A&W in bottles and cans.

And now the greatest root beer in the whole world can be the greatest root beer in your whole refrigerator. Finally.

Timing is the key to enjoyable pursuits like eating

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Maurice Moore-Betty is an Irishman who knows that timing is often the key to enjoyable pursuits.

To paraphrase Abraham Lincoln, "I will prepare myself and when the opportunity comes, I'll be ready." This Moore-Betty did, unknowingly.

As a child Moore-Betty enjoyed hunting, fishing and learning about cooking and good food from his mother and the family cook. Often he prepared his day's catch for his brothers and sisters and admits. "The meals were memorable, if sometimes odd."

Looking back, he reflects that "children's tastes in food and eating habits are determined by the practices of their parents. Appreciation of good food is stimulated by the good, though usually simple, food at home. Delicious and interesting food does not have to be extravagant and fancy."

Moore-Betty put this philosphy to very conventient use when he came to New York to stay after World War II.

His background is international and he is the epitome of the English military in the era when the sun never set on The Empire. He worked in tobacco in Southern Rhodesia, cotton in the Sudan, was a member of the Camel Corps in the Middle East. He served in the Far East and after the war asked to become an apprentice to Monsieur Avignon, then chef of The Ritz in London. After this stint he opened a restaurant in Hanover Square catering to the rag trade, editors of fashion magazines and the like. Until the building was demolished, "We served 250 lunches daily in two hours flat."

Upon coming to New York, Moore-Betty served as a consultant for J.C. Penny's Cook 'n Shops, supervisor of the American Express executive dining room, and as food consultant to Pfeiffer's Foods and to Corning.

However busy he was in his corporate food ventures, Moore-Betty really found his timing was right in the cooking school area. In the last five years cooking schools have blossomed and about the only type of instruction not listed in the Yellow Pages is how to make mud pies (it's probably there under 'earth sculpture').

Recently, while Moore-Betty served a pleasant lunch of tomato consomme, omelette fines herbes, poached pear with the raspberry sauce, leftover chocolate mousse and freshly ground coffee (with raw sugar), he said he first started classes for teens and graduated to adults.

"I found the teen-agers stimulating but their classes were not enough time to teach them how to look out for themselves."

When he began the classes, he started with the premise that he would not be an expensive babysitter for young people whose mums wanted to go off and play golf or tennis on Saturday mornings.

He taught the teens basics and didn't subscribe to the "free will-do-what-you-want theory" because it would have gone on forever and few would have learned.

As a result he also got much from the youth session. "I discovered youths have sophisticated tastes and are marvelous in handling equipment. They got the message right away. Grownups have hang-ups, such as what a dish should look like. Usually they are wrong."

He is enthusiastic now about persons of all ages wanting to "do something other than their day-to-day jobs. I think this is why so many men and women enroll in cooking classes.

"In my parents' day, women, especially, were taught to do many things. My mother was taught to cook. She learned needlework (which he does, too) painting, music and even carpenty. This was true in the days of the American colonies."

"Now, thank God," Moore-Betty continued, "more people are learning to do things . . . they want to create something of their own."

As for food, "It is changing, too, and not always for he better. I think it is wrong for the food industry to promote the idea that size is the mark of quality . . . in a carrot or anything else since these usually have no flavor."

His books, "Cooking School Book of Fine Cooking" and "The Civilized Art' of Salad Making," reflect his desire that as many as possible enjoy the total food experience as he does.

PINEAPPLE CHICKEN SALAD

3 cups roasted chicken diced (bite size)
¾ cup celery diced
1 teaspoon chopped green onion
1 can (about 9 ounces) pineapple chunks or tidbits (drained)
1-3rd cup whipped cream
slivered almonds (optional)
Seedless grapes (optional)
Romaine

Combine chicken, celery, onion, pineapple. Combine in salad bowl. Combine dressing with chicken mixture. Spoon with ckecken mixture. Spoon into a glass blowl lined with romaine lettuce. Garnish with almonds and grapes if desired. Makes 6 servings.

ZUCCHINI-APPLE SALAD

1 cup raw, unpared zucchini
2 cups cored, unpared Red Delicious apples
½ medium green pepper
½ cup blue cheese dressing

Slice zucchini and apples as hin as possible. Slice green pepper in strips length-wise (julienne.) Add dressing and mix well together. Refrigerate, covered, about 3 hours, tossing salad occasionally. Makes 2 to to 3 servings.

FRESH FISH SALAD

1 pound lean fish (cod, turbot, flounder, sole or other) baked or poached, bone, skinned and flaked, or ¾ pound (2 cups) precooked lean fish filet broken into chunks
1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley
1-3rd cup Russian dressing
Paprika
Lettuce

Using a fork, with a light hand mix fish, parsley and dressing together in a wooden bowl until well combined. Arrange lettuce in another bowl or individual lettuce cups on salad plates. Fill with fish salad and dust with paprika. Makes 4 servings as a main dish; 6 as appetizer.

BUFFET FLANK STEAK ROLL

Mix ½ cup chopped onion, ¼ cup chopped celery, ¼ cup wheat germ, ¼ cup minced parsley, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 1 clove minced garlic, ¾ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper and 1 teaspoon sage. Spread out 1 and ¾-pound flank steak. Place stuffing on steak in a long strip. Roll beef lengthwise around stuffing and tie the roll with string in several places. Place in a 13x9 baking pan. Rub roll generously with butter and bake, uncovered, about 45 minutes at 375 degrees, basting occasionally with pan juices. Chill and slice.

LIVER IN WINE

Place 1 pound thinly sliced liver in a shallow dish. Combine ½ cup red wine and ½ teaspoon crushed, dried rosemary. Pour over liver. Cover and refrigerate 30 minutes to 2 hours. Drain off marinade and reserve. Melt ¼ cup margarine in heavy skillet and saute ½ cup sliced onions and 1 cup sliced mushrooms. Dip drained liver slices into flour and brown on one side. Turn and brown other side, then pour wine over meat. Cover and cook 10 or 15 minutes. Season with salt.

The English provide something different

The English are well-known for their meat pies and stir-ups. Taking a leaf from an English cookbook, next time you want something decidely different and extremely attractive serve a Ham and Egg Pie. This is a Worcestershire-flavored combination of ham and hard-cooked eggs baked in a crust until done. Then it is filled through a hole left in the crust's top with jellied bouillon and then chilled for serving.

HAM AND EGG PIE

4 cups all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup vegetable shortening
2-3rd cup milk
5 tablespoons water
1 chicken bouillon cube
2 cups boiling water
2 pounds cooked ham, cut into ¼-inch cubes (about 6 cups)
¼ cup chopped parsley
3 tablespoons worcestershire sauce
4 hard-cooked eggs
1 envelope unflavored gelatin

To prepare pastry, in a large bowl combine flour and salt; make a well in center. Heat shortening, milk and water to boiling; pour all at once into well. Stir with a wooden spoon until mixture forms a ball. Turn onto a lightly floured board; knead until smooth, about 3 minutes. Cover surface with plastic wrap. Set aside for 30 minutes. Dissolve bouillon cube in boiling water. Combine ¼ cup of the bouillon with ham, parsley, and Worcestershire sauce; set aside. Roll out 2-3rds of the pastry into a 15x12-inch rectangle. Fit into bottom and sides of a greased 9x5x3-inch loaf pan. Spoon half of ham mixture into pastry-lined pan; place eggs in a row down center of meat. Cover with remaining ham mixture; pat smooth. Roll out remaining pastry to fit top of pan; place on ham, trim, turn under and flute edges. Cut out a small circle from center of pastry for steam to excape. Using pastry trimmings roll out leaves for spoon water. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 2 hours to thoroughly cook bottom of pastry. Sprinkle gelatin over reserved ¾ cup chicken bouillon to soften for 5 minutes. Heat over low heat until gelatin dissolves. Carefully pour through funnel into hole in top of pie. Let pie cool. Refrigerate until well chilled. To unmold, gently run a knife around top edge of pastry to loosen slightly. Unmold and slice. Serve cold only. Makes 8 portions.

UC alums will greet students

The alumni association of UC Berkeley will sponsor a daylong orientation for new students Sept. 7 from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. at the Union Oil Building, 461 S. Boylston Ave., Los Angeles.

Registration starts at 8:30 a.m. Cost for the day is $6 and includes lunch.

New students and their parents will get insights into the operation of the university and its academic requirements. Student services that are available will also be explained.

Registration information may be obtained by calling 213-681-3458.

Vague outline to ethics of bureaucrats

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Caesar's wife is back in town.

In the post Watergate era, the fabled Roman lady who had to be "above suspicion" is being courted by bureaucrats.

President Ford, asked whether he planned to set up a code of ethics for his new administration, set a simple standard:

"The code of ethics that will be followed will be the example that I set."

But most cases involving the ethics of a bureaucrat are not that simple.

For example, take the case of Civil Aeronatuics Board (CAB) chairman Robert D. Timm, whose job it is to regulate airline fares and route awards.

Timm accepted a two-day expense paid golfing vacation in Bermuda in June from Harry J. Gray, the chairman of United Aircraft Corp., a major supplier of engines to U.S. airlines.

Gray also invited along the chief executives of Pan American, Trans World, Braniff and Western Airlines.

When the trip became known, Timm argued that he had done nothing wrong.

He reasoned that CAB members are often in the presence of officials from the industries they regulate. Simply because he played golf with the executives is no reason to assume that he would show partiality to their firms, Timm said.

But Rep. Harley O. Staggers, D-W.Va., chairman of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, criticized Timm pointing out that United Aircraft was a party to a case pending before the board.

The Aviation Consumers Action Project (ACAP), a consumer group, and Overseas National Airways, a supplemental airline, also argued that Timm had compromised himself and should not take part in any case involving the airlines, or the engine maker.

Timm claimed that, at least in the case of United Aircraft, he was not even aware that the engine-manufacturer was involved in any of his pending cases.

But Timm also had some second thoughts. He sent United Aircraft a check to cover his expenses for the Bermuda trip and to "erease any cloud" over the weekend.

A happy compromise? No. The ACAP wants the board to discipline its chairman. But Timm's supporters claim he is being persecuted.

There is no evidence of any wrong-doing, they say. Nor is it wrong for a regulator to understand the industries he regulates.

Garden-fresh goodness is well worth preserving

There is a way to enjoy out-of-season garden goodness throughout the year without worrying about fluctuating market prices. Can or freeze fresh items now. In the long run this saves money and there is a psychological bonus. The colorful array of relishes and jams on pantry shelves and the savoring of their contents throughout the long winter months are satisfaction well worth the few busy kitchen hours required.

For beginners, a secret to less stress is in preparing jars, cans and all necessary equipment before the actual work with fruits or vegetables begins. Try a cooperative venture when putting up foods. It is fun to have some one to work with and talk to while following step-by-step directions.

STRAWBERRIES

A bumper crop of strawberries is reported and prices should be more economical during September. This is a good time to can and freeze, but remember—strawberries tend to fade and lose flavor when canned. Used firm, red-ripe berries, without white or hollow centers. Hull, wash, drain and measure berries. Use ½ to ¾ cup sugar to each quart berries. Gently mix sugar with berries. Let stand 5 to 6 hours in a cool place. Heat slowly until sugar dissolves and berries are hot. Pack hot, into hot jars, leaving ½-inch head space. Adjust caps. Process pints 10 minutes, quarts 15 minutes, in boiling-water bath.

STRAWBERRY-RHUBARB JAM

- 2 cups prepared fruit (about 1 pint fully ripe strawberries and 1 pound rhubarb)
- 4 cups (1¾ pounds) sugar
- ¾ cup water
- 1 box (1¾ ounces) powdered fruit pectin

Prepare containers. Use only containers 1 pint or less in size that have tight-fitting lids. Wash, scald and drain containers and lids; or use automatic diswasher with really hot (150 degrees or higher) rinse water. To prepare the fruit: stem and thoroughly crush, one layer at a time, about 1 pint strawberries. Measure 1 cup into large bowl or pan. Grind very fine (do not peel) about 1 pound rhubarb. Measure 1 cup. Add to the strawberries. Thoroughly mix sugar into fruit; let stand 10 minutes. Mix water and fruit pectin in a small saucepan. Bring to a boil and boil 1 minute, stirring constantly. Stir into fruit. Continue stirring about 3 minutes. (A few sugar crystals will remain.) Ladle quickly into containers. Cover at once with tight lids. Let stand at room temperature until set (may take up to 24 hours); then store in freezer. If jam will be used within 2 or 3 weeks, it may be stored in the refrigerator. Makes 5 cups or about 5 (8 fluid ounces) containers.

FREEZER FRUIT CUP JAM

- ¾ cup prepared strawberries (about 1 pint fully ripe strawberries)
- ¾ cup prepared pineapple (¼ fully ripe medium pineapple)
- ½ cup prepared oranges (2 medium oranges)
- ½ cup prepared pears (about ½ pound fully ripe pears)
- 4½ cups (2 pounds) sugar
- ¾ cup water
- 1 box fruit pectin

Prepare containers. Use glass or plastic containers (one pint or less) with tight-fitting lids. Wash, scald and drain. Thoroughly crush about 1 pint fully ripe strawberries; measure ¾ cup into a large bowl. Peel, core and grind a fourth of a fully ripe medium pineapple; measure ¾ cup into the bowl. Peel and section 2 medium oranges, discard membrane and seeds, and crush thoughly; measure ½ cup into the bowl. Peel, core, and grind about ½ pound fully ripe pears; measure ½ cup into the bowl. Mix sugar into fruits; let stand 10 minutes. Mix water and sure-jell fruit pectin in a small pan. Bring to a boil and boil 1 minute, stirring constantly. Stir into fruits. Continue stirring for 3 minutes. (A few sugar crystals may remain). Ladle quickly into containers: cover at once with tight lids. Let stand until set (this may take up to 24 hours); then store in freezer. If jam is to be used within 2 or 3 weeks, it may be stored in refrigerator. Makes about 5½ cups.

FREEZER STRAWBERRY ORANGE JAM

- 1¾ cups prepared fruit (about 1½ pints fully ripe strawberries)
- 1 medium orange
- 4 cups (1¾ pounds) sugar
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice (1 lemon)
- ½ bottle fruit pectin

Prepare containers as directed. Crush about 1½ pints fully ripe strawberries; measure 1½ cups into a large bowl or pan. Grate rind from 1 medium orange; add ½ teaspoon to strawberries. Section and chop orange, removing membrane and seeds; measure ¼ cup into the bowl. Mix sugar into the fruits; let stand 10 minutes. Mix lemon juice and fruit pectin; stir into fruit mixture. Continue stirring about 3 minutes. (A few sugar crystals may remain.) Ladle into containers. Cover at once with tight lids. When jam is set (may take up to 24 hours), store in freezer. If jam will be used within 2 or 3 weeks, store in refrigerator. Makes 5 cups.

PEARS

Pears are plentiful at this time and are easy to put up for conserves and jams that go well with homemade breads and biscuits during the coming winter months.

CHERRY PEAR CONSERVE

- 6 ripe pears
- 2½ cups sugar
- 2 navel oranges
- 2 jars (8 ounces each) red maraschino cherries, drained and halved
- ½ cup dark seedless raisins
- ¼ cup lemon juice

Pare the pears and cut into small pieces. Add the sugar and allow to stand overnight. Wash oranges; remove orange peel in thin strips with vegetable parer or sharp knife. Chop orange peel until fine. Juice the oranges. Add orange peel and juice and remaining ingredients to pear mixture. Cook in large saucepan about 25 to 30 minutes or until thickened. Pour into hot sterilized jars and seal. Makes about four 8-ounce jars.

CHERRY PINEAPPLE PEAR JAM

- 8 ripe pears
- 1 can (20 ounces) crushed pineapple in heavy syrup, undrained
- 3 cups sugar
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
- ¼ cup lemon juice
- ¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- 2 jars (8 ounces each) red maraschino cherries, drained and halved

Wash, pare, core and dice the pears. Place pears and all other ingredients in large pot. Bring mixture to a boil over medium heat. Reduce heat and cook about 25 minutes or until thickened, stirring occasionally. Pour into hot sterilized jars and seal. Makes about 4½ cups.

TOMATOES

Tomatoes are one of America's favorite vegetables and welcome all year round as canned treats. Now is the time to fill shelves with homemade tomato juice (how many have tasted this?), whole or halved tomatoes, and homemade chili sauce. For canned tomatoes, allow about three pounds for a quart jar, about one bushel for 18 quarts. Tomatoes need little seasoning, merely add salt and pepper sauce.

BACK TO BROWN BAGGING

With school days here, many mothers are concerned with planning nutritious lunches they can pack for their children. There are some basic rules to follow in this planning. The lunch must be appealing to the children, it must contain the basic food groups needed for growth, and it must be packed to be "safe" to eat.

To be appealing, the foods packed should be prepared from the types of foods the child enjoys. Then, vary the menu from day to day so he doesn't tire of his favorites. Make a list of all the possibilities – sandwiches, chilled items and vacuum-packed hot foods. Use imagination in packing the lunch. Cut the sandwiches in unusual shapes, add a garnish of sliced olives, radishes, pickle or parsley for color. Include unusual items occasionally to make the brown bag more exciting. A special note or a funny cartoon brighten the noon hour and give something to share with friends.

Protein is the key to a nourishing meal. Be sure to include at least one serving of some form of protein besides their milk. This can be meat, poultry, fish, cheese, eggs, beans, peanut butter – or peanuts. Bread products or cookies contain adequate carbohydrate. Fresh fruits and vegetables are other desirable components in the school lunch because of their high vitamin and mineral content.

A word of caution in packing a "safe" brown bag. Except for foods packed boiling hot in a thermos jug and the packaged nibblers, pack everything else icy cold. Refrigerated lunches are the safest of course. When this is not possible, be sure to emphasize to your child that his lunch should be kept in a very cool place at school. Many protein foods spoil rapidly. Be especially careful with poultry and eggs. (Don't peel the hard-boiled eggs.) Keep in mind that frozen items usually thaw just in time for lunch. Don't pack a perishable item for the second day if "Johnny" brings it back home again. Food poisoning is no fun.

Try some of these sandwich combinations for variety: peanut butter and fruit, meat loaf and cheese, liverwurst and pickle, baked beans and brown bread, tuna and celery, avocado and sour cream, egg and bacon, turkey and cranberry sauce, cottage cheese and olives. Try adding chopped peanuts or mayonnaise to spark many combinations. Make brown bagging more fun for both Mom and kids!

pieces. Simmer until softened, stirring often. Put through strainer. Add ¼ teaspoon Tabasco and 1 teaspoon salt to each quart juice. Reheat at once just to boiling. Pack boiling hot juice in hot pint or quart jars to 1 inch of top. Process in boiling water bath (212 degrees) 15 minutes.

CANNED TOMATOES

Use only perfect, ripe tomatoes. To loosen skins, dip into boiling water about ½ minute, then dip quickly into cold water. Cut out stem ends and skin tomatoes.

COLD PACK:

Leave tomatoes whole or cut in halves or quarters. Pack in glass jars to ½ inch of top pressing gently to fill spaces. Add no water. Add ⅛ teaspoon Tabasco and ½ teaspoon salt to pints; add ¼ teaspoon Tabasco and 1 teaspoon salt to quarts. Process in boiling water bath (212 degrees) pint jars, 35 minutes; quart jars, 45 minutes.

HOT PACK:

Halve tomatoes. Do not add water, bring to a boil, stirring often. Pack in hot glass jars to ½ inch of the top. Add ⅛ teaspoon Tabasco and ½ teaspoon salt to pints; add ¼ teaspoon Tabasco and 1 teaspoon salt to quarts. Process in boiling water bath (212 degrees) pint jars, 10 minutes; quart jars, 10 minutes.

TOMATO CONSERVE

- 5 pounds tomatoes, red or yellow
- 2 pounds sugar
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 orange, thinly sliced
- 1 lemon, thinly sliced
- 1 stick (3 inch) cinnamon
- 1 piece whole ginger
- 2 cups seedless raisins
- ½ cup lemon juice
- ¼ teaspoon Tabasco

Peel tomatoes and chop. Combine with sugar, salt, sliced orange and sliced lemon. Stir over heat until sugar dissolves. Add cinnamon and ginger, bring to a boil; cook over low heat until thick, about 1 hour, stirring occasionally. Remove cinnamon and ginger. Add raisins and lemon juice and bring again to a boil. Stir in Tabasco, pour into hot pint or half-pint jars, and seal at once. Makes 3½ pints.

CHILI SAUCE

- 8 pounds (4 quarts) skinned ripe tomatoes, cut in pieces
- 6 medium onions, chopped
- 6 green peppers, chopped
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons salt
- 3 cups cider vinegar
- 4 teaspoons whole cloves
- 3 tablespoons whole allspice
- 1 tablespoon Tabasco

Combine tomatoes, onion, green pepper, sugar, salt and vinegar in deep kettle. Tie spices in cheese cloth bag; add to ingredients in kettle. Cook, uncovered 2½ to 3 hours, or until quite thick, stirring often. Remove spice bag; stir in Tabasco. Pour sauce at once into clean, hot sterilized jars; seal. Makes 4 to 5 pints.

RELISHES

Take advantage of fresh vegetables available at summer's end and put up a variety of relishes to go with franks, hamburgers, chicken or fish during the coming months. Favorite vegetables for relishes are corn, cucumbers, green and red peppers, tomatoes, zucchini, onions and eggplant. These make good family eating and also are thoughtful gifts.

ITALIAN SWEET RELISH

- 1 medium eggplant
- 4 cups (8 pounds) chopped tomatoes
- 1½ cups chopped onion
- 1½ cups chopped green pepper
- 1-3rd cup raisins
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup vinegar
- ¾ cup water
- 1 teaspoon Tabasco

Do not peel eggplant; chop into cubes (about 4 cups chopped). Place all ingredients in medium size pot. Bring to boil, stirring occasionally, do not boil. Simmer 10 minutes. Seal in hot sterilized jars. Makes about 3 pints.

RELISH AMERICANA

- 1½ cups cooked corn, drained
- 1 cucumber, chopped
- 1 medium green or red pepper, diced
- ¾ cup vinegar
- ¼ cup prepared mustard
- ¼ teaspoon Tabasco
- ¾ cup sugar
- 1½ teaspoons salt

Combine all ingredients. Chill at least 1 hour before serving. Store covered in clean 1-pint jar. This relish may be kept in refrigerator about 2 weeks. Makes about 1 pint (6-8 servings).

CARROT PEPPER RELISH

- 8 medium carrots
- 8 medium onions
- 4 large green peppers
- 3 tablespoons alt
- 2 cups sugar
- 2 cups cider vinegar
- ½ teaspoon Tabasco

Scrape carrots. Peel onions and seed peppers. Slice vegetables and put through food grinder, using medium blade. Combine salt, sugar and vinegar, and bring to a boil. Add vegetables and continue boiling 5 minutes. Add Tabasco and pack at once into hot pint or half-pint jars. The liquid should cover the vegetables completely. Seal, cool and label. Makes 4 pints.

CRISP CUCUMBER RINGS

- 9 long slender cucumbers
- 5 medium onions
- 2 cups water
- ½ cup salt
- 2 cups vinegar
- 1½ cups sugar
- 2 teaspoons mustard seed
- 2 teaspoons celery seed
- ½ teaspoon Tabasco

Wash and dry cucumbers; slice without paring. Peel onions and slice. Combine salt with water and pour over vegetables. Let stand 3 hours; then drain and discard liquid. Combine vinegar, sugar and spices, stir over heat until sugar is dissolved. Add cucumbers and onions; boil 5 minutes. Add Tabasco and pack at once into hot jars. The liquid should cover the vegetables completely. Seal, cool and label. Makes 2 quarts, 1 pint.

Bee sting fatal to cage coach

Robertson, a vice principal at Roseburg High School, was stung by a bee inside his left ear and died Saturday night despite attempts by state police to revive him by mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

Mothers get the nutrition message through children

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sophie Leavitt used to teach the three Rs to first and second graders in Baltimore public schools. Now retired, she volunteers her services as a teacher of cooking and good nutrition to kindergarteners and first graders.

Last winter, her pupils were children of migrant workers in Palm Beach County, Fla., near her Palm Beach home. This winter, she hopes to teach somewhat older children via closed circuit television. She has filmed some programs at WHRS-TV, Boynton Beach, to be aired in fourth through seventh grade classrooms in Palm Beach.

"I'm very TV oriented. You can reach more people that way," Mrs. Leavitt said in a telephone interview from her summer home in Hanover, Pa.

She has another favorite teaching method she calls cooking a la carte. She has used it in day care centers and hopes to introduce it to classes in Florida and Pennsylvania in schools that have no home economics rooms and not enough money to equip them.

Her carte is a two-tiered cart on wheels. The cart contains everything she needs to demonstrate cooking and comparison shopping —a single burner hotplate, an electric rotisserie oven, food and utensils on the top shelf, and more food on the lower shelf.

Mrs. Leavitt, wife of a mail order business executive and a grandmother, counts on the children to get the good nutrition message to their mothers.

"I am a firm believer that through children, mothers will be reached: and through the mother, the whole family will profit," she wrote recently in Nutrition News, a publication of the National Dairy Council.

"In the first place, you can't get hold of mothers. So many women are working and they come home too tired to cook," she said. But if children learn at an early age and if they enjoy cooking, they can help their mothers, she added.

They're not just interested in cookies, Mrs. Leavitt said. She was surprised when the migrant children chose hamburgers when she asked what they wanted to cook.

She used other simple dishes to teach them not just good nutrition but also reading, geography, history and arithmetic. First graders were asked to bring food ads to class, to see what could be bought for different amounts of money, from a quarter to a dollar.

They talked about what parts of the country different foods came from and what people eat for breakfast and other meals in other countries.

Mrs. Leavitt emphasizes the good taste of foods and their nutritional benefits —the iron in raisins that makes you strong, the protein in bread that fights infection and supplies pep and the calcium in bread that helps make bones and teeth strong.

She said she volunteers for Friday afternoons because that's when teachers most need help.

By the end of the school week, children really are tired, she said. They become bored or cranky. But cooking is fun and her way of teaching it not only allows them to participate but it also gives them food and drinks for renewed energy.

For Mrs. Leavitt herself, the rewards include the knowledge that she may be putting not just food—but the right kind of food—into a hungry child's stomach.

Marinade cuts cost of beef for a family

Everyone continues to pinch pennies when shopping for meat. However marinating a lesser cut of beef is a good way to increase the flavor, make it more tender and keep costs down. A Spit-Roasted Olive Beef is marinated overnight and the marinade reserved and used as a sauce base with olive relish to serve with meat slices.

SPIT-ROASTED OLIVE BEEF

- ¾ cup dry red wine or wire vinegar
- 2-3rd cup sliced pimiento stuffed olives
- 4 pound beef (round) roast, boned and tied
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- ½ cup chopped onion
- ½ cup boiling water
- 2 beef bouillon cubes
- 1 cup cold water
- 4 teaspoons cornstarch
- 1 teaspoon bottled browning sauce
- 1 cup sliced celery
- Whole pimiento-stuffed olives
- Parsley sprigs

Place wine and sliced olives in shallow dish. Add beef and turn until coated with marinade. Chill overnight, turning occasionally. Reserve marinade. Balance meat on rotisserie spit. Place about 10 inches from source of heat. Grill or broil 1¼ to 1¾ hours depending on desired degree of doneness. (Without a rotisseries or smoker-cooker, wrap beef in foil and cook as roast over charcoal).

About 10 minutes before serving time, prepare olive sauce for beef. Heat butter in skillet; add onion and saute until golden. Add boiling water to bouillon cubes in small bowl and stir until cubes are dissolved. Stir cold water and cornstarch together in small bowl until blended. Add bouillon mixture, cornstarch mixture, browning sauce and reserve marinade to skillet. Bring to boil, stirring constantly. Add celery and simmer about 3 minutes more or until celery is crisp-tender. Pour mixture into a colander over a bowl to separate olive mixture from sauce. Spoon olive mixture around meat on serving platter and garnish with whole olives and parsley. Spoon some of sauce over meat and serve remainder in dish. Makes 6 servings.

Tables turned on 'braless' bank robber

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — The "braless bandit" and her partner struck again Tuesday, but this time she was the one who got rattled, not the bank teller.

The tall, busty woman in a sheer blouse and no bra approached a woman teller at a Bank of America branch, indicated she was holding a pistol inside her purse and said, "Give me all the money you've got or you're dead."

She got $400 in an envelope but dropped the loot as she jumped into a car waiting outside the bank.

It was recovered by a 10-year-old boy who returned it to police, though he had to pester investigating officers for several minutes to get them to pay attention.

Police said the robbers were the same pair who held up an Empire Savings and Loan branch in Los Angeles the previous day, taking $2,671.

The braless bandit wore a very sheer top on that occasion, too, rattling a male teller who said he could not describe her face at all.

Milk and other dairy products stretch protein $$$

Most everybody knows that proteins are essential body-building foods. But not everybody knows that gram for gram, in today's era of high prices, milk is one of your best protein buys. In the last month for which figures are available, April 1974, to get 20 grams of protein, you might have to pay as much as 66 cents in sliced bacon or lamb chops, 60 to 74 cents in Porterhouse beefsteak, veal cutlets or even pork sausage—yet 20 grams of protein would cost only 23 cents, or about a third as much, in milk. And milk proteins are high quality—they supply the amino-acids nature needs to build and repair body tissues.

So think milk, think thrift, think protein! A cup of soup, made with milk, and a peanut butter sandwich, is a high protein snack; rice pudding, tapioca, custards, homemade ice cream, are desserts with proteins. Stretch thrifty main dishes with milk-tuna casseroles, creamed eggs, chicken a la king. Supplement low-budget main courses with scalloped potatoes or other creamed vegetables. Make French toast with eggs and milk for a hearty breakfast, a simple supper. A glass of milk with every meal—that's a protein stretcher. And remember, gram for gram, one of the most economical sources of good, body-building protein is milk.

These quick and easy summer refreshers suggest a new way to add high quality protein to your family's meals

—Combine 1 banana, sliced, 1 egg, 3 teaspoons chocolate and snacks, to replace or extend other foods that have soared beyond your budget.

—Puree a quarter of a cantaloupe and 1 teaspoon honey in blender. Add 1 cup ice cold milk; whirl to blend. Makes 2 cups. Serve as a mid-morning snack.

Contains 4 grams protein per serving or the protein equivalent of 2 slices bacon.

malted milk powder and 1 cup cold milk in top of blender; whirl to blend. Makes 2 cups. Serve as a snack or quick meal-on-the-run. Contains 7 grams protein per serving or the protein equivalent of 1 frankfurter.

—Combine 1 (10½ ounces) can beef consomme and 1 cup milk; pour over ice. Garnish with celery stalk. Makes 2 cups. Good as a first course or afternoon quick pick-up.

Contains 12 grams protein per serving or the protein equivalent of 2 eggs.

—Combine 1 (10¾ ounces) can chicken broth, 1 egg, ⅓ teaspoon curry powder and 1 cup cold milk in top of blender; whirl to blend. Garnish with a cucumber slice. Makes 2 cups. Refreshing first course or a bedtime snack.

Contains 12 grams protein per serving or the protein equivalent of 4 slices bologna.

Aztec treat

The avocado was cultivated by the Indians of Mexico and Central and South America long before 1519, when it was served to Cortes by Montezuma II at Tenochtitlan (Mexico City) the capital of the Aztecs.

Rich farm land

Iowa encompasses 25 per cent of the Class A farmland in the United States. Class A is the richest kind of farm land.

Release from draft

Under the original selective service law passed during the Civil War, a draftee could be released from service by either furnishing a qualified substitute or paying a $300 bounty.

Fresh Lemon Bavarian Pie refreshing

There is something especially refreshing about lemon pie. It also is insidiously good and most find it difficult to stop with one wedge. For a change of pace try a Fresh Lemon Bavarian Pie which is served chilled with a topping of whipped cream. Or, few will refuse your Fresh Lemon Meringues filled with Lemon Cream.

FRESH LEMON BAVARIAN PIE

1 envelope unvlavored gelatine
¼ cup cold water
4 eggs, separated
1 cup sugar, divided
½ cup fresh lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1-3rd cup heavy cream, whiped
1 baked 9-inch pastry shell
Additonal whipped cream
Lemon slices

Soften unflavored gelatine in ¼ cup cold water and set aside. Beat 4 egg yolks until thick and lemon colored. Gradually beat in ½ cup sugar, lemon juice and salt. Turn into double boiler. Cook over hot water and until mixture coats a metal spoon, about 10 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and stir in softened gelatine. Add lemon rind. Chill until mixture begins to thicken. Beat egg whites until they stand in soft peaks. Gradually beat in remaining ½ cup sugar. Fold into lemon mixture. Fold in whipped cream. Turn into cooled pastry shell. Chill until set. Garnish with additional whipped cream and lemon slices. Makes one 9-inch pie.

FRESH LEMON MERINGUES

4 egg whites
1-16th teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
1 cup sugar

Combine egg whites and salt in bowl; beat until foamy. Add cream of tartar and beat until stiff. Gradually beat in sugar. Drop in 10 mounds, a heaping teaspoonful at a time, onto foil on baking sheet. Make depression in center of each with back of spoon. Bake in 275 degree oven 2 hours. Cool and remove from foil. Fill center with Lemon Cream Filling, just before serving. If desired, garnish with unsweetened whipped cream and grated lemon rind.

LEMON CREAM FILLING

4 egg yolks
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon mace
1-16th teaspoon salt
¼ cup fresh lemon juice
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind
½ cup heavy cream, whipped

Beat egg yolks with sugar, mace, salt and lemon juice until well blended in top of double boiler. Cook over hot water until thickened, stirring frequently. Remove from heat and cool. Stir in lemon rind. Fold in whipped cream. Spoon mixture into meringue shells. Makes 10 servings.

Seasonal growth

Each spring and summer, a tree adds new layers of wood to its trunk. The wood formed in spring grows fast and is lighter because it consists of large cells while growth is slower in the summer causing darker wood of smaller cells. When a tree is cut, the layers appear as alternating rings of light and dark wood.

Cook garden bounty over charcoal grill

Singles and families alike are enjoying the bounty of their home gardens this summer. As a result more are trying new ways to prepare and serve their cucumbers, tomatoes, corn, eggplant, squash and carrots. A perfect way, simple and just right for a cookout, is to grill them on the charcoal. Place vegetables brushed with melted butter directly on the grill over medium-hot coals instead of wrapping them in foil. The charcoal flavor permeates the vegetables and proves a delicious addition to barbecued foods.

CHARCOALED EGGPLANT SLICES

Melt ¼ cup butter or margarine. Remove from heat and stir in 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese. Cut one medium unpeeled eggplant into slices 3-8 inch thick. Brush one side of all slices with salt and pepper. Place on grill with buttered side down. Grill about 6 inches from medium hot coals until lightly browned, about 3 to 5 minutes. Brush top side with butter mixture. Turn with pancake turner and grill until fork-tender and browned, about 5 minutes. Serve immediately. Peel helps to hold shape of eggplant but becomes tough during charcoaling. Discard peel before eating grilled slices. Makes 4 servings.

GRILLED MUSHROOMS

Carefully remove stems from 8 large mushrooms. (Use stems for soups, stews or casseroles.) Brush mushrooms with about 3 tablespoons melted butter or margarine; place top side down on grill. Grill about 6 inches from medium hot coals for about 12 minutes or until tender. Brush with butter twice. Do not turn. Remove with pancake turner. Serve with the juices which collect in mushroom caps. Makes 4 servings.

GRILLED DILLED TOMATOES

Melt 2 tablespoons butter or margarine. Stir in ½ teaspoon dried dill weed. Cut 2 large tomatoes in half and brush cut sides with butter sauce. Grill, cut sides down, 6 inches from medium hot coals until lightly browned, about 5 minutes. Brush skins of tomatoes with butter sauce; turn with pancake turner. Brush cut sides again with the butter sauce and grill until fork tender, about 7 minutes. Serve immediately. Makes 4 servings.

CHARCOAL BRIQUET FIRE

Different brands of charcoal give off varying degrees of heat. To test the temperature of a charcoal briquet fire, cautiously hold your hand, palm side down, just above the grill. Judge temperature by number of seconds hand can be kept in position. For these recipes a medium-hot temperature is desired. Your hand should be kept in position for 3 seconds.

To lower temperature of charcoal fire, raise grill or separate coals. To raise temperature, tap the outer gray layer from coals and push coals closer together. If more coals are needed, add them to outer edge of hot coals.

Fresh-caught fish get special touch

No need to cast about for different ways to cook that fresh-caught fish. Two new recipes from the R. T. French Co. are tasty and timely, as well as easy to do.

'Tater Fried Fish have a tangy tartar sauce-like flavor, achieved by dipping fresh fish fillets in a mayonnaise mixture, then coating with country-style mashed potato flakes. The fillets cook up crispy and golden brown, in just minutes.

No campsite larder is without bacon, that mainstay of hearty outdoor breakfasts. Cooked up crisp, bacon adds a special touch to Cheese Sauced Fish Fillets. The simple secret of the recipe is in the sauce, quickly stirred together with an envelope of cheese sauce mix and evaporated milk.

Either recipe is perfectly complimented by crusty bread, a bean salad, fruit and cookies for dessert and ice tea or milk.

'TATER FRIED FISH

2 eggs
2 tablespoons drained pickle relish
1 teaspoon salt
2 pounds fish fillets
1½ to 2 cups country-style mashed potato flakes
Oil

Lightly beat together mayonnaise, eggs, pickle relish, and salt. Dip fish into egg mixture, then into potato flakes, coating well. Fry in oil 5 to 10 minutes, until crisp and browned, turning once. Makes 6 servings.

CHEESE SAUCED FISH FILLETS

2 slices bacon, chopped
2 pounds fish fillets
1 envelope (1¼-ounce) cheese sauce mix
½ cup undiluted evaporated milk
½ cup water
1 tomato, sliced

Cook bacon in skillet until crisp; add fish to bacon and drippings. Stir together contents of cheese sauce envelope, milk, and water; pour over fish. Simmer, uncovered, 5 to 10 minutes, until fish flakes easily when pierced with a fork. Garnish with sliced tomato. 4 to 6 servings.

Jackson raps price chief, says he should be dumped

YAKIMA, Wash. (UPI) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., has lambasted the former head of the Nixon Administration's price commission.

Jackson said that remarks By C. Jackson Grayson that a 6 per cent unemployment rate would be acceptable in cooling down inflation is "nonsense and unacceptable."

"Grayson is one of those bad advisers appointed by Nixon who got this economy all screwed up in the first place and he should be dumped by President Ford," Jackson said.

Jackson was here to introduce his fellow senator, Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., at the state convention of the AFL-CIO.

Jackson said the first thing he would do if he were President would be to ration credit with preference on housing loans. Second, he said, he would roll back the price of a barrel of oil, by nearly $3. And, he added, he would institute price-wage guidelines.

"This country faces its worst economic crisis since the 1930s," he said.

Bartlett Quiche is taste tickler

Quiche Lorraine was created to match the hearty appetities of those in the French province of Lorraine where much of the steel of France is produced. It served as a taste-tickler preceding a dinner of roast fowl or game. As such, it crossed the Atlantic to become a favorite hors d'oeuvre in the United States. Through the years it has undergone many changes — ranging in use from appetizer to a favorite main dish for lunch, supper or breakfast.

There are many variations of a quiche. One puts fresh ripe pears on top of the rich baked custard tart. These are filled with bits of green onion and glazed with a spciy catsup sauce. Fresh pears now are plentiful for your Bartlett Quiche. Mature pears are green when picked. To ripen, store them in a brown paper sack for three or four days until they turn golden and yield slightly when squeezed gently between your palms.

BARLETT QUICHE

1 unbaked 9-inch pie shell
4 eggs
2 cups half-and-half (thin cream)
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon onion powder
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon savory, crumbled
1-16 teaspoon pepper
Dash cayenne
1½ cups grated process Swiss cheese (6 ounces)
¾ cup finely chopped cooked ham
3 fresh Bartlett pears
½ cup water
¼ cup catsup
1 tablespoon cornstarch
¼ cup chopped green onion

Prepare pie shell. Beat eggs. Add half-and-half, salt and dry seasonings and mix well. Stir in cheese and ham. Turn into pie shell. Bake below oven center in 350 degree oven 40 minutes. Meanwhile, halve, pare and core pears. Cut a small slice from rounded side of pear halves, so they will sit level. Combine water, catsup and cornstarch in small saucepan and stir over moderate heat until clear and thickened. When quiche has baked 40 minutes, and is set on top, remove from oven, arrange pears cut side up over top. Spoon catsup mixture over all. Return to oven for 5 minutes longer. Let stand 15 minutes before serving. Serve warm or cold. Makes 6 servings.

PIE SHELL: Combine 1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour with ¾ teaspoon salt. Cut in ½ cup shortening. Sprinkle with 3 to 4 tablespoons cold milk, adding just enough to make dough hold together. Shape into a ball. Roll on lightly floured board to a circle about 13-inches diameter and fit loosely into a 9-inch pie plate. Trim edge about 1-inch wider than edge to plate. Fold under, and flute, building up a high rim.

This year's plum crop just peachy

California's plum crop, a record 130,000 tons, is up 15,000 tons from the June 1 estimate and six per cent above the previous record year, 1970. Picking of mid-season varieties is in full swing.

The nectarine crop in California is expected to be 100,000 tons, up 5,000 from the June 1 estimate. That's 15 per cent more than last year's record harvest and 24 per cent greater than the 1971-73 average.

Dry pea production, if yields are normal, should be nearly double last year. Acreage for harvest — to be completed in August — is 60 per cent above last year and 38 per cent above the most recent three-year average. Pressures of the expected large crop already has set off a sharp downturn in prices.

Beef supplies will continue relatively large during August. Production is expected to exceed both the year-ago level and the 1970-72 average for the month.

Turkey supplies are expected to be at a record level for August. New-crop marketings are likely to be five to six per cent more than both August a year ago and the 1971-73 average. August 1 cold storage holdings will be at record levels for that date.

Giants' rookie stuns Dodgers

Lead cut to 2½ games

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — In the Texas League, with Amarillo, they called him "The Count."

But he battled the Dodgers more like a barroom brawler Tuesday night in leading the San Francisco Giants to an 8-5 win. It cut the Dodger lead back to 2½ games.

The kid's colorful name is John Joseph Montefusco, Jr. He got a late start in professional baseball (signed at age 23), but he's making up for lost time fast.

What Montefusco did to the Dodgers shouldn't happen to your mother-in-law.

Not only did he pitch out of all kinds of trouble and overcome assorted physical hazzards along the way, but the kid set some sort of record in smashing a two-out, two-run homer in, get this, not just his first official at-bat in the major leagues, but his first official bat this year. . .in three leagues.

Both the Texas League and the PCL have the designated hitter rule and Montefusco never got to the plate before Tuesday night.

The 24-year-old rookie began the day still with the Giants' farm club at Phoenix in the PCL. He left there at 3:30 p.m. and arrived at Dodger Stadium at 6:30 p.m., just one hour before game time.

"I went in and talked with (manager Wes) Westrum and he told me I'd start against Atlanta Saturday," Montefusco related. "He also said I'd be number one out of the bullpen tonight, but we didn't have time to go over the Dodger batters or anything."

Called upon in the very first inning when starter Ron Bryant couldn't get the ball over, Montefusco came in with the bases loaded, three runs in, nobody out and Tom Paciorek up.

"To tell the truth I didn't even know who the hell was at bat," he admitted. "I didn't hear the fans, the other players, the P.A. announcer or anybody. I was too excited."

Montefusco got one out on a force (scoring the fourth run) and then struck out Steve Yeager and Doug Rau.

He wiggled out of bases-loaded trouble in the second and seventh. Along the way to equalling their season high of 14 left on base, the Dodgers left runners stranded in every inning but the eighth.

Montefusco's home run came in the third. Charlie Hough had replaced starter Doug Rau (12-7) who was ripped for six runs on four hits and four walks in 1 2-3 innings. Most damaging blow was Gary Matthews' bases-loaded home run, a line drive over the centerfield fence.

Hough hit catcher Ken Rudolph to put a runner on with two out in the third inning. Montefusco hit Hough's first pitch over the left field fence.

"We had a pitcher at Phoenix, Don Rose (a resident of San Dimas in the off season) and he told me he hit the first pitch out," Montefusco revealed. "He said I was nothing if I didn't do it.

"I knew that pitcher (Hough wouldn't throw me a knuckler," he continued, "so I was looking for a fastball. He walked me the first time, but I got it the second. I didn't even know it was out. I thought it hit the fence. The second baseman (Lopes) told me it was out."

Montefusco obviously didn't know who the Dodger players were and admitted it. "I've never even seen a big leaguer before," he grinned. "This is my first time with any big leaguers."

The Dodgers got their only run off the kid in the sixth. Dave Lopes singled and took second on Bill Russell's groundout. He scored on Garvey's two-out single. But Ferguson forced Garvey to end the inning.

The kid is a natural Giant.

"I hate the Dodgers," he said as writers crowded around. "To tell you the truth I really hate them. I'm from the East and I used to be a Yankee fan."

Garvey hit a shot off Montefusco's leg in the eighth. But the kid scrambled after the ball and threw his man out.

"I started developing a blister in the eighth and was going to ask to be taken out," he divulged. "But when I got that second out (Garvey's liner), I knew I'd finish the game."

The Dodgers got their four runs in the first on Russell's single, three walks, two fielders' choices and an error.

The Dodger clubhouse was deathly silent. Manager Walter Alston tried to play it light but it didn't come off. With batting instructor Dixie Walker writing names for extra batting practice on a blackboard, Alston said," I don't think you have enough room for all the names."

Then he tried to laugh. But it was a feeble effort.

"They gave us four runs," he said in a low voice. "Only Russell hit the ball well."

DODGER DATA — It'll be Geoff Zahn (2-4) against Mike Caldwell (13-3) in tonight's windup.

Matchups for the weekend games in Cincinnati were announced. It will be Don Sutton (13-9) vs. Don Gullett Friday at 5 p.m., Andy Messersmith (16-6) vs. Clay Kirby (9-8) Saturday at 11 a.m. and Rau (12-7) vs. Jack Billingham (17-8) Sunday at 11 a.m. All games will be televised on KTTV (11).

U.S. cagers roll past Russians

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Proving that the emotions of defeat are universal, Russian basketball coach Vladimir Kondrashin muttered, "We made enough mistakes tonight for 10 games."

Kondrashin had just watched his Russian national team lose to a U.S. Collegiate All-Star squad 104-77 in the first game of a six-game series.

"I'm impressed with the Americans," Kondrashin said, "but this is not the best U.S. team we've played."

Kondrashin was impressed with North Carolina State flash David Thompson, who scored 15 points before fouling out with 13:34 remaining. Oregon guard Ron Lee paced the Americans with 18 points, including a pair of layups to key a rally which put the game away in the middle of the second half.

American Coach Norm Sloan of N.C. State was pleased with his team's performance but upset at a small Sports Arena turnout of 2,064.

"This is the smallest crowd I've ever been associated with," said Sloan, who guided N.C. State to an NCAA title last year.

The Americans, utilizing a fast break and a man-to-man defense, jumped off to a 16-4 lead and never trailed. Referees called 22 fouls in the first nine minutes but the quality of play improved considerably later in the game.

"The officials prevented the game from getting out of hand early," said Sloan. Kondrashin, however, said, "In Europe, the referees don't allow the game to get quite as aggressive."

The Russians, paced by guard Alexander Salnikov's 20 points, trailed by only 52-43 at the half and climbed to within 61-54 with 14:53 to play. Lee then scored a pair of layups and Mo Rivers of N.C. State hit three straight buckets to put the Americans comfortably ahead for good.

The second game of the series will be played in Seattle tonight and Kondrashin hopes his team is in better shape.

"The team is very tired," he said. "The last three days we have not had the proper rest. I am hoping the series ends up with each team winning three games."

"No doubt about it," added the man who led Oakland to World Championships in 1972-73, "Nolan was wild tonight and when your pitcher is that wild, it's hard for your defense to stay constantly alert. Still, that's a lot of errors."

The walks and the errors set up all the Oakland runs. Shortstop Dave Chalk had three boots and third baseman Bobby Valentine two. Ryan, now 17-15, fanned only two to extend his major league-leading strikeout total to 306. His 166 walks also lead big league pitchers. The two whiffs were the fewest Ryan has had in any start since the opening day of the season.

"We'll have to make a few changes when we get home on Thursday," said Williams, not being exactly certain what changes he would make. The loss mathematically eliminated the Angels from the AL West race, which the A's lead by 8 ½ games.

"I can empathize with Dick," said Oakland Manager Alvin Dark. "It's tough to start building from scratch. You need an awful lot of patience and an awful lot of time— something a manager isn't always guaranteed."

The two clubs wrap up their current series here tonight with Andy Hassler (3-9) throwing against Oakland's Vida Blue (14-13). The A's now lead the season series 12-3.

Olympics yes, tax monies no

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A survey revealed Tuesday that most county residents here favor proposals to bring the 1980 Olympic Games to Los Angeles, if no tax money is used to finance the games.

A total of 71.4 per cent of those surveyed indicated they generally favored bringing the games to Los Angeles. However, only 51.8 per cent favored staging the games here if federal and state tax money would be used to meet costs.

Favorable responses dropped to 34.0 per cent when it was suggested city and county taxes might be needed, according to the mayor's office.

Pac-8 has 40 on Shrine list

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Forty Pacific-8 Conference football players have been nominated for the 50th East-West Shrine game Dec. 28 at Stanford Stadium, it was announced Tuesday.

Executive Director Bob Murphy said 10 were from USC and among those was Anthony Davis. He said Pat Donovan and Roger Stillwell, both from Stanford, were also nominated by West player selection chief Pappy Waldorf.

Rams sign Bill Curry as backup to Ken Iman

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Bill Curry, president of the striking NFL Players Association, Tuesday was signed as a free agent by the Los Angeles Rams.

Curry, a 31-year-old center, was cut by the Houston Oilers last week and passed over by the other 24 NFL teams. The 9-year NFL veteran has not played since last Oct. 7, when he cracked a bone in his knee in a game against the Rams.

"I wouldn't be here if I didn't think I could play football for the Rams," said Curry. "I'd say I'm close to 100 per cent after working out hard and regularly for the last two months—straight through the labor negotiation period."

Curry was cut immediately after the players went back to work, but he believes, "it would be immature if I thought (Oilers' coach) Sid Gillman put me on waivers because of the strike. He has three centers there. I'm just glad to be in Los Angeles."

Curry was a two-time All-Pro center at Baltimore under owner Carroll Rosenbloom, who now owns the Rams. Rosenbloom said he invited Curry here to take a physical exam Tuesday and signed him afterwards.

"We've had some concerns at center," Rosenbloom said, referring to the knee injury to Ram regular Ken Iman. Iman's knee was operated on during the off season. "With Curry, we're solid at center now."

Curry, who took part in many rounds of negotiations between the players and NFL management, said he intends to keep working for an agreement.

"It's my obligation to keep working for a settlement," he said. "But we're athletes first, and we want to play football now. I've had a tremendous education these last six months. A lot of mistakes were made on both sides and a lot of inflammatory things were said.

UCLA ready for opener

L.A. meets Poly's Vinci

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — Cal Poly coach Andy Vinci introduced himself to the Los Angeles press Tuesday at the first of the 1974 weekly meetings of the Football Writers.

"We started January 2 in a situation where only 15 football scholarships had been granted," he said. "The team had an 18-57 record in the last seven years.

"We spent the first month scrambling around getting enough players to reconstruct a program we now have 60 full rides.

"We've built up the program; increased our stadium seating capacity from 2,000 to 9,000 and hope to go to 15,000 next year, he continued. "We hope we can concentrate on being coaches rather than money raisers which is mostly what we've been the last seven months. But that's what the job required and that's what we had to do."

One of Vinci's chores has been to make a team out of a group of individuals. "We've been working on being a team," he said. "We're trying to get the players to think we and us instead of me and I."

The Broncos open the 1974 season Saturday night at Fresno St. Last year Poly upset the Bulldogs 17-9.

"It's a must game for Fresno St.," observed Vinci. "We'll have to throw a lot to beat them. We'll be starting one senior and 10 juniors. Offensively we've not reall tall, but because everybody is about the same size, we look smaller than we are.

"On defense," he said, "I wish we had the 6-2, 200-pound corners that run 9.7. Ours are 5-10, weigh 170 pounds and run 9.7."

The only others coach present was Dick Vermeil of UCLA. The Bruins open at Tennessee Saturday on national TV.

"I expect our players to play hard," Vermeil said. "We're in the process of tapering off our practices. I want to make sure we don't leave any of our game on the practice field.

"We've actually been preparing more for the whole season than for Tennessee. We've probably spent relatively little time on Tennessee itself. I don't know how good we'll play. But I know we'll play very intensely.

"We're going to have to play mistake-free football if we want to beat Tennessee," Vermeil concluded. "But we haven't been doing that."

Vermeil was asked why he had switched to the Veer-T. "The athletes we have on campus are best suited to that type of offense," he answered. "The Veer has an awful lot of potential and I would like to believe we'll incorporate a more sophisticated passing game."

The biggest difficulties according to Vermeil were teaching offensive linemen who hadn't pass-blocked for too years (with the Wishbone) to pass-block and to teach quarterbacks who haven't thrown much to throw more.

On his running backs, Vermeil commented, "We don't have any McAlister's or Johnsons, but we do have a back with the potential to be a Kermit Johnson. That is Wendell Tyler. That son of a gun can go."

LUNCHEON LEFTOVERS — Vermeil on Tennessee and quarterback Confredge Holloway: "Holloway is a genuine Heismann Trophy candidate. Tennessee has gone back to putting good athletes on defense. They got carried away with their offense for awhile, but they found out other people were scoring more points than they were."

JERRY WILCOX, RAMS PUBLICIST — "Bill Curry (formerly Houston Oilers and NFL players representative) is in town. If he can pass a physical, we'll probably talk contract with him. He played for Carroll (Rosenbloom) at Baltimore and Carroll thinks he can help us. Ken Iman is 35 and his knee is bothering him. It has to be drained twice a week."

Bulls get Thurmond for Clifford Ray

OAKLAND (UPI) — One by one, the Bay Area loses its athletic greats.

In recent years, Willie Mays and Willie McCovey were traded, John Brodie retired under pressure, and now Nate Thurmond is gone.

The Warriors Tuesday swapped the great center to Chicago of the NBA for Clifford Ray, a first round draft pick in 1975 and an undisclosed amount of cash.

The 6-foot-11, 33-year-old Thurmond was a first round draft choice in 1963 out of Bowling Green and his emergence two years later permitted the Warriors to trade Wilt Chamberlain to Philadelphia.

In 11 seasons for the Warriors, Thurmond scored 13,191 points and pulled down 12,701 rebounds. He is considered especially tough on defense.

Ray, 6-foot-9 and 25 years old, was ninth in rebounding last season, hit .511 of his shots and averaged nine points per game.

Warriors General Manager Richard Vertlieb indicated that Thurmond's age was a key factor in the trade. He said "we are acquiring an outstanding young performer who has been an integral part of Chicago's success the past three seasons and who has his best seaons before him.

"In return we gave up one of the game's great players who is nearing the end of his career."

Vertlieb admitted that the "financial aspects of the trade also made it attractive" since the Warriors have tried to balance the hefty salaries of Thurmond and Rick Barry in recent years while only drawing some 4,500 customers per game.

A delighted Chicago Coach Dick Motta predicted his team would win the 1975 NBA championship.

"I've said for six years that I've been coaching in the NBA that you have to have a superstar center to win the championship," Motta said. "I feel Nate Thurmond is that man and he's the greatest player that has been available in the six years that I've been coaching the Bulls."

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar has said that Thurmond is by far the toughest center he has had to face in the NBA but All-Star status has eluded Thurmond because of Jabbar and first Chamberlain and lately Dave Cowens of Boston.

Evert on different surface

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) — Chris Evert will be playing on "a different" surface for her today as she opposes Lesley Hunt of Australia in a battle to gain the semifinals of the U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

Since she burst on the scene here in 1971, Miss Evert has played almost exclusively on center court, but she and Miss Hunt have been shunted to the grandstand, leaving the stadium to Australians Evonne Goolagong and Kerry Melville.

Miss Evert is headed for a clash with Miss Goolagong in the semifinals and it would be the first time in the U.S. Open that the two have faced each other, presuming they survive their matches today.

Of course, this is the last Open on grass, but the tattered condition of the grandstand court is somewhat worse than the badly chewed stadium grass.

For Miss Evert, even though wearing the Wimbledon crown, this tournament is the biggest challenge of her career. She has reached the semifinal here three times running, building her parapet of defense on the base line. Yet she has lost all three—in her Cinderella year to Billie Jean King, who opposes, Rosie Casals in the third stadium match, to Miss Melville in 1972, and to last year's champion, Margaret Court.

Miss Evert's fiance, Jimmy Connors, will follow the Goolagong-Melville match on the stadium court, facing last year's beaten finalist, Jan Kodes.

The Labor Day hero, Roscoe Tanner, faces Ismail El Shafei, sixth seed Tom Okker meets Russia's Alex Metreveli, and November's other bridegroom, third-seeded Stan Smith, faces Australia's Syd Ball in matches to complete the round of 16.

In Tuesday's play under ever-threatening skies, Arthur Ashe, Ken Rosewall, Vijay Amritraj and defending champion John Newcombe advanced to the quarters with little difficulty in matches marred not only by sodden turf but by high winds.

Amritraj, the utterly likeable Indian, ousted 11th seed Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., in straight sets to set up his quarterfinal joust with Rosewall, who put him out of last year's Open in the quarters.

Ashe played and served poorly throughout his victory over Argentina's Guillermo Vilas while Newcombe had little more than a workout against South Africa's Ray Moore in a straight set win.

But even the winners here weep and moan over playing conditions, though there is a melon of $271,760 to be cut up. Newcombe, with $191,600 banked thus far in 1974, called the condition of the courts "the worst I can remember."

Miss Evert, winner of 55 straight matches and her last 10 tournaments, will be opposing the girl who gave her the most trouble at Wimbledon. Miss Hunt battled her over two days in the first round before losing 8-6, 5-7, 11-9.

The match had been halted at 9-all on the first day, and when they resumed the next day, Miss Evert blew Miss Hunt off the court, then swept to an easy title when Mrs. King and Miss Goolagong fell by the wayside.

As for Miss Goolagong, both she and her manager, Vic Edwards, are zeroed in on the title here. Vic says simply that his charge, winner of the Australian title in the final over Miss Evert, "wants this one badly, and what Evonne really wants, she always gets."

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Muhammad Ali talked and talked, Joe Frazier was all business, and heavyweight champion George Foreman tried to look like Ali as the world's most famous boxers gave up a night of their time for charity.

"After I leave the ring there will be no verbal mentality, no physical beauty, no poetry or no color in this ring," he said. "You've seen enough of what I can do to know Foreman can't stay in the same ring with me."

Hope opened the show recalling his own boxing days.

"I used to backpedal so much I was the only fighter with a rearview mirror," Hope quipped. "I had to quit fighting because I ran out of blood donors."

When Hope introduced the former World Champion, Ali at first refused to enter the ring with him. But he finally gave way to the crowd's cries for him.

"How come this place isn't full for me," Ali taunted. "In two weeks I'm fighting the biggest fight in history and you can't even fill this place."

Ali sparred five rounds—three with Larry Holmes and two with Eddie "Bossman" Jones—before leaving the ring to Frazier.

With hardly a word, Frazier, ranked second behind Foreman and Ali, went three rounds with George Johnson. He then thanked the crowd for paying up to $15 a seat to watch performances and then left with as little fanfare as he entered the ring.

Foreman tried his best to show that he too could "float like a butterfly," but looked like a slow motion version of Ali as he went three rounds with fifth ranked heavyweight Henry Clark.

At the opening of the third round, Foreman showed the right that had powered him to the heavyweight title, but then went into his halting shuffle while the crowd shouted for more punches.

The project is the spearhead of a long-ranged campaign designed to battle the drought conditions and hunger in the Sahel section of Central Africa.

"Utah tonight is going to provide the impetus to our fellow men all over the world to join in the great humanitarian effort," Sadler said.

The project will give the African countries involved the monies to build irrigation projects to prevent such future droughts.

Along with the exhibitions and Hope, Sadler gave the fans two live bouts.

In the main event, "U.S. heavyweight champ" Chuck Wepner won a technical knockout over Terry Hinke in the 11th round of a 12-round scheduled fight, and in the other bout, third ranked middleweight George Cooper took a TKO decision from Cypriano Hernandez when his opponent failed to answer the seventh round bell.

Arizona enters Riverside field

RIVERSIDE — Three universities — Arizona, Southern Illinois, and Southern Methodist — will be making their first appearance in the Riverside Intercollegiate Baseball Tournament, March 24-29, 1975.

Eight teams will compete in the week-long ninth annual event hosted again by UC, Riverside.

Tournament Director Dr. Don Edwards says Stanford, Washington State, Santa Clara and Cornell have also accepted invitations. All have previously been involved in at least one of the past eight tournaments.

Marcano still slim favorite

LOS ANGELES — Alfredo Marcano of Venezuela, 44-9-4 with 30 knockouts, remains a slim 6-5 favorite over Bobby Chacon, 24-1 with 22 KOs, in their 15-round world featherwieght title fight at the Olympic at 5:30 p.m. Saturday.

Both fighters will spar free for the public at the Olympic this afternoon beginning at 1 p.m.

Sports news in brief

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Pacific Eight writers have named Anthony Davis of USC the top offensive back in the conference in predictions for the forthcoming season.

They also named Stanford's Pat Donovan the top defensive lineman as he edged teammate Roger Stillwell by one vote.

They named Stanford's Bill Singler the top reciever; Washington State's Steve Ostermann best offensive lineman, and tight end Dave Brown of Oregon State the top new prospect on offense.

Oregon's Steve Donnelly was named top defensive back; All-America Richard Wood of USC top linebacker; and linebacker Frank Manumaleuna of UCLA top defensive prospect.

GOLETA, Calif. (UPI) — Terry Beasley's shoulder injury is not as severe as first feared and the San Francisco 49er wide receiver should be ready for the NFL opener Sept. 15 at New Orleans.

That was the word Tuesday from Coach Dick Nolan as he drilled his troops for Sunday's pre-season final against the Los Angeles Rams. The 49ers have yet to win an exhibition game and the Rams have not lost one. In addition, they have won four of their last five exhibition games against the 49ers and the last seven straight meetings in league play.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Tug McGraw, who pitched his first major league shutout for the New York Mets last Sunday, was named the National League's Player of the Week Tuesday.

McGraw, one of the top relievers in baseball, became a starter last Tuesday and defeated Houston 4-2 after working six innings. On Sunday, he shut out Atlanta 3-0 in pitching his first complete game since May 4, 1969.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hal McRae of Kansas City was named the Player of the Week in the American League Wednesday after a performance that included a major league record-tying six extra base hits in a doubleheader.

McRae, the top designated hitter in the AL, hit .346 last week. In an Aug. 27 doubleheader against Cleveland, McRae had three doubles and a homer and drove in six runs in the opener and had two more doubles and another RBI in the nightcap.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Left-hander Pete Richert, recently the Philadelphia Phillies' most effective reliever, has been admitted to Methodist Hospital here with thrombosis of the pitching arm.

Richert, 2-1 with one save and a 2.25 earned run average, has permitted only two hits and no runs in his last eight innings of relief.

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The St. Louis Cardinals Tuesday night called up outfielders Larry Herndon and Jerry Mumphrey from their Arkansas farm club.

Herndon led the Texas League this year with 50 stolen bases. Both players were chosen by the Cardinals in the free-agent draft in June of 1971.

Pop Warner group plans big carnival

The San Dimas-La Verne Pop Warner Women's Auxiliary is sponsoring the "Ma" Warner Football Carnival, a fund raising activity to raise money for sports equipment for the boys' program, to be held Saturday, Sept. 7, at Pelota Park.

The park is located on the corner of Wheeler and Holly Oak in La Verne. The carnival will start at 10 a.m. and conclude at 6 p.m.

Among the scheduled events will be a "Mothers Football Game" at 1 p.m. in which the "Broad Mods" tangle with the "Passing Fancys."

Also featured are the San Dimas "Shooting Stars" drill team and the Pomona High flag girls.

Activities will also include game booths, a bake sale, and a "Bang up the Car" event.

Major League roundup

Umps in hot water again

HOUSTON (UPI) — There's an adage in sports that the breaks eventually even out. But it seldom happens as quickly as it did with the Houston Astros and the Cincinnati Reds.

On Monday night, Cincinnati's Joe Morgan was called out on a play at the plate. Morgan was coming home with what would have been the tying run in a game the Reds lost by one run.

A television monitor was located near the Reds' dugout and a replay indicated Morgan was safe. Reds Manager Sparky Anderson argued the call, continued baiting the homeplate umpire after the play was over and was thrown out of the game the next inning.

In the eighth inning of Tuesday night's game with the score tied 5-5, Houston had two runners on with no outs. Reds pitcher Pedro Borbon threw to first and first base umpire Harry Wendelstedt called a balk. But second base umpire and crew chief Doug Harvey said the batter, Milt May, was out of the batter's box and time had been called when Borbon threw to first. Following a discussion with Wendelstedt and homeplate umpire Art Williams, Harvey overruled Wendelstedt and the balk was disallowed.

Neither runner scored and the Reds came up with two runs in the top of the ninth to win 7-5.

Astros Manager Preston Gomez disputed the call, claiming May never stepped out of the batter's box, and he was ejected from the game.

"Wendelstedt called it a balk," Gomez said. "Art Williams never said a word about the hitter being out of the batter's box. Milt May said he didn't step out and (third base coach) Bob Lillis said he didn't.

"Williams is a nice guy and someday he may be a good umpire. But he must be more consistent and have more decision. He should have thrown Joe Morgan out of the game when he threw his helmet and bat when he was called out on strikes in the fifth inning but Williams just stood there and took it and didn't say a word.

The Reds, behind at one point 5-2, tied it in the seventh when Tony Perez singled in two runs.

"I remembered from last night he threw me a fast ball on the first pitch so I said to myself I'm going to look for the fast ball this time," Perez said.

In other NL games, St. Louis took a pair from Montreal 5-1 and 8-4, New York swept Chicago 2-0 and 11-4, Atlanta beat San Diego 7-2 and Pittsburgh whipped Philadelphia 8-2.

Chicago edged Kansas City 2-1, Texas beat Minnesota 6-3, Oakland blanked California 7-0 and Cleveland topped Detroit 5-1 then lost 5-4 in 11 innings in the only scheduled American League action.

Cardinals 5-8, Expos 1-4

Reggie Smith hit two solo homers in the opener and Ken Reitz hit two run-scoring doubles in the second game to lead the Cardinals to their sweep of the Expos. Lou Brock stole his 99th base in the second game and now is just five short of Maury Wills' major league record of 104 steals in a season. Joe Torre also homered for St. Louis in the first game while Bake McBride connected for the Cardinals in the nightcap.

Mets 2-11, Cubs 0-4

Jon Matlack tossed a four-hitter in the opener and Wayne Garrett drove in three runs in the nightcap as the Mets ran their winning streak to six with a sweep of the Cubs. John Milner drove in both runs for the Mets in the opener with his 19th homer and a single while Matlack registered his sixth shutout. Garrett hit his 10th homer, a three-run shot, in the second game to help Tom Seaver to his ninth win.

Pirates 8, Phillies 2

Jim Rooker fired a six-hitter and Richie Zisk's three-run triple keyed a seven-run fifth inning rally which carried the Pirates over the Phils for a sweep of their three-game series. Rooker struck out nine and walked four in winning his 11th game against 10 losses. He also contributed two hits in the fifth inning uprising, driving in

Robertson retires into broadcasting

NEW YORK (UPI) — Oscar Robertson, once described as "the sculptor's answer to the perfect basketball player," retired as an active competitor Tuesday after 14 seasons during which he established a reputation as the greatest backcourt performer in National Basketball Association history.

The 37-year-old Robertson, who played his first 10 seasons with the Cincinnati Royals and the last four with the Milwaukee Bucks, quit to sign a lucrative contract as a sportscaster with CBS Television. "The Big O," as he was aptly nicknamed, will serve as a color commentator for CBS-TV's NBA Game of the Week. He will begin his new job on Sunday, Oct. 27, when Bill Walton makes his debut as a professional for Portland.

Robertson's sudden decision to call it quits came after he had failed to negotiate a "suitable" contract with the Bucks. Oscar sought his standard multi-year contract with Milwaukee, but the Bucks rejected it because of the "no-cut, no-trade" clause upon which Robertson insisted.

The Spirits of St. Louis of the American Basketball Association had expressed interest in the aging superstar, but after weighing theirs and a few offers from other clubs, he decided to accept the CBS multi-year contract.

"I talked with my attorney and we felt there wasn't anything that inviting," said Robertson, "Actually, I had contemplated retiring for quite a while. Fourteen years is a long time to be playing. I think my family is very happy about it, I know my wife is. But they left the decision entirely up to me.

"Hopefully this new job with CBS will be my job of the future. I would like to think so. I've never done anything for networks, but I have done some color commentary of high school and college games on a local level in Cincinnati. So, it's not going to be a complete shock."

In his 14 seasons in the NBA, Robertson set standards for excellence that will be difficult to duplicate. A three-time college Player of the Year at the University of Cincinnati, Robertson was a sensation his very first year in the NBA (1960-61), averaging 30.5 points per game and winning Rookie of the Year honors.

Over the next nine seasons, the 6-foot-5 guard emerged as the most complete player in the league, averaging better than 30 points per game and perennially leading the league in assists. His best season was 1963-64 when he averaged 31.4 points and 10.9 assists to gain the NBA's Most Valuable Player honors.

A master ballhandler who perfected a back-stepping maneuver to within 15-feet of the basket and a deadly one-handed turn-around jump shot over usually shorter opponents, Robertson never failed to bring plaudits from the students of the game. Kids in schoolyards across the country imitated his beautiful "floating layups."

Eddie Donovan, the Buffalo Braves' general manager, was once looking at films of Oscar's play while still a coach for the Knicks and remarked, "You look at the films and you see Oscar has done this, this and this, then you re-run 'em again 20 minutes later and you find 10 things you didn't see the first time. He controls the game and everything in it."

Perhaps Dick Barnett, the former star guard of the Knicks and Los Angeles Lakers, described the Big O's talents best.

"You give him 15 feet, he wants 10," said Barnett. "You give him 10, he wants five. You give him five, he wants a layup, baby." Robertson usually got what he wanted.

The one thing that eluded Robertson during his years with Cincinnati, however, was a championship. That finally came when he was traded to the Bucks at the end of the 1969-70 season. With Robertson's floor leadership and the brilliant play at center of Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, the Bucks won their first NBA title by defeating Baltimore.

CBS-TV also announced that Johnny Unitas, one of pro football's greatest quarterbacks, had signed a long-term contract to serve as color commentator for their Game of the Week NFL telecast.

Allen accepts Thomas back with Redskins

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Washington Redskin Coach George Allen just can't stop dreaming about the Super Bowl victory that has eluded him so far during his head coaching career.

And from his actions, he apparently can't stop dreaming about the 95 yards Duane Thomas gained for Dallas in a 24-3 Super Bowl VI victory over Miami and his brilliant running in two seasons with the Cowboys—no matter how obstreperous the talented running back might be.

Allen, no doubt dreaming of a backfield with both Thomas and Larry Brown at their peak, announced Tuesday to no one's real surprise he has taken Thomas back on his team despite his threats against backfield coach Charlie Waller.

Before announcing his decision Allen told reporters, "I usually base every decision on the axiom we started in 1971, 'the future is now.' My only thinking is what is good for the Redskins and will it help us win."

Only a week ago Allen put Thomas on waivers for cursing Waller, shoving, grabbing and challenging him to a fight.

"My first consideration was for the team," Allen said, making it clear it was the championship prospects he was concerned with, not individual players. "Duane can help us win now. Coach Charlie Waller was receptive to bringing Duane back. Charlie was for whatever I decided.

"The fact that Duane wanted to return was the main factor. He said he was sorry and wanted to be forgiven. He wants to play for the Redskins and does not want to play for any other team. He has made so much progress I want to give him a second chance. I hope we can all work together for a championship."

Ferro recalls past races

RIVERSIDE — To Mickey Thompson, peering down at the Mexican landscape from his airplane, it looked as if Bobby Ferro was cheating. He was off the course and appeared to be bound to cut many miles off the scheduled route.

Later, Ferro thanked Thompson for the spying, because the film proved he wasn't cheating at all, only lost and trying to find his way back to the right road.

Those tense moments were recalled this week as Thompson and Ferro discussed both the "Delco Baja International" promoted by Thompson and the Long Beach Speed King's upcoming "AC-Delco World Championships" Off-Road Racing to be held Sept. 28-29 at Riverside International Raceway.

Ferro is entered in the $170,000 closed-course race at Riverside in the same single-seat Sandmaster dune buggy he drove a month ago in Mexico.

Ironically, while the controversy raged at Ensenada among other racers who heard rumors of Ferro's off-course excursion and built a case against him as a sort of Latin-American Watergate, Ferro fumed over the precious lost minutes in that off-course wandering which apparently cost him the overall victory, which went to a pair of motorcyclists.

Now, all three of Thompson's SCORE International productions have frustrated Ferro. He failed to win at Riverside when his Sandmaster buggy swooped down a hill, hit a bump and knocked him out. The next thing Ferro knew he was upside down in the emergency parking ring of the freeway bordering the raceway.

Other difficulties robbed him of victory in Thompson's SCORE Parker Dam 400 last winter.

Meanwhile, Ferro had taken up sprint car racing with the California Racing Assn., spawning ground of Indianapolis heroes from Parnelli Jones to Pancho Carter.

The 26-year-old studio stunt man from Sherman Oaks hopes to parlay his reputation in off-road racing and the hard work he puts into succeeding in other facets of motor sports into a professional career on the ovals and road courses of America.

Ferro has acquired the friendship and help of actor James Garner, a motor racing fan and sometime participant, and Ferro has competed in everything from motorcycle hare and hound races (he was world champ in 1969) to formula 5000.

In his best off-road season, competing for Don Arnett's Sandmaster factory team, he won the Baja 500, was class winner and narrowly missed defeating Parnelli Jones in the Mexican 1000, was named off-road driver of the year by Car and Driver magazine and was nominated to the Auto-racing All-American by the American Auto Racing Writers and Broadcasters Assn.

Tickets for the race are on sale at Riverside Raceway and Ticketron outlets. Motorcycle entries are still available through SCORE International, Wilmington.

Formula 5000 races are better for Andretti

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — In three years as a member of Parnelli Jones' Viceroy team, Mario Andretti has won just one U.S. Auto Club championship car race.

He went only two laps in the Indianapolis 500 this year and only four laps at Indy in 1974.

But the versatile little Italian immigrant has captured two Formula 5000 races and three USAC dirt track events this year. In Sunday's California Grand Prix Formula 5000 at Ontario, Calif., he finished second to England's Brian Redman.

So how does he explain it? Racing luck, perhaps.

"No," Andretti said, "I don't believe there's any such thing as racing luck. I think some drivers use that as a crutch. It's an easy thing to do. Well, I won't use it as an alibi. You make your own luck. When you have a good, healthy machine, you do well. Preparation is luck."

With USAC national driving championships in 1965, 1966 and 1969 behind him, Andretti admitted being "frustrated as hell" by his failure to win on the USAC championship car circuit.

"I get asked the question all the time," he said with a sigh. "It irritates me but the question bothers me more when I ask myself it. I'll say to myself, 'What the hell am I doing wrong?' and 'Why aren't we clicking?'"

For 1975, he will run the Formula One circuit and USAC's three 500-milers—Indianapolis, Ontario and Pocono. He is scheduled to drive in the U.S. and Canadian Grand Prixs this year.

Southland racing

IRWINDALE — Management calls it the "Back to School Funny Car Boogie" and it's purpose is to put a fitting conclusion to summer vacation. This Saturday night (7 p.m.) at Irwindale may be remembered well into next year after Don "Snake" Prudhomme, the nation's dominate Funny Car driver, and the top rock act "Redbone" get through doing their thing in front of an expected capacity audience.

GARDENA — Jimmy Oskie of Downey tries to settle one more score in the 1974 revival of the Arizona-California Silver Cup sprint-car series beginning at Ascot this Saturday night.

Oskie, who lost the California Racing Association point race to Don Hamilton in the latter stages of the 1973 season, has already taken a long lead in that competition to atone for last year.

GARDENA — Chris Cumberworth of Santa Ana will try to make up lost ground in California Racing Association midget point chase with the races at Ascot Park this Thursday night.

Cumberworth was leading the CRA midget division until he drew a 30-day suspension after an altercation with veteran driver Don Hawley of Gardena. Hawley was also suspended; the ban was lifted on both drivers last Saturday.

VALENCIA — For the second weekend in a row, a $500 cash purse goes on the line for professional motocross racers Sunday at Indian Dunes Park near Saugus.

Running under sanction of American Motocross Enterprises of Hawthorne, upwards of 300 riders are expected for the day-long program that leaves the starting gate on the park's Shadow Glen obstacle course at 9:30 a.m.

VALENCIA — Randy "Alligator" Marsh of Ventura and Bobby "Jockey" Schwartz of Los Angeles will continue their rivalry on the one-sixth mile dirt oval during Saturday's 22-event speedway contest for the motorcycles at Indian Dunes Park near Saugus.

Joining a field of 54 professional racers, Marsh and Schwartz, both of whom went down in a tangle during the running of last week's handicap main event, will be out to narrow the gap on point leader Tom Sawyer of Elsinore.

IRWINDALE — Three former winners head the field of claimer stock car racing stars ready for competition at Speedway 605 in Irwindale this Saturday night.

The program will include claimer stock car racing street stocks and the wild thrills of figure eight competition on one evening's ten event card starting at 7:30 p.m.

IRWINDALE — A red-hot three-way battle for the Speedway 605 sportsman stock car racing championship will continue this Friday night at the Irwindale speed facility.

Stars of NASCAR sportsman stock car racing will join the new "mod squad" modifieds for a full night of high speed racing competition on the ultra-fast half-mile starting at 7:30 p.m.

SAN BERNARDINO — Stock car racing is approaching the twilight of the 1974 season at Orange Show Speedway in San Bernardino with competition for the championship running at a fever pitch.

Three divisions of NASCAR will be on the 17 event program with the sportsman stock car joined by the hobby and min-stocks Saturday night at 7:30 p.m.

CORONA — One of the top destruction derby drivers in the Southern California area, Ed Tackett of Wilmington, will be making his first appearance of the season at Corona Raceway this Saturday night as a giant destruction derby will be joining the figure eight and oval stock car program beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Nationals qualifying rounds hits Irwindale

IRWINDALE — Scratch racing, the toughest form of Speedway competition, comes to Irwindale Raceway Thursday night as the Southland's fastest, longest Speedway track holds its qualifying round for the U.S. Nationals to be held in October.

With 32 top Speedway Racing Association riders eligible for the qualifying rounds, the lineup promises to be tops for Irwindale's 24-event scratch racing program, which gets under way at 8 p.m.

Rick Woods of Huntington Beach, the 1972 National Champion, started late this year, and just made the field of eligibles by a mile half-point.

He will be joined by such SRA stars as Mike and Steve Bast, Danny Becker, Sonny Nutter, Billy Gray, Bill Cody, Mike Konle and Jeff Sexton.

Q. "WHY DID FRANCE GIVE THE STATUE OF LIBERTY TO THE UNITED STATES?"

PATTY DeWALD
SANBORN, NY

THE STATUE OF LIBERTY WAS A GIFT FROM THE FRENCH PEOPLE TO THE AMERICAN PEOPLE, COMMEMORATING THE BIRTH OF THE UNITED STATES AND THE FRIENDSHIP OF THE TWO NATIONS.

The Statue of Liberty is a colossal statue that stands on Liberty Island in New York Harbor.

It was built in France and shipped across the Atlantic Ocean in 1885 as a gift to the American people from the people of France. It was given to celebrate the 100th anniversary of American independence and to commemorate the alliance of the two nations during the Revolutionary War.

Most people call it the Statue of Liberty, but its real name is "Liberty Enlightening the World."

To make the statue, sheets of copper were hammered into shape and bolted together over an iron framework.

A radio, camera, globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

MEETIN' & EATIN' at BETSY ROSS

By GENE NEIGHBORS

Hi Neighbors:

Congratulations to DEBBIE WARMAN and JOHN BLEVINS who announced their engagement recently at our Betsy Ross Upland Restaurant. How else to celebrate a happy occasion than over a table loaded with delicious ice cream.

Sure hope you've noticed our Managers and Supervisors in their blue coats (blazers) checking out the competition . . . We regularly visit other coffee shops and ice cream parlors to compare service, quality, and prices. And, you know, we really believe we offer the best, most consistent service, the highest quality foods, beverages, and desserts in town. Our prices are definitely in line if not the lowest in each area where we have a restaurant.

Space doesn't permit a comparison of each item . . . but where can you get a full 16-ounce malt or shake for only 75c, a real ice cream soda for 70c, full breakfasts for $1.10, lunches and dinners, saidwiches, soups, salads and desserts that are made-to-order for you . . . ?

How about our famous Hot Fudge Sundae for only 85c? I guarantee you no one can beat us for price or quality.

We know most of you must like good, hot, tasty coffee 'cause we sure go through a "pot-full" every few minutes. Our own special blend coffee is still only 20c for all you can drink. With some of our breakfast specials there's no extra charge for coffee.

Come on in for dinner and enjoy our great Fish 'N Chips, Hamburger Specialties, Homemade Pot Pie, Chicken 'N A Basket, and our own USDA Choice Steak Sandwich with all the trimmings. We have delicious foods on our menu for everyone. See you soon . . .

Thanks,

'Truly a king'

New Ellington record released

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

NEW YORK (UPI) — They called him Duke but he truly was a king.

There was something majestic about Duke Ellington. He had a great dignity that put him on a high pedestal early in his career. And because Ellington had regal class, he remained on his lofty level through the decades. Even so, he was a warm human being, a friendly man who was respected by American presidents but who enjoyed meeting strangers.

Ellington left a tremendous legacy in recordings which spanned almost half a century. Some of the music he recorded in 1947 has been reissued under the title of "The World of Duke Ellington" (Columbia G 32564), which is something of a misnomer because he was only nearing the halfway mark of his accomplishments.

However, this is a fine work, worthy of being preserved for years to come. The two record album contains 22 numbers featuring such exalted Ellington musicians as Billy Strayhorn, Ray Nance, Johnny Hodges, Russell Procope, Sonny Greer, Oscar Pettiford, Tyree Glenn, Al Sears and Harry Carney. Wilber de Paris, one of the great trombonists of his time, also joins some of the sessions.

Ellington developed his musical styles during a period when Americans liked to dance and the music in this album is ideal for those who yearn for the ballrooms of yore.

Jazz pioneer

Anita O'Day always will be remembered as a pioneer in jazz singing, a woman whose unique phrasing was polished without the embellishments she added to make it unique.

"Hi Ho Trailus Boot Whip" (Bob Thiele Music BBM1-595) is a replay of songs which Miss O'Day recorded more than 25 years ago. Time has not had any aging effects on her style, which is still fresh today.

There are 10 tunes in this selection, ranging from slow to fast tempo. One of the numbers most typical of Miss O'Day is "How High the Moon," which gives her plenty of room for her scat singing.

Russell playback

Another playback recording that deserves mention is "Luis Russell and His Louisiana Swing Orchestra" (Columbia KG 32338).

Russell was a superb arranger who came to prominence as a band leader in the 1920s. He switched from jazz to swing and enjoyed a rewarding career until the late 1940's when his fortunes began declining.

Those who remember the golden days of swing will enjoy this album, even though the sound is tinny, because among the musicians in these sessions were J.C. Higginbotham, Barney Bigard and Johnny St. Cyr.

RICHARD DOW

Dow to direct VCT staging of 'Fiddler'

After several years' absence from the local theatrical scene, veteran actor-director Richard Dow will return to direct the Valley Community Theater production of "Fiddler on the Roof," opening Oct. 3.

Pomona residents for many years, Dow and his wife, Carla, were active with VCT during the mid-1960s. He won VCT's annual Best Director award three consecutive years for his productions of "The Innocents," "Tobacco Road" and "A Streetcar Named Desire."

During those years he also performed on the VCT stage as Rev. Shannon in "Night of the Iguana," Murray Burns in "A Thousand Clowns," Dr. Lyman in "Bus Stop," David Bulloch in "The Reluctant Debutante" and Dirk Winston in "Mary, Mary."

Since moving to Orange County in 1970, Dow has earned critical acclaim for numerous productions, both as performer and director. In 1971 and 1972, the Orange County press awarded him its annual Outstanding Achievement in Theater awards for his productions of two Arthur Miller dramas, "A View From the Bridge" and "Death of a Salesman."

For the past two years Dow has directed his own touring repertory ensemble, Pacific Group Theater, which earlier this year concluded a successful production of the musical-comedy, "Dames at Sea."

Ticket information and reservations can be obtained at 622-6954.

'Seesaw' set to open at Music Center

"Seesaw," the Cy Coleman-Dorothy Fields musical starring John Gavin, Lucie Arnaz and Tommy Tune, opens tonight in the Los Angeles Music Center's Ahmanson Theater.

The book, direction and choreography are by Michael Bennett, with scenery by Robin Wagner, costumes by Ann Roth and lighting by Jules Fisher.

Based on the William Gibdon play, "Two for the Seesaw," the musical comes to Los Angeles after an acclaimed Broadway and Eastern tour, and will play here for three weeks through Sept. 22.

Progress-Bulletin Entertainment

BOWING AT THE BOWL — Daniel Heifetz, 26-year-old violinist, will perform Sibelius' Violin Concerto in D Minor with the Cleveland Orchestra in the Hollywood Bowl at 8 p.m. Sept. 12. The orchestra, conducted by Lorin Maazel, will also play Sibelius' Symphony No. 1 and his "Karelia" Suite. The violinist is not related to famed violinist Jascha Heifetz.

Busch Gardens plans Oktoberfest pageant

Busch Gardens in Van Nuys will hold a beauty contest this month to choose a queen for its International Oktoberfest Celebration Sept. 28-Oct. 6.

Preliminaries and finals to choose Miss Busch Gardens Oktoberfest will be held Sunday and Sept. 15 at 2 p.m. at Busch Gardens.

Oktoberfest will offer music, dancing and entertainment from countries around the world as well as numerous other shows and attractions designed to commemorate the annual German celebration.

Women between the ages of 18 and 25 are invited to enter the contest. Entry forms are available at Busch Gardens' administrative offices, 16000 Roscoe Blvd., Van Nuys.

The queen, selected by a panel of judges during competition in swimsuits and formal attire, will be chosen on the basis of personality, poise and physical appearance.

The winner will receive round trip air fare to Europe, and the first four runners-up will be given a $100 gift certificate to the Busch Gardens' Gift Shop. Each contestant will receive two guest certificates to Busch Gardens.

GUNILLA HUTTON, country-western singing star, will take part with Buck Owens, Minnie Pearl and others in "Country Music Spectacular" on the Tomorrowland Stage of Disneyland at 8:30, 10 and 11:30 p.m. Sept. 21.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Cripple Creek, Colo. was a boom town that yielded more than $400 million in gold ore. Bob Womack discovered the first gold there in Poverty Gulch in 1891, The World Almanac says. Ironically, Womack died poor but his discovery made 28 people millionaries and brought 30,000 people to the town. This Rocky Mountain town today has about 550 residents.

Bobby Joe Keesee: POW, CIA agent or kidnaper?

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — Who is Bobby Joe Keesee? War hero, soldier of fortune, war prisoner, kidnaper? Or maybe a onetime CIA agent

In federal court proceedings that will begin here Thursday with the filing of motions, some of the mystery may be peeled from the 40-year-old Keesee, who has been a shadowy figure of international intrigue for 12 years. His exploits have ranged from the Middle East to North Vietnam.

Keese is under indictment on charges of kidnaping U.S. Vice Consul John Patterson in Hermosillo, Mexico, last March 22.

Ransom was demanded but never paid, and Patterson's skeletal remains were found near Hermosillo in July. Authorities said he had been killed by blows to the head.

Before the finding of the remains, Keesee had been arrested outside his Huntington Beach, Calif., home on a complaint, filed May 24 in San Diego, that he had caused a letter to be delivered to the consolate in Hermosillo demanding $250,000 as ransom for Patterson. He was in jail when he was indicted by a federal grand jury in San Diego on charges of kidnaping Patterson.

When he was brought to San Diego he pleaded innocent to the kidnaping charge.

Although he was an eighth grade dropout, Keesee's first public notice was as a hero. He joined the paratroopers and fought in the Korean war, winning the Bronze Star and the Purple Heart for an attempt to rescue a group of captured soldiers.

Then, in 1962, he went AWOL from the Army's Fort Huachuca in Arizona, stole a small plane and flew to Cuba, where he asked asylum. Fidel Castro returned him to the United States, where he faced 152 federal charges. After he was convicted of interstate transportation of a stolen aircraft, other charges were dropped. At his trial he claimed he worked for the CIA and that his flight was part of a cover for future operations. The CIA denied it, and he spent two years in prison.

In June of 1970 he claimed to be among 57 hostages released by Palestinian guerrillas.

Later in 1970 he chartered a plane in Bangkok, saying he was a Hollywood agent seeking a site for a new film. Then at gunpoint he ordered the pilot to fly to North Vietnam and land him on a beach. The pilot flew off as villagers closed in on Keesee.

At that time his father, Payton Keesee, said in Phoenix that his son had done "one hell of a lot for his country."

"He fought in that bloody war in Korea for four years and laid in a hospital for nine months after losing part of an arm," the father said. "They weren't human enough to write about what he did for his country and now what little he's done wrong, that's great news."

His sister, Mrs. John R. Brangle, recalled his disappearance from her home in Albuquerque in 1970:

"The oddest thing happened. I was fixing dinner, and he said he was going down to get his car fixed. He said he would be at the service station around the corner. He said he would be right back, not over an hour. That was the last I laid eyes on him."

Now he faces a five-count grand jury indictment accusing him of planning and taking part in Patterson's kindaping in Hermosillo, where the vice consul last was seen leaving the U.S. Consulate with an unidentified man.

The newspaper El Imparcial reported a note written by Patterson said the kidnapers would kill one American a week if $250,000 were not delivered in Nogales, Ariz., March 24 and another $250,000 in Mexico City the same day. At the time, the kidnapers were thought to be Mexican terrorists, but the arrest of Keesee followed.

College grads leave Taiwan, never return

TAIPEI (UPI) — "Liuhsueh," or studying abroad, is the ultimate dream for many young Chinese on Taiwan.

Each year more than 2,000 students, about 10 per cent of Taiwan's college graduates, go abroad for advanced studies. Most of them choose the United States and never go back home.

It is now summer exodus time again in Nationalist China. The line in front of the U.S. Consulate begins to form at dawn and usually more than 100 students are waiting when the consulate opens at 8:30 a.m.

The lines are extraordinarily long this summer because of new application requirements. The long waiting hours have made many frustrated and weary, but few have decided to give up and walk away.

"It is too late to change your mind," said a pretty coed. "You'd better wait for a few more hours."

The coed, a foreign languages major, said student eagerness to go abroad was a natural by-product of Taiwan's educational system.

"Ever since kindergarten we were taught to constantly excell, to study harder, to reach higher and to get a Ph.D.," she explained.

"It is no wonder we all end up wanting to be 'Jonathan Livingston Seagulls,' to fly faster, higher and further."

Of the 2,000 students who fly away from Taipei each year, less than 10 per cent come back.

"Life here is calm and quiet," the coed said, "but we all are curious and want to go out to see something exciting, to do something adventurous."

The Taiwan government does not allow its people to travel abroad as tourists and this, of course, has to do with the eagerness of the students to go abroad.

"Taiwan is too crowded," said a science graduate from National Taiwan University. "Too many people are fighting for too few jobs. Besides, a career position with good potential for growth is extremely hard to find."

He said Taiwan graduates too many college-educated people for its economy to absorb and a recent education ministry survey bears him out.

The survey said about 21 per cent of Taiwan's college graduates could not find jobs from 1970 to 1972 although the nation's general unemployment rate was less than 2 per cent.

"Chinese people traditionally have been very achievement-oriented," said a science major. "There is tremendous pressure for you to climb the success ladder. And the shortcut to success is through studying abroad."

"We have seen some encouraging results and more will come back in the future," predicts an official of the youth commission.

Here's growth stock package

By Roger Spear and David Sargent

Q. I have $20,000 avaailable for investment. As I am in my 40s, I am more interested in growth than in income. Could you suggest five stocks — perhaps one of which would be a speculation? G.R.

A — In the speculative category, low-priced SCA Services (NYSE) at 5X projected fiscal 1974-75 earnings has appeal. In the last five years, earnings growth has averaged 22 per cent annually. SCA, a leader in the waste-management field derived 77 per cent of sales and 90 per cent of 1973 earnings from this area. For the long term, DEKALB AgResearch (OTC) has above-average potential. A recognized developer of hybrid seeds (corn in particular), and active in other farm-related businesses, the company also has significant oil and gas interests. A 20 per cent earnings growth rate has been achieved despite depressed cattle feeder markets and restrictions on the company's seed operations in Argentina.

Dow Chemical (NYSE) stands head and shoulders above any other major chemical — outstanding in multi-national expansion, raw material resourcing, technology, marketing, production and management. Earnings this year are exploding, up possibly 95 per cent from last year's record, making a five-year average gain of 28 per cent annually. The stock at 11X estimated earnings has unusual merit as a growth investment. Shares of Jos. Schlitz Brewing (NYSE), the nation's second largest brewer, at 16X estimated 1974 net, are in an attractive buy range. Its industry share and earnings have been climbing rapidly for years, spurred by aggressive marketing and in-house can-making capability. New facilities will raise capacity 60 per cent by 1978.

My final selection, Warner Lambert (NYSE) is a worldwide producer of pharmaceuticals, optical products, proprietary drugs, gums, etc. The shares have been unduly impacted by antitrust litigation and government restrictions. Record earnings, projected for 1974, are capitalized in the market only 12X versus an historical multiple of 20X to 30X. Shares should benefit from the initially favorable decision on the FTC antitrust suit. The five issues should provide gradual long-term appreciation as well as a modest, but increasing dividend return.

Q — I have $5,000 in E-bonds maturing this year. I would like to transfer to another type of government bond at higher interest rate. Do I have to pay tax on the accrued interest if I transfer? F.S.

A — The only other government bond to which an E-bondholder may transfer directly is an H-bond. Other Treasury debt inssues must either be bought on the open market or through Federal Reserve Banks at a new offering. Using, in your case, proceeds from redemption of E-bonds you would, however, incur a tax liability on the accrued E-bond interest if you purchased marketable Treasury issues. With a transfer to H-bonds, the tax liability is deferred until the new bonds are disposed of.

The rate of interest on H-bonds is no better than on E-bonds. Interest on marketable Treasury bonds is subject to federal, but not state or municipal taxation.

CARNIVAL

Plant costs double within year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., says that in one year the cost of the nation's first "fast breeder" nuclear reactor for generating electricity has more than doubled.

Aspin said Sunday the cost overrun on the reactor "casts new doubt on the economic viability of the fast breeder reactor."

"Unless the costs on the fast breeder reactor are controlled immediately the whole project should probably be canned," the congressman added.

He said the Atomic Energy Commission estimated in August last year that the reactor planned for the Clinch River near Oak Ridge, Tenn., would cost $699 million. Now, the AEC estimates the cost at $1.8 billion if construction begins as early as Jan. 1, he said.

At mini-convention

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When Willie Brown, the tub-thumping black California legislator, led the reformer walkout at the recent Kansas City meeting of the Democratic Charter Commission, he didn't say goodbye.

Brown, in fact, made it clear before he left that he and the Democrats who left the meeting in protest against what they regarded as steamroller tactics by old line party regulars would be back to fight again at the party's mini-convention Dec. 6-8 on the same grounds.

Most times, such tactics as walking out of a meeting are only for the benefit of the news media, dramatizing a situation that the protesters are unable to change. But this time, by leaving and breaking a quorum of the 167-member commission, Brown and the reform faction were able to stop all work on the draft charter document and force its submission as is to the larger conference this winter.

Some thought Brown was seeking publicity to put new life in a sagging political career. Whether that was true or not, Brown's individual needs or wishes did not determine whether the reformers left the meeting.

He might have pulled as many as 15 other blacks with him on the volatile issue of requiring state parties to take affirmative action to enlist minorities, women and young people, but that controversy was finessed and the walkout occurred on an entirely different —and broader —issue.

The issue was simply: the regulars had enough votes at the meeting to make any changes in the draft charter — tentatively approved last spring —that they wished; the reformers knew this from the start but felt the regulars would confine themselves to two or three issues that had been narrowly decided at the previous meeting.

When the regulars began using their majority to dig out of the charter reform provisions that had been party law for years —the ban on the unit rule was an example —the reformers marched and ended the proceedings by destroying the quorum.

But not one of them, Brown least of all, damned the Democratic party or began talking of forming alternative political forces in the style of New Politics activists of the recent past.

Every one who talked to reporters as they left spoke of "going home to organize" for the December meeting, where the final round of the charter battle will be fought. The reformers believed they would do better by taking the issues to the mini-convention, for which a majority of delegates will be elected under the very reform rules that were under attack at the charter commission meeting.

The struggle, as it has been for more than six years, is for control of the Democratic party. The elected officials, party professionals and labor union leaders who are used to running the party want it back.

And the women, theoreticians, black politicians and young activists who stormed the party behind the 1972 McGovern candidacy do not propose to placidly fall back to the rank and file where they feel they will be ignored.

Trailering tips offered motorists

If you are an experienced trailer hand, you might want to turn the page. But if you're one of the growing army of motorists who's going to haul a trailer for the first time this summer, these tips from the Ontario Ministry of Transport can help make the experience a more pleasant one.

Whether you'll be pulling a sleek, 35-footer from coast to coast or hauling some furniture to the cottage in a rented two-wheeled trailer, certain driving techniques are recommended.

Turning—

Right turn: Look in your right mirror. Signal, slow down. If turn is sharp, move ahead until car's front wheels are well ahead of curb . . . then turn to the right.

Left turn: Check traffic. Signal. Proceed slowly. When you make your turn, drive well into intersection in order to swing wide, to allow for the trailer.

Slowing, stopping: A sudden stop can jacknife your trailer or shift your load, so keep a greater distance than normally between you and the car ahead. Keep out of the fast lanes and maintain a speed that makes sudden stops and slow-ups unnecessary.

Passing: When towing a trailer you can't accelerate as fast as without it. Then too your car plus trailer is much longer. Before you pass, make sure there's enough time and room. When you have passed, allow more room before you move back to your lane. Don't cut in and swerve . . . this can make your trailer swing and sway.

Being passed: Help other drivers pass you where necessary. If you're holding up a line of traffic, the right thing to do is signal, pull off, and let them pass.

If a large bus or transport passes you, air pressure may push the rear of your trailer to the right. Almost instantly, this pressure will push the front of your trailer. Be prepared to steer out of this situation. Accelerating a bit may help. Braking will not.

WARDS 102ND ANNIVERSARY SALE

24,000-MILE GLASS-TRACK BELTED TWIN GUARD.

PASSENGER CAR TIRE GUARANTEE

Montgomery Ward guarantees each of its passenger car tires for a specified number of miles when used on passenger cars or station wagons, except taxis. If your tire does not give you this mileage because of:

- defects in material or workmanship,
- normal road hazard failure,
- premature tread wearout (2/32 inches or less remaining);

Montgomery Ward will:

1. During the first 10% of guaranteed mileage, replace the tire free.
2. During the remaining guaranteed mileage, replace it for a prorata charge based on mileage used.

Charge after first 10% of guaranteed mileage based on selling price in effect at the time of return at branch to which returned, including federal excise tax.

FREE Sears Tire Mounting and Rotation

Sears Highway Passenger Tire Guarantee

If you do not receive the number of miles specified because of your tire becoming unserviceable due to (1) defects, (2) normal road hazards, or (3) tread wear-out.

We will: At our option, exchange it for a new tire or give you a refund charging in either case only the proportion of the then current selling price plus Federal Excise tax that represents mileage used. If the tire is unserviceable due to any of the above causes before 10% of the guaranteed mileage is received, the replacement or refund will be made with no charge for mileage received.
